CHANNEL TUNNEL SEEN AS KEY TO NAVY DEADLOCK

British May Yield to French Scheme.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—Favorable consideration by the British government towards the scheme of constructing a 36 mile channel tunnel linking Dover and Calais may overcome the French demands for a huge navy, which thus far have deadlocked the naval conference.

Boring tubes beneath the channel, linking England and France, will necessarily require a political agreement between the two governments. Such an accord implies military coöperation, principally by their naval forces, which is expected to go a long way toward giving the Paris government the security guarantee pact that André Tardieu demands as the price for reducing French naval tonnage.

MacDonald Scans Report.

The British channel tunnel committee's report has been recently completed and is being examined by Prime Minister MacDonald during this weekend at Chequers. There is a possibility that it will be discussed Monday at a cabinet meeting at 10 Downing street.

Although the report is strictly a secret, THE TRIBUNE has been informed that it carries no recommendations against the scheme, and it is known that Mr. MacDonald, J. H. Thomas, minister for unemployment, and other members of the Labor government are in favor of the plan.

Mr. Thomas will make a statement on Tuesday in the house of commons in regard to the tunnel.

Ambassador M. A. de Fleuriau of France has stated:

"I have been authorized to state that the French government is ready, whenever the British government is ready to take the matter in hand, to make all of the necessary arrangements."

Tube Already Under Way.

The French government has always been a strong advocate for boring the tunnel, and shafts have been sunk and nearly two miles of tubes have been constructed from Sangette, near Calais, already. Paris holds the viewpoint that the completion of the channel tunnel will automatically force the British to negotiate a defensive alliance to protect it at its continental end. It has been considered that the tunnel's safeguards would be the French army and the British navy.

With such an entente, France would automatically obtain the security pact she demands for the channel and Atlantic waters, leaving only her Mediterranean coast exposed. M. Tardieu's memorandum stressed the necessity of maintaining a large fleet on account of its need in defending three different spheres—the channel, the Atlantic, and the Mediterranean.

Makes War "Unthinkable."

One of the few remaining members of the French delegation, who is still here acting as an expert on a subcommittee, said today:

"If England decides to dig the tunnel it will mean that she has confidence in France and France's nonaggressive aims. This will establish a bond of common agreement between France and Great Britain for the protection of the tubes against the aggressiveness of any other continental power.

"This is exactly what France asks. The construction of the tunnel will mean that war between France and Great Britain, ipso facto, becomes just as unthinkable as war between Great Britain and the United States."

Cost Estimated at $145,000,000.

It is realized that strategic objections will be raised against the construction of the tube and abandoning England's traditional insularity, but with the experience of the great war, with airplane and Zeppelin raids, and U-boat blockades, the labor government believes that the mass of public opinion will no longer consider that the 20 mile strip of water prevents hostile action from being felt at home.

The tunnel would comprise twin tubes, each 18 feet in diameter, with a drainage tube 12 feet in diameter. The estimated cost is $145,000,000, and it is believed the work could be completed in four and a half years. More than 14,000 men would be employed directly.

Although many assert that the bulk of passenger traffic between London and the continent will be by airplanes within five years, tunnel supporters declare its greatest advantage will be in freight shipments coming through from all over Europe without transshipments and other delays in channel crossing.

SCOUT PRACTICES FIRST AID AFTER LOSING HIS LEG

Knowledge of first aid, acquired by Phillip Tuttle as a Boy Scout, saved his life yesterday in an accident which cost him his left leg.

Phillip, who is 13 and lives at 7114 Normal boulevard, was hiking south along the Chicago and Western Indiana tracks at 67th and Wallace streets with a fellow scout, Frank Hendrix, also 13 and living at 7114 Normal boulevard.

Absorbed in a discussion of the scout ceremonial at which they had been advanced from tenderfoot to second class rank the previous night at Englewood High school, the friends failed to hear a south bound Chicago and Eastern Illinois passenger train until, the locomotive was 100 feet distant, a whistle blast warned them.

Hendrix leaped to the right, clearing the rails, but Tuttle, dodging to the left, missed his footing. His left leg was severed just below the knee.

The boy took his scout kerchief, seized a rail spike and applied a tourniquet, with which he had stanched the blood flow before his companion and the locomotive engineer, J. F. Mossell, South Holland, Ill., reached his side.

During the ambulance ride to St. Bernard's hospital Tuttle held a tight grip on the tourniquet. He shed no tears until his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Tuttle, reached the hospital. Then he cried a little with his mother.

BIDS NO TRUMP ON 13 DIAMONDS; ASKS FOR DIVORCE

A novel bridge problem was presented in the bill for divorce brought by Mrs. Lila Grey Colyer, 7619 Rogers avenue, against her husband, Irwin C. Colyer, a salesman. The bill was filed yesterday in the Superior court by Attorney Victor Frohlich.

The Colyers were entertaining at home on May 30, 1928. Husband and wife matched husband and wife in a family rivalry with the stakes at a tenth of a cent a point. The Colyers were slightly behind. On a hand for game and rubber Mrs. Colyer, playing south, drew thirteen diamonds.

West, the dealer, bid a heart, Colyer, who had a bust, passed, east bid a spade, and Mrs. Colyer made it one no trump. She finally got the bid at six no trump, after receiving no support from her partner. She didn't take a trick.

Colyer hit his wife with a cut glass grapefruit bowl, according to her complaint.

River Forest Girl Thrown by Horse; Critically Hurt

Miss Mildred Baumrucker, 17 years old, 947 William street, River Forest, daughter of Dr. Otto Baumrucker, is in a serious condition at the Mary Thompson hospital suffering from an injury to her spine which she incurred last Sunday when she was thrown from a horse in River Forest. As Miss Baumrucker was returning the horse to a livery stable the animal shied, throwing her against the stable door.

20 New Quakes Play Havoc in Brawley, Cal.

BULLETIN.

Brawley, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—Two more earth shocks rocked Brawley at 11:49 and 11:51 o'clock tonight. Guests crowded in the lobbies of the two hotels remaining open were thrown into an uproar. No further damage was reported.

Brawley, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—Residents of Brawley had taken to the streets tonight after a series of twenty earthquake shocks which damaged structurally nearly all of the business buildings of the town.

The quakes scattered bricks and debris in the main thoroughfare and caused one serious injury.

The center of the earth movement, which started at 3:30 p. m. and was felt generally throughout the Imperial valley, appeared to be here.

Windows Shattered.

Cornices fell from buildings, walls were cracked, plate glass windows were shattered and loosened bricks popped about on the pavement of the main business section as the first few shocks came with a rumbling roar.

Mrs. E. C. Dunham, a Brawley resident, walking in Main street, was felled by a mass of brick and mortar which crashed loose from a cornice over her head. She suffered a broken leg and body bruises and lacerations. She is expected to recover.

Automobiles staggered and seesawed about the streets as the pavements appeared to pitch and groan.

Hurled Out of Auto.

Two drivers, unidentified, lost control of the cars and collided headon. A woman was thrown through a side window of one of the machines.

Small fires starting from overturned oil stoves and other cooking and heating apparatus were quenched quickly by the fire department, which was in action soon after the first shock. The quakes continued every few minutes for nearly three hours. Business streets were roped off, members of the American Legion were placed on guard, and police and firemen with ropes dragged down loosened masonry to prevent further crashes.

After 5 o'clock the intensity of the shocks tapered off and before 6:30 o'clock the 800 foot deep silt bed which forms this agricultural district had quieted itself.

Other Towns Shaken.

Westmoreland, eight miles northwest of here, the most severely shaken of any Imperial valley town in a series of forty quakes which visited this section last Tuesday and Wednesday, was rocked intensely today, but no structural damage occurred.

The movement was intense at Calipatria, 12 miles north of Brawley, the shocks being sufficient to knock china from shelves, stop clocks and crack windows.

The Imperial county fair, being held at the town of Imperial, eight miles south of here, was not interrupted. Crowds at the fair grounds felt the jolts, but no alarm was caused.

In El Centro, county seat of Imperial county, five miles south of the town of Imperial, the quakes were severe, but a major structural damage had not been reported.

Crashing Masonry.

In Brawley the first booming jolt, a severe one, arriving without warning, brought an immediate echo of crashing masonry and clattering glass. Pedestrians betook themselves hurriedly to the center of the streets and automobiles were halted.

Persons indoors in the downtown section for the most part remained there until the first disturbance had passed. To rush to the sidewalk was to court injury from flying bricks, plaster and glass.

The second visitation, following close on the heels of the first, was less intense, but the third, in rapid succession, again was heavy, causing a further smashing of overhanging cornices.

MARCH BRINGS SNOWSTORM AND FRIGID WEATHER

Living up to tradition, March came in like a lion yesterday and last night was producing unmistakable evidence that spring is still some weeks away.

March's arrival was signalized by a drop of 13 degrees in the temperature between midnight, Friday, and 8 a. m., yesterday, when the reading was 30 degrees.

Blustery March winds swept the city all day as the thermometer dropped to 27 degrees before nightfall. Last night there came a heavy snowfall, with indications that the city would be covered with a white shroud some inches deep before morning. The official forecast called for cloudy cold weather today and fair cold weather tomorrow.

FARM BOARD STOPS BUYING AT FIXED PRICE

Emergency Passing, Legge Says.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Modification of the federal government's activities in bolstering up grain prices through the two agricultural agencies it controls with federal farm board funds was ordered yesterday. The action was taken at a special conference of Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde with the farm board, the officers of the Grain Stabilization corporation, and the directors of the Farmers' National Grain corporation in Chicago.

The change in policy, as announced by Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board after the conference, will consist in abandonment of the arbitrary loan price basis established by the board last fall. No more grain will be bought on that basis, Mr. Legge said, though loans will be made to coöperatives on the present crop until July 1.

U. S. Answers to Protests.

Following immediately a discussion in Washington with President Hoover of the recent tumultuous wheat and cotton markets, whose downward crash last week was felt in stock markets and commodity exchanges throughout the world, yesterday's action was regarded as a virtual answer of the administration to the clamor of both business and agriculture against recent activities of the farm board.

"On account of impending congestion of grain on many terminal markets and the at least measurable passing of the emergency in grain prices," Chairman Legge said last night, "we will discontinue buying grain on the arbitrary loan price basis which was established last October. The Farmers' National Grain corporation will continue to make loans to coöperatives on the present crop, however, until July 1."

To Buy at Market Prices.

Mr. Legge said further that the stabilization corporation would continue to buy grain at prevailing market prices, and if a situation should arise that demands taking grain off the market to relieve demoralization this will be done.

Loan values which were established in all principal grain exchanges last fall have since then become "out of line," Mr. Legge said, by reason of changes in terminal conditions of the country. "Some adjustment from last fall's price schedule seems necessary," he said.

Two Reasons for Change.

Two recent developments in the efforts of the farm board to reëstablish what it considers fair prices for wheat, which in turn affects corn, oats, rye, and other farm products, have brought about the government's changed policy.

One is that large stocks of grain which have been held on farms or in country elevators have been coming to market, partly from the farm board's offer to take all country run grain at its established prices, sometimes as much as 15 cents a bushel more than cash grain could be bought in the market. The other cause seems to be the approach of the time when tax assessors tour the rural areas and would find much grain in sight if it was not sent to market.

Conference Held in Secret.

Yesterday's conference was held in secret. Most of the day was taken up with discussion of complaints from western grain growing interests, it is

14 Companies, 1 Man Control: Ask Receiver

Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings charging liabilities of more than $1,000,000 were filed in the United States District court yesterday against Merrill L. Hawkins, real estate operator, and six of his partners in the Home Builders' Investment trust and thirteen affiliated organizations. The petition was filed by the law firm of Golden, Kagan & Whiteside, in behalf of Fred C. Johnson, Ernest Philipps, and Elizabeth Kleinfelder, who claim judgments amounting to $5,085.

M. L. HAWKINS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The assets of the combined organizations, with offices at 134 North La Salle street, were not listed in the petition, but were estimated by Attorney John H. Whiteside at "less than $250,000."

Six Others Are Named.

Others named in the petition with Hawkins, who lives in Park Ridge, are Harry and Rheba Burningham, James R. Morison, Gustav Nelson, George Burquist, and Esther B. Hawkins.

It is alleged they acted individually or as co-partners in conducting business under the names of trustees of the following associations and common law trusts: Home Builders of America, Home Builders' Investment trust, Guardian Finance corporation, Homerican club, Homerican Realty company, Eunice Apartment syndicate, Homesite Apartment syndicate, Homerican Villa syndicate, Mount Prospect syndicate, Metropolitan Construction company, Homerican Mortgage company, Homecroft Realty company, Homecroft Investment company, and James R. Morison company.

Sees Long Hearing Ahead.

So many points are involved in the case that it will take weeks to bring out all the facts, according to Attorney Whiteside. The fourteen organizations deal in real estate, home building, and financing, mortgage bonds, "certificates of beneficial interest" and other investment contracts, he said, and their operations are scattered throughout Chicago and its suburbs.

The claims as set forth in the petition are predicated on alleged contracts which have been held void under the provisions of the securities act, according to Whiteside. It is charged that the contracts on their face are fraudulent and would justify a judgment for the return of the money.

The petitioning creditors, Mr. Whiteside said, contracted to buy mortgage bonds, making down payments. Instead of delivering the bonds, Hawkins and his associates, it is charged, tried to induce the complainants to accept "certificates of beneficial interest" and other investments behind which there are no assets, according to the allegations. Hawkins and his associates have since refused to return the money, it is charged.

Denies Companies Insolvent.

A. H. Jones, attorney for Hawkins, last night denied that the companies are insolvent.

"The companies are in good financial condition," he declared, "and there are no obligations that cannot be met at the present time. The only difficulty is that a large part of their assets are in real estate mortgages which cannot be liquidated for two years or more without loss."

A similar case against Hawkins and the Home Builders of America was dropped last October because of an error in the wording of the complaint, after fifty-one continuances had been granted over a period of five years. The complaint was filed under the blue sky laws by G. A. Parker after dividends failed on a $2,000 investment in "certificates of beneficial interest."

TAFT MAY LIVE FOR DAY OR SO, DOCTORS HOPE

Quiet Day Follows Slight Rally.

BULLETIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(Special.)—At 11 o'clock the attending physicians reported that Mr. Taft's condition was about the same and that he almost certainly would live through the night. Dr. Hagner stated that while at 6:30 they had believed the distinguished jurist was beginning to lose ground again after his rally of today, tonight they were inclined to believe Mr. Taft may live another day or two.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Former President William Howard Taft had a quiet day after rallying slightly this morning.

It appeared tonight that the distinguished jurist might live another twenty-four hours, although attendants expect the end to come at any time.

After a 6:30 visit to the sickroom tonight, the Taft physicians left somewhat apprehensive that the slight improvement shown by their patient today was the forerunner of a sinking spell that might come tonight or tomorrow.

It was remarked today that such an improvement as was shown by the former chief justice is a phenomenon often evident only a short while before death occurs in cases similar to that of Mr. Taft, whose recovery is termed hopeless by attending physicians.

Hoovers Make Call.

President and Mrs. Hoover called at the Taft home late this afternoon on the way back to the White House from the funeral of Mrs. Lawrence Richey, wife of one of the President's secretaries, whose death yesterday saddened the entire executive household, already distressed by the imminence of Mr. Taft's death.

Whether Mr. Hoover saw the distinguished patient was not made known, although it was indicated the chief executive spoke a few words of sympathy to Mrs. Taft before returning to the White House. The President and Mrs. Hoover were accompanied by Herbert Hoover Jr., who remained outside while his parents paid their respects.

"The former chief justice has had a quiet day," the official bulletin read. 'He has taken nourishment fairly well. There has been no change for the better since this morning."

Taft in Better Spirits.

Dr. Hagner, the last of the two physicians to leave the red brick Taft residence on Wyoming avenue, said it was really hard to say how long his patient might linger on. He said that on many occasions in similar cases, patients had rallied after a long collapse, and then died. Dr. Hagner said Mr. Taft had been in better spirits than at any time for several days.

For three days, Mr. Taft had been unable to talk, but this morning he roused from his semi-comatose conditions on a half dozen occasions to speak to Mrs. Taft, his son, and his physicians. On the occasion of the second visit of Dr. Hagner, the former chief justice spoke a word of greeting and feebly held out his hand in welcome.

When Dr. Claytor knocked softly on the patient's door this morning, Mr. Taft called out weakly, "Come in."

Later the jurist recognized his son, Robert A. Taft, and spoke a few rather indistince words to him.

Often in Half Coma.

This evening, however, Mr. Taft was reported as more quiet and often in a half coma.

Attendants said Mr. Taft slept almost unbrokenly through the night and seemed to be quieter, if anything, when he roused with the coming of daylight. Throughout the day he remained only intermittently conscious, but thus far he has not lapsed into a complete coma.

The falling blood pressure during the last three days was one of the major indications to the physicians that the end of Mr. Taft's forty years of distinguished service as jurist and chief executive was near. It was impossible to tell this morning whether the moderate rise meant the slight improvement that often comes just before death or that a possibility existed that the former President's remarkable recuperative powers might keep him alive for another day or two.

The first caller at the Taft home this morning was Vice President

Charles Curtis, long a friend of the sick man. After speaking to Mrs. Taft, Mr. Curtis left for the capital. A few moments later, Msgr. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, arrived.

Not since the first days after the chief justice collapsed several weeks ago has there been so much interest evidenced in the condition of Mr. Taft. The game fight that the former President is making to live has roused the sympathy of the nation and hundreds of letters and telegrams are pouring in daily to the Supreme court and the Taft home.

The interior of the handsome brick residence where the Tafts live is filled with flowers. Dress associations and the local newspapers have been inundated for the last three days with telephone requests regarding the condition of the distinguished jurist, whose cheerfulness and ready smile not only made him personally popular with the nation at large, but especially with the citizens of the national capital.

Strolled Near Home.

It was Mr. Taft's habit to stroll through the neighborhood where he lived almost daily while he still retained his health.

For many years Mr. Taft has been subject to heart trouble. Some years ago nervous trouble developed. Recently arterial troubles have set in. He has been confined to his home since Feb. 4, when he returned to Washington from Asheville, N. C., after a vain attempt to regain his health in the south. All hope for his recovery was abandoned two days ago.

$150 A YEAR FOR EDUCATION IN JOHN D.'S SCHOOL

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 1.—[Special.]—It will cost $150 a year to educate each of the 200 pupils in the newly created Rockefeller district school in Pocantico Hills, or $53.52 more than the general average for public schools in the United States, it was estimated here today.

Instead of seeking to reduce this amount, however, John D. Rockefeller Jr. is sponsoring plans to spend more money and it is estimated that by the end of the present school year the cost will be increased to $200. Included in these plans is a new school which will cost about $300,000. Mr. Rockefeller, who owns most of the property in the school district, has agreed to pay half of the cost.

Crowds Watch Fire on Wabash Ave.; Loss $3,000

Crowds of Saturday night shoppers and theatergoers filled Wabash avenue last night and watched firemen fight a fire that attacked the fourth and fifth stories of a five-story building at 159-161 North Wabash avenue and caused $3,000 damage before it was put out. The fire apparently started in some part of the fourth floor, which is occupied by the Reliance Hat company.

APPEAL TO RICH CHICAGOANS AS TAX AID SLOWS

Campaign $13,515,800 from Its Goal.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

More than 460 telegrams are being sent to as many Chicagoans in Florida, California, Cuba, the Bahamas, and southern France to aid in redeeming Chicago's credit. The telegrams, dispatched by the rescue campaign committee headed by Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Trust company, ask that their recipients pledge funds to the Taxpayers' trust.

These Chicagoans in distant places, say the rescue campaigners, have read the derogatory news and the derisive comments in outside newspapers about their home town's fiscal predicament. They know the financial damage done and have the wealth to aid in restoring the city's credit.

Upon them and about 340 men and women of wealth now in Chicago depends the success of the drive for the $74,000,000 necessary to keep the city, the county, the public schools and the sanitary district operating until July 1.

Another Pay Day Tomorrow.

While telegrams were speeding on their way, plans were being made to pay city, county and school board employés tomorrow. The county, it was announced, will issue checks for wages up to March 1.

Yesterday was another "off" day in subscriptions to the taxpayers' trust. The total in pledges was $2,676,300. That contrasts with the $1,660,000 voluntarily subscribed before the drive was started, with the $12,735,000 pledged last Monday, the $5,955,000 on Tuesday, the $23,630,400 on Wednesday, the $10,882,500 on Thursday and the $2,945,000 on Friday.

The total subscribed in the week is $60,484,200 but this is $13,515,800 below the $74,000,000 needed to keep the four major local governments operating until July 1.

More Pledges Are Needed.

This $60,484,200 is insufficient to pay the salaries and wages of public employés for the next four months in addition to the overdue millions yet unpaid them.

"Our trade divisions' said Mr. Clarke, "are near the point where they have gotten all they can from the large corporations. The completion of the task is almost entirely up to individuals. The mere fact that an individual is connected with a large corporation which has made a splendid contribution does no relieve that person from doing his personal part.

"Some of those now out of town are responding promptly and graciously. Would that every one requested—and we are asking only those who have means—would show civic loyalty by making a good investment in the taxpayers' trust. The return of the investment is assured and the interest rate will be about 6 per cent.

Cites Bankers as Example.

"There is one bank in the loop which entered a good subscription for itself and several of the men connected with it have made individual subscriptions, totaling $350,000."

Mr. Clarke believes thoroughly in his campaign. He put himself down yesterday for a subscription of $50,000. Silas H. Strawn of the citizen's committee invested $50,000. Victor Olander, vice president of the Illinois Federation of Labor and a member of the Strawn committee, has sold himself a $500 interest in the taxpayers' trust.

In the new drive for individual subscriptions here are a few that already have been received: Robert F. Carr, $100,000; Walter H. Wilson, $100,000; Bertha Baur, $58,000; Joseph E. Otis, $50,000; Eugene V. R. Thayer, $50,000; H. H. Porter, $50,000; B. A. Eckhart, $50;000; George W. Dixon, $25,000; Judge Thomas Taylor Jr., $25,000; Alexander H. Revell, $20,000; George A. Ranney, $10,000· William R. Dawes, $5,000; Henry M. Dawes, $5,000; R. Floyd Clinch, $5,000.

Strawn Committee Cuts Expenses.

The Strawn committee, which will distribute the funds in the Taxpayers' trust, has already started to trim and pare expenses. The city, school board, county, and Sanitary district represented their requirements to Feb. 15 at $14,094,550. The Strawn committee whittled this down to $12,158,615 yesterday.

The county and the Sanitary district will obtain substantially what they represented they need. The city, however, asked for $5,755,500 and will get $4,212,000. The school board asked for $5,755,500 and will get $4,796,615, according to the present program.

The Strawn committee is ready to deal out cash to the local governments tomorrow morning. Subscriptions have been paid in which permit the committee to buy tax anticipation warrants for the years and amounts as follows:

	Year.	Amount.
Public schools	1928	$ 4,796,615
City corporate	1928	4,212,000
Cook county	1930	2,750,000
Sanitary district	1929	400,000
Total		$12,158,615

This sum, it is estimated, will permit all four governments to settle all pay rolls due up to Feb. 15. It provides $3,690,000 to pay school teachers and $1,106,615 to pay other school employés.

From its $4,212,000 the city is expected to deal out $3,700,000 to corporate employés, hand over $98,000 to the public library for its pay rolls, $129,000 to the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium for salaries, $200,000 to the beneficiaries of the policemen's pension fund, and $85,000 to the fire pensioners.

Where County Cash Will Go.

The county from its $2,750,000 plans to spend $1,873,000 for salaries, paying all employés to March 1, instead of Feb. 15. The remainder of the money is expected to go as follows: $194,000 for county hospital nursing, $225,000 for mothers' pensions, $190,000 in jurors' fees, $90,000 to industrial schools, $84,000 to the blind, $75,000 for children's home placing, $30,000 for the state's attorney's special fund, and $250,000 for the reassessment and other expenses. These items total $3,016,000, but the February fees are estimated at $266,000, so that the $2,750,000 from the Taxpayers trust will cover the allotments.

The sanitary district needs $342,000 to pay interest on bonds tomorrow.

City officials were busy signing tax anticipation warrants and other documents yesterday. The warrants then were left for Mayor Thompson's signature. However, when the city hall closed yesterday noon, the mayor had not signed the ordinance passed last Wednesday to increase the interest rate of 1928 warrants from 2½ and 4 per cent to 6 per cent. This is a prerequisite to make these warrants acceptable to the taxpayers' trust. Nor had Corporation Counsel Ettelson Ald. John S. Clark, chairman of the council finance committee, signed the application to the taxpayers' trust.

All Others Ready for Loan.

The sanitary district and county government are reported to have completed their preliminaries to a loan.

The board of education took its required action at a meeting yesterday morning. At this meeting Trustee James M. Hemingway and H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board, said that the thanks of the board are due to Trustee Lewis E. Myers, who assisted in bringing about the rescue campaign. "Debt of gratitude" was the phrase of Mr. Caldwell.

Mr. Myers said that the credit should be given to the Strawn citizens' committee. "My only criticism of the Strawn committee," he said, "was that it started out by finding fault and my efforts were mainly in trying to bring about a better understanding."

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, another trustee, prevailed upon the board to have a committee to present the needs of the board to the prospective special session of the state legislature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BREMEN, Germany, March 1.—The new German liner Europa, sister ship to the Bremen, today completed her first trial trip and proved herself able to maintain an average speed of 27.3 knots despite strong head winds. On her return one turbine was damaged but the ship nevertheless maintained a speed of 26.25 knots with only three turbines.

NORTH SUBURBS PATTERN RESCUE ON STRAWN IDEA

Hunt Cash on Warrants to Keep School Open.

Reassessment, with the attendant delay in tax collections, has apparently reduced five exclusive north shore suburbs to a financial predicament nearly as desperate as the one from which the Strawn committee is struggling to rescue Chicago.

Twenty-five leading citizens of the north shore towns, forming the suburban equivalent of the Strawn committee in Chicago, have been unsuccessful in efforts to sell tax anticipation warrants to Chicago and New York banks.

Bankers Refuse to Buy.

Despite the known probity of the village governments of Glencoe, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Wilmette, and Northfield, the New York and Chicago bankers flatly refused to take up the warrants, according to William H. Ellis of Wilmette, an attorney and chairman of the committee.

Following the example of the Strawn committee the north shore rescue group tomorrow will launch an over the counter and house to house sale of tax warrants. No goal has been set, but unless several hundred thousands of dollars are collected by the sale New Trier High school and the thirteen elementary schools in New Trier township may be obliged to close, according to Mr. Ellis.

Village Banks Coöperate.

Village banks are coöperating, each having pledged the purchase of an allotment of the warrants and having promised to handle counter sales of the warrants without charging a commission. Pledges for about $100,000 in warrant purchases have been secured by the committee.

Students at New Trier High have organized a club to aid the rescue committee. At the call of the committee the club members are pledged to peddle $100 warrants from door to door. Chairman Ellis expressed the hope that an appeal to the club would prove unnecessary.

Payment of $32,000 of February salaries to the 125 teachers at New Trier exhausted the township treasury, Mr. Ellis said. Approximately $3,000 in bills for current expenses remains unpaid and no money is in sight for the March salaries of teachers, excepting what may be secured by the sale of tax warrants.

Teachers in the elementary schools have been paid to date but none of the village treasuries will be able with present deposits to keep the schools operating longer than six weeks, Mr. Ellis said. Following is table showing the tax warrants sold and unsold in four of the five villages as figured by the rescue committee:

Village.	Sold.	Unsold.
Wilmette	$280,000	$100,000
Winnetka	325,000	152,000
Glencoe	153,300	39,700
Kenilworth	130,000	42,500

Among the committee members are: James A. Russell, vice president of the Northern Trust company, Glencoe; Harry G. Clark, vice president of the Rock Island railroad, Wilmette; Frank McClure, advertising executive, Wilmette; Col. Harry P. Harrison, Kenilworth, and Fred C. Clerk, superintendent of New Trier High school.

AMBASSADOR MOORE BEQUEATHS $100,000 TO QUEEN OF SPAIN

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 1.—[Special.]—In bequeathing $100,000 to Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain to further her charitable work, the late Alexander P. Moore, diplomat and publisher, created something of a sensation here today when the provisions of his will became known.

Surprise was registered when it was learned that his bequest to his stepdaughter, Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit, was only $1,000.

Lillian Russell in her will provided a trust fund for her only daughter from which Mrs. Calvit will receive $50 a week during her lifetime. Mrs. Calvit is now in New York.

N. Y. MAYOR WILL GIVE ST. PATRICK DAY TALK HERE

Mayor James J. Walker of New York will be the guest of honor at the 29th annual St. Patrick's day banquet of the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago, Robert E. Crowe, president of the club, announced yesterday. The banquet will be held at the Palmer house and is expected to be attended by 3,000 persons. Other speakers will be Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom and Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

Mayor Walker will arrive the morning of St. Patrick's day and will be met by the committee of 150, who will entertain him at a luncheon in the Chicago club. The visitor's talk at the banquet will be "The Day We Celebrate." Mr. Crowe will preside as toastmaster.

The New York mayor originally was to have addressed the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in New York, but that organization agreed to cancel the engagement to allow Mayor Walker to speak in Chicago.

What are "Domestic Oriental" RUGS?

Known as
Saharas, Gulistans, Karastans, Amkaras, Ardizans, Kashmirs

They are known as "Domestic Orientals" because they are exquisite reproductions of genuine Oriental rugs, carrying out with startling fidelity the designs, the colors, and the atmosphere of rugs costing many times as much. In texture, sheen and weight, these rugs vie with the true Oriental.

Do they wear well?

They will wear well because only the finest of dyes and the highest grade of carpet yarns are used in their manufacture. The wearing quality is further increased by the unusually high pile, which is firmly woven.

Why do they look like Orientals?

They look like Orientals chiefly because the designs are faithful reproductions of famous Oriental antiques found today in museums; also because they are washed in a solution similar to that in which Imported Rugs are washed. This accounts for these Domestic Rugs having a similar lustre and sheen.

What do they cost?

Because there are slight differences in their construction the prices vary. In 9x12 ft. sizes, Gulistans sell for $150; Saharas, $180; Karastans, $195; Amkaras, $195; Kashmirs, $150; and Ardizans at $127.

Why should you buy them at Richardson's?

Because our experts carefully searched the market and picked out only the best of these Domestic Orientals for our trade; because of our national reputation of more than 55 years for fine Floor Coverings; because you may buy them on our Budget Plan of monthly payments if you desire, and because we guarantee them —you should shop at Richardson's for your Domestic Oriental Rugs.

BORAH PICTURES DIRE RESULTS IF SEA PACT FAILS

Sees an Anxious World Awaiting Navy Cut.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah, radical Republican chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and little navy advocate, tonight painted a dire picture of the consequences of failure at the London naval reduction conference.

In an address broadcast nationally under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, a pacifist organization always found allied against new American naval construction, the Idaho orator asserted failure of the conference to actually reduce navies would be nothing less than a catastrophe. Unless naval reduction can be effected at London, Mr. Borah said he saw little hope for disarmament in the future.

Sees Anxious World.

Chairman Borah expressed the view the peoples of the world are anxious for reduction of armaments and concluded with the assertion that if the governments represented at London "do not sufficiently realize at this time the necessity of taking some risk in order to lift this weight of armaments from their peoples, I venture to say that in due time they will have ample notice of their mistake.

"We are told communism threatens orderly government," Mr. Borah said. "Current literature is crowded with discussions touching the lack of respect for authority, of loyalty to government upon the part of the people.

"Well, there is a reason for these things. Great periods of unrest do not come without cause. And the most fruitful cause at this time is the never ending exactions of government—and 85 per cent of these exactions are for arms, for war—among friendly nations pledged never to go to war."

Stating frankly he hoped the chances for effecting real reduction at London were better than they appeared, the "little navy" spokesman criticized the conference leaders for hesitating to cut armaments in view of the existence of the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war, the league of nations, and the Locarno pact.

Unless the London conference is a success, Mr. Borah, himself the leading senate champion of the Kellogg anti-war pact, declared the people will have but little faith in this treaty and unless in the sincerity of governments with reference to disarmaments.

"The nations assembled at this conference are the nations which lately were associated in the great war—nations friendly to each other for the soundest of reasons," Senator Borah continued. "Germany has no navy, Austria is helpless, Hungary is dismembered. Only the victorious friends are assembled.

"If these powers cannot agree to reduce their fighting forces there would indeed be little hope for disarmament in the future. The nations there assembled are in a position to dictate the policies of the world with reference to armaments and with reference to war.

All Have Signed Pledge.

"But even a more extraordinary fact relative to this gathering is this—all the powers assembled have signed a treaty—a solemn pledge each to the other, that never again will they seek settlement of international controversies through other than peaceful means, that they will not employ force, that they will not appeal to war in the settlement of international disputes.

"Here, then, are friendly nations, dominating nations, pledged not to go to war, meeting in conference to reduce armaments.

"And yet notwithstanding all this, it may not be possible, even under these most favorable circumstances, to sink a single ship or to discharge a single soldier. If, under these circumstances, it is found impossible to reduce these vast fighting machines, the people will have but little faith in the Kellogg pact and far less in the sincerity of governments with reference to disarmament."

Wants It in Open.

Chairman Borah said he would like to have the conference deliberately, completely, and absolutely in the open.

"It would be interesting to know," he continued, "just what the arguments are which make possible and seem to justify a disregard for every pledge made by the leaders of the conference. There is the league of nations, the Locarno pact, the peace pact, every conceivable means for arbitration and peaceful adjustment and every pledge which nations could possibly lay upon their conscience, and still there is maneuvering and fighting for advantage as if it were a gathering of a great aggregation of unfriendly nations, free from pledges and free from all obligations of peace."

TARDIEU JUGGLES A CABINET FROM FRENCH TANGLE

Wins Radicals with Lure of Jobs.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 2.—[Sunday.]—At 1 o'clock this morning Andre Tardieu announced that he had succeeded in forming his second cabinet, a "ministry of liquidation," which he thinks hardy enough to weather parliamentary storms for a couple of months.

Although he failed to get the radical group to agree to a truce and enter his combination officially, he did succeed in the last couple of hours of his negotiations in dragging in a couple of the biggest radicals by the heels.

New Naval Envoys.

One of them was Jacques-Louis Dumesnil, reporter for the chamber commission for naval affairs, who will take the ministry of marine and accompany M. Tardieu back to London for the naval parley negotiations. In addition to the young, energetic M. Dumesnil, in place of Georges Leygues, Francois Pietri, minister of colonies, and Vicomte de Kerguezec, president of the senate naval commission, will also go to London.

The lure of a portfolio proved too strong for seven radicals. Braving the party's edict not to cooperate in M. Tardieu's cabinet, three from the chamber and four from the senate went over to the ranks of the enemy.

So M. Tardieu will go before the chamber with a ministry which, while generally along the lines of his last, will command far more sympathy and votes from the left benches. To the wily Raymond Poincare M. Tardieu owes this victory.

Tardieu Keeps Interior Post.

Premier Tardieu keeps the ministry of the interior, to the great disgust of the radicals, who wanted to annex it and with it control the elections in 1932. His minister of justice, Raoul Peret, is a big man in radical circles. Aristide Briand remains as minister of foreign affairs.

The other ministries are filled as follows: Minister of war, Andre Maginot; minister of finance, Germain Martin; minister of budget, P. Reynaud; minister of public instruction, Pierre Marraud; minister of colonies, Francois Pietri; minister of commerce, P. E. Flandin; minister of agriculture, Fernand David; minister of posts and telegraphs, Andre Mallarme; minister of air, Laurent Eynac; minister of pensions, Champetier de Ribes.

MIAMI DEPUTIES RAID GAME WITH $73,575 TABLE

Miami, Fla., March 1.—[U.P.]—Miami's latest move against gambling took the form of a raid on a suite in a Miami Beach hotel early today. Ten deputy sheriffs found seventeen gamblers arrayed around tables on which was scattered $73,575.05.

One man had the bulk of the money. Deputy sheriffs said when they counted his roll they found $60,090 in it.

The others—there were nineteen players in all—divided the remaining $13,000 unequally among them, having rolls ranging from $5,000 down to one hapless soul, who had only 12 cents.

Only one of the men had a revolver. He was said to have been Charles Lucania, a New York gambler. Lucania also was said to have been banking the game.

New Cruiser Louisville Will Be Launched Today

Bremerton, Wash., March 1.—(AP)—The $10,000,000 cruiser Louisville, first warship of her type ever constructed at the Puget Sound navy yard and the first man o' war the United States navy ever built in dry dock, will be launched here tomorrow.

She will be hauled by a tug from her flooded dry dock. The warship will go back in dry dock to await her second and formal launching, ordered by the navy department for August.

ANGER OF "BIG 4" RISES AS FRANCE HOLDS UP PARLEY

Delegates Charge Paris Is Just Wasting Time.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—With the naval conference completely in the doldrums, the anger of the delegates of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, and Italy is rising against what an American described today as the "intolerable frivolity" of the French.

The delegates now here regard the conference as the most important political matter in the world today and they are astounded to see the French concentrating their time on what seems to London a trifling domestic crisis and endangering the success of all plans for naval disarmament.

Another Week's Delay Probable.

The latest news from Paris indicates that even if Andre Tardieu succeeds in forming a government, the French delegation cannot arrive here before Wednesday night at the earliest, and none really expects them here before Monday, March 10.

Meantime, although private negotiations are proceeding between the other powers, it is becoming increasingly evident every day that no decisions can be arrived at, as every suggestion for limiting or decreasing armaments must be conditioned by the attitude of the French.

If the French stick to the Tardieu policy, as expressed before the fall of his government, Great Britain must increase its tonnage, and America must do the same. Japan and Italy must go along. If the new French government adopts a more reasonable view, then some decrease may be possible.

Work at Standstill.

An effort has been made to work out alternative plans on the basis of each hypothesis, but this was found impracticable and the conference really is at a standstill.

The conference is at a stage where pacifist organizations are praying for it. A special service was held in Westminster abbey this afternoon, conducted by the dean of Westminster and the bishop of Chichester. The service was preceded by a procession of 200 women and half a dozen men from City Temple, in Holborn, to the abbey.

5,000 PRAY AND SING FOR PARLEY'S SUCCESS AT SERVICE IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—A monster intercession service for the success of the naval conference was held in Westminster abbey this afternoon when 5,000 men, women, and children from various churches and peace organizations marched from the city temple to the abbey. Traffic was held up in downtown streets while the demonstrators marched along with banners flying. Many of the contingents sang hymns.

Some of the banners were inscribed with "Christ and Peace Call on the Church to End War," and "Outlaw Submarines," and "Let All Powers Give Up Battleships," and "Suppress Big Gun Cruisers."

At the abbey the dean of Westminster and the bishop of Chichester made a stirring plea that the conference must not break down, and urged listeners to pray for the parley's success.

DENY OFFER TO JAPAN

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—It was denied at American delegation headquarters today that any revised proposal has been made to the Japanese delegation since the original Stimson offer to accord Japan 60 per cent of the American tonnage in cruisers and destroyers and sixty-six and two-thirds per cent in submarines.

Secretary of State Stimson declined to comment on a Tokio dispatch stating that the Americans had indicated a willingness to concede parity in submarines, 70 per cent of the American destroyer strength, and 61 per cent of America's heavy cruisers.

May Agree on Compromise.

Another member of the American delegation said that while no new offer was made Japan, there have been informal discussions of a possible compromise between the tonnage allotment proposed by Mr. Stimson and that demanded by the Japanese, which was 70 per cent of the big cruisers and parity in submarines. He expressed the opinion that satisfactory progress is being made toward an adjustment of the divergent demands on the basis of mutual concessions.

Conversations between the American and Japanese delegates were suspended today on account of the absence of Senator Reed, specialist on the Japanese problem, who with Mrs. Reed is spending the week-end as guests of Lord and Lady Astor.

Spanish Governor of Cuba in War with U. S. Dying

MADRID, Spain, March 2.—The life of Gen. Valeriano Weyler, 92 year old captain general of the Spanish army, is despaired of. The aged warrior, who will be remembered as governor general of Cuba at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, is stricken with pneumonia. Specialists tonight left little hope for his recovery.

Police Raids Continue to Cut Crime in Half

Ten robberies, less than half the number occurring on Saturday nights previous to inauguration of the police drive against crime, were reported in the 24 hour period ending at midnight last night. In the same period the police picked up 623 suspicious characters, of whom 84 were criminals with records. Four of the prisoners were found armed.

DEPORT 150 ON SPECIAL TRAIN; 10 ARE CRIMINALS

50 in Group Are from the Chicago Area.

Five carloads of aliens who misused the privileges granted them when they came to this country left Chicago last night on a special train bound for Ellis island. They will be deported to their native lands.

Among the approximately 150 deportees are 50 from the Chicago district, including 10 criminals released to immigration authorities from federal and state prisons. Three men convicted of burglary, three auto thieves, three Mann act violators, and one narcotics peddler were in the group rounded up by immigration inspectors under William Coyne, assistant director of immigration for this district.

Barred Train Heavily Guarded.

The special train, heavily guarded and made up of barred prison cars, left Seattle a week ago and has picked up aliens in Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, and other cities.

The remainder of those who joined the deportation train here either smuggled themselves into the country or refused to leave after temporary permits to enter had expired.

One of those being deported is George Kangles, a burglar, convicted several times for major crimes.

Other Criminals Deported.

Others on their way out of the country are Arnid Knutson, who was released from Joliet, and Frank Giarratano, also convicted of burglary, who had been in the state penitentiary since 1926 on a two to fourteen year sentence.

Others from Chicago.

The other Chicago criminals deported are Burgher Gilbranson, Herbert Scott, and Holger Carlson, auto thieves; Pasquale Minniti, Mann act violator; Alexander Konieczny, narcotic peddler; and Peter Falkares and Dennis Patras, keepers of disorderly houses.

Four of the deportees are going to Norway, six to Jugo-Slavia, four to Italy, seven to Poland, two to Germany, five to Greece, eight to Austria, and five to the British isles. The remainder are natives of other European countries.

THESE CRIMINALS ARE DEPORTED

GEORGE KANGLES. F. GIARRATANO. ARVID KNUTSON.

KANGLES' RECORD—March 29, 1913, three months house of correction for burglary. June 30, 1917, arrested in Cleveland for burglary and sent to South Bend; 2 to 14 years Indiana reformatory. Sept. 30, 1920, thirty days, burglary. April 20, 1921, sent to Joliet, 2 to 14 years, for burglary.

GIARRATANO'S RECORD—Feb. 25, 1926, sentenced by Judge Miller to Joliet for 2 to 14 years on plea of guilty to grand larceny.

KNUTSON'S RECORD—Sept. 18, 1925, sentenced to Joliet for one to twenty years by Judge Gemmill on plea of guilty to burglary.

POLICE SAFETY CAMPAIGN OPENS WITH LIGHT DRIVE

Police Commissioner Russell yesterday opened his 1930 safety campaign with a drive against motorists who fail to heed stop signs and signal lights and those who speed through an intersection on the amber light. All traffic police have been instructed to exert more than usual vigilance to catch offenders.

Two deaths yesterday raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 115. The victims:

Harold Moser, 23 years old, 6034 Waveland avenue. Died in St. Elizabeth's hospital of injuries received on Feb. 23 when the automobile which he was driving collided with a street car at Western and North avenues.

William Krueger Jr., 32 years old, who lived on 139th street, Blue Island, died of injuries received Friday when struck by a hit and run driver at Western avenue and 139th street, Blue Island.

A jury in Superior Judge Kavanagh's court yesterday awarded Mrs. Elna Samuelson, 29 years old, 10,223 South May street, a $5,000 judgment against the city of Chicago for injuries she received when the automobile in which she was riding struck a hole in State street near 91st street May 24, 1928. The car deflected into a pillar supporting a railroad viaduct. Mrs. Samuelson suffered injuries which have left her with a limp. She was represented by Attorney Murphy O. Tate.

Covell Postmaster Dies of Exposure After Crash

Bloomington, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—Walter Rogers, 55, postmaster of Covell, Ill., near here, was knocked unconscious and died of exposure early today when his car plunged into an icy creek, a coroner's jury decided tonight.

Rogers' body was found half submerged in the car, an hour after the accident, doctors estimated. The machine had skidded through a bridge railing and fallen eight feet into about three feet of water.

3 Persons Are Drowned as Auto Plunges in River

Lexington, Ky., March 1.—(AP)—Three persons were drowned in the Kentucky river about twenty miles from here early tonight as their automobile plunged into the stream at a ferry landing. A fourth escaped.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Garrison and George Speith, all of Lexington.

LIBERALS PREDICT LLOYD GEORGE WILL QUIT HELM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—An intriguing political situation was created by the announcement by the two leading Liberal papers, the Daily News and the Chronicle, this morning that David Lloyd George intends to resign from the Liberal leadership at a meeting of the Liberal party Wednesday. This afternoon Mr. Lloyd George issued a statement that such an announcement was entirely unauthorized, but not denying it.

The situation was created by a revolt of the Asquithian Liberals Thursday night in a critical division in the house of commons on the coal bill when the Asquithians refused to follow Mr. Lloyd George into the lobby to vote against the government. Since then two Liberal whips have resigned and the party seems to be in a state of chaos.

The Tory party is in little better shape owing to the foundation of the new empire body by Lord Rothermere and Lord Beaverbrook. The Tories are now afraid to appeal to the country. They would be certain to meet defeat owing to the splitting of the vote.

LABORER DIES OF GAS.

William Walther, 58 years old, a laborer, was found dead yesterday in his gas filled room at 1704 North Western avenue. Police believe he committed suicide.

NECKLACE OF NAPOLEON IS SOLD—$60,000

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—The diamond necklace which Napoleon Bonaparte presented to his second wife, the Empress Marie Louise of Austria, on the birth of their son L'Aiglon, was sold Feb. 10 to D. M. Michel, a New York jeweler, for $60,000, the value of the forty-seven large diamonds it contained, it was learned today.

Information of the sale came to light after the district attorney's office had been asked to conduct an investigation to determine what had happened to the necklace or to Charles L. Townsend, who held a power of attorney from Archduchess Marie Theresa of Austria.

Archduke Leopold, a nephew of the archduchess, who lives in East 56th street, said tonight he had been a witness to the transaction, which was in perfect order. He explained Mr. Michel bought the necklace merely for the monetary value of the diamonds and not for its historical value, and had promised to return the setting to him or to the archduchess when the necklace was dismounted. The necklace was originally appraised at $400,000.

Former G. O. P. Treasurer Seeks Sen. Phipps' Post

Denver, Colo., March 1.—(AP)—William V. Hodges, former treasurer of the Republican national committee, tonight said he would present his name for consideration to the party's state convention next summer as a candidate for the seat of United States Senator Lawrence C. Phipps.

Phipps recently announced he would not seek reflection. His term expires in March, 1931.

SCHOLLE'S semi-annual Sale

Offers a notable collection of fine furniture for your living room.

DURING the coming week our entire first floor will be devoted exclusively to a showing of fine living room furniture purchased by Scholle's from the sample floors of the best known manufacturers. Because they are samples, very few of these pieces can be duplicated . . . and every one of them is priced at a figure that will interest any one who appreciates genuine furniture values.

Included in this showing are pieces and ensembles in a wide range of prices representing almost every well-known style of period design. French, English, Italian and Spanish furniture of the Gothic, Renaissance and more modern eras is offered in an almost endless variety, ranging from the very simplest to the most elaborate reproductions of famous pieces. Severely simple lines are found in contrast with the most ornate hand-carving, while magnificent imported Aubusson and French damask fabrics are mingled with the more familiar tapestries, brocades and velours. This may be truly said of every piece; that it is a bargain in fine furniture.

There is in this exhibit some thing that will exactly fulfill your requirements. Whether the piece you select is modest in price or one of the most costly, you may be assured of this—that it is a genuine Scholle bargain guaranteed to prove satisfactory in every detail of design and finish. THIRD PRIZE PERSONALITY GIRL NAMED Michigan Miss Gets a Check for $1,000.

BY ELEANOR NANGLE.

Lansing, Mich., March 1.—[Special.]—Miss Janet Gay of Jackson, Mich., whose color picture decorates page 1 of THE TRIBUNE rotogravure section, was the enthusiastic owner today of a check for $1,000. The sum is the award as third major prize winner in THE TRIBUNE'S recently concluded personality contest.

The formal presentation of the award, which took place yesterday morning in the capitol building here, was an affair of some pomp and circumstance, nicely leavened by the wit of Gov. Fred W. Green, who handed Miss Gay the check in his office on the second floor of the statehouse.

Standing at his huge desk in the somber, high ceilinged room, hung with portraits of former state executives, Gov. Green congratulated the dainty young prize winner and expressed great pride in the achievement of a Michigan miss. He teased her, too, professing awe at the check's four figures, and laughingly suggested they spend it together.

$1,000 Personality.

Janet's thousand dollar personality was reflected in her face as she twinkled back at him, simulating maidenly confusion. Mrs. Green's presence in the background, she said, made the right answer to that rather difficult. Then there were flashlights and more gayety, but the purpose of the ceremony was not defeated. Janet Gay, an 18 year old Michigan girl, had been awarded a signal distinction.

THE TRIBUNE'S announcement of its quest for personality last October was answered by an avalanche of mail, which brought in more than 70,000 photographs before the close of the contest in Janury. Prizes were awarded solely on the basis of personality, each photograph being carefully analyzed by an expert characterologist.

Miss Gay had been chosen because analysis of her features revealed her as the possessor of personality of outstanding quality. When her picture was published Jan. 12, on which occasion she was awarded $100, the character analysis described her as one whose face expressed all the qualities of wholesome youth, a happy disposition, imagination, vitality, sociability, and a facile mind.

All That and More.

Janet is all that and more. The good fairy who dispenses charm to the human race must have been in a particularly lavish mood when she gave Miss Gay her round, animated face, her piquant nose, sparkling dark eyes, and rose petal complexion. Janet probably wouldn't agree about the complexion—she doesn't think it's so rose petalish. There is a captivating sprinkling of light freckles across her forehead that disturbs any complacency she might justifiably have concerning her good looks.

Her hair is a rich brown, heavy and glossy, and it is unbobbed. Janet is the answer to the modiste's prayers where figure and grace are concerned; she is quite slim, five feet four inches tall, and can wear the new silhouette to perfection. Yesterday she wore a demure frock of green, with shoulder cape and circular skirt, and a frilly white collar at the round neck.

A happy heritage from her French mother are her deep brown eyes, heavily fringed with black lashes. Janet's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gay, are, of course, overjoyed at their daughter's achievement. Her father is going to treasure her color picture, he says.

Shy and Breathless.

Janet herself is a bit shy and breathless at the knowledge Doris Blake found her personality worth a thousand dollars and at the ownership of the thousand. She doesn't know what she'll do with it, but she's strongly tempted to buy a car.

Of all the things she enjoys—she has an enormous zest for life—dancing comes first. Next come outdoor sports, horseback riding, swimming, and tennis. Jackson is the nicest place in the world in which to live, she thinks; the small lakes around it provide the summer and winter sport that she loves.

She isn't very domestic, she admits. Dates? O, yes, lots of them. Marriage? "Not for ages," says she.

Lives with Parents.

Janet lives with her parents and a younger sister in a house at 221 Homecrest road in Jackson. She finished high school just recently and now spends her days in idleness, waiting for school to open in the fall. For college she wants to go east—she got her taste of that last year when she went to a girls' camp in New Hampshire and thinks she'd like to go to school there.

She can drive anything on wheels and has to be restrained from speeding, she admits. One of her ambitions is to own and be able to drive an extremely high powered car. She's one of those healthy, vivacious youngsters to whom the word "nerves" is so much Greek.

Next Sunday the identity of the second grand prize winner will be revealed, and her picture, full page size and in natural colors, will grace the first page of the rotogravure section.

WINNING WAYS NET $1,000

Miss Janet Gay, Jackson (Mich.) high school girl, receives from Gov. Fred Green of Michigan The Tribune's check for $1,000 and glowing words of praise for her success in competition with 70,000 other girls of Chicagoland. Miss Gay was awarded third grand prize in The Tribune's "Personality" contest. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

$6,000 Counterfeit Bills Sought in Twin Cities

Minneapolis, Minn., March 1.—(AP)—Federal secret service operatives were conducting a search tonight for a cache of $6,000 in spurious $10 bills, believed to be hidden in the Twin cities, after the arrest of Joe Cittandino, well known to police here.

DEMAND AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS OF MISSING JUDGE

Claims Feron's Absence Is Political Ruse.

A demand that the records of fines collected by James M. Feron, missing Oak Park police magistrate, be opened to the public for examination was made yesterday by Mrs. Carl C. Peterson, 631 North Humphrey street, Oak Park, club leader and campaign manager for J. Edward Jones, attorney, who is opposing Feron for reelection.

Mrs. Peterson, who charged that Feron's mysterious disappearance was merely a political ruse to arouse sympathy among the voters, said that she would present a petition demanding an accounting to Charles H. Crysler, village president, tomorrow and that she would also lay the case before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki as a result of attempts to disqualify Jones as a candidate. The attempt to disqualify Jones was made by Hugh Walters, an Oak Park newspaper publisher, who filed a petition with Harry Leederman, the village clerk, asking that Jones be withdrawn from the magistrates' race.

Charges Illegal Notice.

Walters contended that Jones' candidacy was illegal because he had filed his official notice late Tuesday night at Leederman's home instead of taking it to the village hall during the day. As soon as Mrs. Peterson had learned of Walters' move, a group of club women under her leadership sent a telegram to Crysler asking that he assume a neutral attitude toward the magistrates' race.

She charged that Walters, Crysler and other village officials had engineered Feron's disappearance under the pretense that he was suffering from a nervous breakdown from overwork in his office in order to enable them to create sentiment in his favor. Crysler, however, insisted that Feron had suffered a nervous collapse but continued to throw an air of mystery around his whereabouts.

"Accounts Are Board's Affairs."

"I refuse to discuss Magistrate Feron's affairs," he said when asked whether the records of police fines would be examined. "That is the business of the board of trustees."

Mrs. Feron was absent from her home at 843 South Ridgeland avenue and a man who said he was her nephew announced that she had gone to visit relatives "to avoid inquiries and newspaper men."

Feron has not been seen since Thursday morning. Reports persisted that there was some reason behind his sudden departure other than illness. He is the only candidate for reelection who has opposition in the village election.

NAMED AS ENVOY

JOHN N. WILLYS.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—The name of John N. Willys of Toledo, O., the automobile manufacturer, was sent to Poland today by President Hoover for approval as American ambassador to that government.

The White House declined to make public the selection of the successor to the late Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburgh, pending formal approval by the Warsaw government, but it was learned reliably that Mr. Willys has been chosen.

Mr. Willys has been in line for an ambassadorial appointment by President Hoover for some time. With a view to entering the foreign service he disposed of his automobile business some time ago.

4 BANDITS ROB GROCERY; LOCK 3 WOMEN IN ICE BOX

Four colored robbers walked into the grocery and meat market of David Weinberg at 6001 South State street last night and pointed pistols at Weinberg, his wife, and two customers, Mrs. Sarah Smith, 6115 Wabash avenue, and her daughter, Rose, 19 years old. From Miss Smith the bandits took $6 and then forced the three women to enter the ice box. Weinberg protested that the atmosphere in the ice box was too cold for his health, and one of the robbers struck him unconscious with a pistol butt. Then the bandits scooped $182 from the cash register and fled.

A few minutes later two armed Negroes held up Miss Belle Toal and Miss Harriet Smith in their delicatessen at 1034 East 65th street and escaped with $85.

CONVICT QUITS CELL RICHER BY $1,500,000

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Charles T. Davis, who had a modest surgical appliance business in Brooklyn eight years ago when he started to pay the penalty for the killing of Detective Joseph J. Bridgetts, was expected in New York tonight to share a $3,000,000 fortune with his wife, who recently sold the business for that figure, after she had managed it while Davis was in prison, and built it into a large and profitable concern. Davis was paroled from Clinton prison at Dannemora, N. Y., after serving eight years of a ten to twenty year sentence.

Davis' modest business in Brooklyn was made over by his wife, following the crime, and she increased it many times. When she sought to sell it recently her husband attempted to obtain a court order restraining her, but the petition was denied, and she obtained $3,000,000 from the purchaser. This she must share with her ex-convict husband.

Dyer Would Repeal His Own Auto Theft Bill

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—Because he believes many federal district attorneys have been misusing the automobile theft act sponsored by him, Representative Dyer [Rep., Mo.] introduced a bill today to repeal it.

Addressing the house recently, Mr. Dyer said the act was directed toward commercial automobile thieves who disposed of machines taken from one state to another. He contended that under it, instead, district attorneys were prosecuting young boys who had taken automobiles for joy riding purposes.

Maj. Lanphier to Head Nebraska Aviation School

Omaha, Neb., March 1.—(AP)—Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier, famous aviator and former commander of Selfridge Field, Mich., is to head an aviation college at Bellevue, Neb., ten miles south of Omaha, it was announced late today at a dinner given in the major's honor by forty Omaha business men.

$200,000 Fire in Business Area of Little Rock, Ark.

Little Rock, Ark., March 1.—(AP)—Fire which demolished the Davis Prieur Produce company building here and damaged other concerns in the wholesale district tonight caused a loss estimated at $200,000. A high wind threatened for a time to spread the blaze over the wholesale district.

DOCTORS PRAISE INSTITUTE, CRUX OF MEDICAL WAR

Work Upheld by Experts in Social Diseases.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

The Public Health institute, a social disease clinic which for nine years has been under the ethical ban of the Chicago Medical society, was given high praise in a report of three noted physicians, made public yesterday.

The report, signed by the three men nationally known as experts in social hygiene, finds that the institute is honestly operated; that it provides better treatment than was available through the average family doctor; that the cost of the treatment to the patient is far less, and that the institute, with certain improvements, should be in operation.

Schmidt Appeal Is Pending.

It is expected that the report will bring to a crucial point the celebrated dispute in the medical world, precipitated when the Chicago Medical society ousted Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, one of its most noted members, because he was indirectly connected with the Public Health institute.

Dr. Schmidt's case, which is now pending on appeal before the American Medical association, was strengthened at the time by the resignation from the society, in sympathy with his ideals, of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, coroner and former health commissioner.

Dr. Schmidt and Coroner Bundesen argued that the Public Health institute was ethical, and that the low cost of its treatment pointed the way to a general reduction in the cost of medical treatment for other diseases.

On the other side the leaders of the Chicago Medical society argued that the institute, through advertising and "mass production" methods, was undermining the economic welfare of the general practitioners, and that such competition was unethical and unfair.

Visitors Make Investigation.

The three physicians who investigated the institute, and reported on its usefulness, are Dr. Harold N. Cole, professor of syphilis and dermatology at Western Reserve university, Cleveland, and a leading syphilologist; Dr. Edwin L. Keyes, professor of urology at Cornell university medical college; and Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., assistant surgeon general of the United States public health service in charge of the division of venereal disease, who will soon take office as commissioner of health of the state of New York.

The investigation by these visiting experts was made on behalf of the medical advisory board of the institute which consists of seven recognized leaders in the medical profession in Chicago.

The findings of the three, together with the recommendations of the medical advisory board for the continued operation of the institute, have been submitted to the Chicago Medical society. It is the hope of the leaders behind the Public Health institute and of others interested in reducing the cost of medical care that the society will now accept the principle of the institute and receive it into the fold of ethical medicine.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, chairman of the medical society's committee on public relations, to whom the reports have been presented, was out of the city yesterday and it was impossible to get his views on the society's attitude toward the findings. Dr. Cutter is dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

Advertising to Be Modified.

The advertising policy of the institute will be continued with modifications, it appeared from the recommendations of the medical advisory board. This board was formed through the efforts of Dr. Michael Davis, medical director of the Julius Rosenwald Foundation, which is interested in solving the problem of the high cost of being sick. Its members are Drs. Joseph A. Capps, Charles Elliott, Walter Hamburger, Ludvig Hektoen, Ernest E. Irons, Joseph L. Miller, and Arthur D. Black.

The board of trustees of the institute, which consists of a number of leading Chicago laymen, has approved the advisory board's report, which includes the following suggestion on advertising:

"That the advertisements of the institute be modified so as to omit implications that other than venereal conditions are treated, and laudation of the institute, and to include a statement urging that medical care should be secured within the patient's means, naming various recourses, including the family physician."

Although it is not stated in the report, it was learned that the institute's advertising will continue to describe the treatment given and the schedule of fees charged.

Savings to Patients Shown.

Dr. Parran of the committee of three visiting investigators disclosed the results of a survey made under his direction in Chicago to determine the cost of treating venereal diseases.

"The cost of the first year's treatment of a patient with a typical case of acute syphilis," the report stated, "at the rates charged at the institute, comes to $185.50." He said the same treatment in a practitioner's office would range from $332 to $525.

The costs of treating gonorrhea in the institute, Dr. Parran found, is $57, while a physician would charge from $109 to $158.

The position of Dr. Schmidt was that the institute provided treatment, because of its low cost, to patients who otherwise would have gone to quacks, and who could not afford a reputable physician. Reporting on the economic status of the Public Health institute's patients, Dr. Parran stated:

"A study of more than 1,000 cases is under way. At the date of presenting this report, 200 cases had been tabulated. Of these, half had annual incomes of less than $1,480; one-quarter had incomes of less than $1,060; one-quarter had incomes of over $1,950. There were only 18 of the 200 cases with incomes of over $2,500 a year."

Efficiency Is Praised.

Dr. J. G. Berkowitz, who founded the institute, has been its director ever since. His success is indicated in the following excerpt by Dr. Parran:

"One of the most impressive things about the institute is the administrative efficiency which seems to prevail. Savings in purchases by the use of wholesale methods undoubtedly have contributed much to financial success. Efficiency in conserving the time of the physician, and yet affording some degree of personal contact, the privacy with which the patient's treatments are surrounded, the general cleanliness and orderliness of the place was most impressive."

Balanced against the praise of the physicians' reports, are criticisms of the failure of the institute to follow up cases of patients who have failed to continue treatment, and of providing for research, for appraising the results of the physicians' work, and for certain medical shortcomings.

With regard to the personnel of the institute, Dr. Parran reported:

"Considering the fact that persons connected with the institute are excluded from membership in the Chicago Medical society, and that its employment difficulties thereby are increased, I was favorably impressed with the character of the medical personnel. There are some exceptions to this rule as would be the case in any organization. The men seemed interested in their work and some of the physicians seemed well above the average in ability."

One charge made by some physicians against the institute was that it led patients into treatment even if there was no disease present. On this charge the report of Dr. Keyes says:

"The most striking evidence of an effort to serve the patient and not merely to carry him on for visit after visit is the large number that are classified as "No Disease Found." Many cases were promptly dismissed, yet they were almost all of that type of patient that is most amenable to 'come again' suggestion. This is the class of cases that sharply distinguishes the Public Health Institute from a quack clinic."

Run on Honest Basis.

The reports of Drs. Cole and Keyes dealt chiefly with the technique of the institute treatment, but all three physicians agreed upon the following conclusions:

1. The Public Health Institute appears to be run on an inherently honest basis.

2. The service rendered is of a lower grade than that of the best university clinics, but it is superior to that of the average public clinic or of the average general practitioner.

3. The outstanding item of credit to the institute is that it is the largest veneral disease clinic in this country, and has demonstrated the possibility of giving diagnosis and treatment on a large scale and on a more economic basis than has been possible elsewhere. The efficiency of treatment could nevertheless be materially increased.

It was also found that the attitude of the institute toward patients who cannot pay the usual fee is reasonably generous and that the great bulk of the clientele is drawn from a small income group.

Shortcomings Are Listed.

The major shortcomings of the clinic are:

1—The treatment of a certain proportion of nonvenereal cases.

2—Unnecessary procedures, the results of which are ignored in the treatment of the patients.

3—Deficiencies in the case records. The records for the two venereal diseases are filed separately, so that a physician treating one condition does not know the treatment given the same patient by another physician. There is no diagnostic file, and no record is kept of lapsed cases.

4—Deficiencies from the public health standpoint, there being a lack of follow-up of lapsed infectious cases, and of family contacts and sources of infection.

5—Insufficient clinical judgment in the interpretation of routine procedures.

6—Lack of provision for the analysis of the work and for self-development of the professional staff through staff conferences, devoted mainly to clinical discussion; through systematic review of cases and their classification by disposition as cured, lapsed, etc.; through medical library facilities, and reports and publications.

Staff Additions Demanded.

The recommendations of the medical advisory board of the institute, based largely on the report of the three visiting physicians, included suggestions that a competent dermato-syphilologist and a competent urologist be appointed on the full time staff, to be in professional charge of their respective branches of work. It is further recommended:

"That the practice of the clinic be reviewed with the aim of restricting the treatment to patients having a venereal disease or complication, and of restricting the diagnostic examination to the purpose of discovering venereal disease.

"That the cardiovascular service be continued as a reference service only.

"That the laboratory be placed under professional supervision complying with the standards of the American Medical association.

"That careful consideration be given to the defects noted in the conclusions of the three visiting investigators and such changes be made as will improve the service.

"That the facilities of the institute be made available and be utilized as fully as possible for the education of the medical profession and the public.

"That reports and publications be made from time to time, a qualified person being employed for the purpose of developing systematic reports of the disposition and results of cases, indexing and analysis of work."

TWO MERCHANTS FIGHT GUN BATTLE WITH BANDIT PAIR

Two bandits who held up a Hyde Park druggist and robbed his postal substation safe of $150 yesterday commandeered a passing automobile and escaped in a running gun battle with their victim and another merchant, who came to his assistance. One of the robbers was believed to have been wounded.

The gunmen entered the store of Samuel Kramer at 1001 East 53d street and, after taking a revolver from him, forced him to open the safe. They then pushed him into a washroom and walked out. Kramer, who had been robbed before and was prepared for bandits, grabbed a second gun in the washroom and took another from a drawer as he followed the bandits to the street.

When he reached the door he began firing, the gunmen taking refuge behind a parked laundry truck. The firing attracted Alfred Shames from his confectionery at 1010 East 53d street and he joined in the battle. The robbers huddled behind the truck, returning the merchants' fire, until Lester Sturdy, 8029 Maryland avenue, drove past in an automobile. They leaped into the car and drove away, after forcing Sturdy from the machine. Shames said one of the bandits slumped over in the seat as they sped away. The police found Sturdy's car abandoned at 48th street and Ellis avenue.

Scientists Find Insect to Fight Boll Weevil

Athens, Ga., March 1.—(AP)—Announcement was made today at the University of Georgia that Dr. J. H. Miller, professor of botany, and George Crisfield, a collaborator, have discovered an insect that may prove an antidote to the boll weevil. It is called the bracon mellitor. The insect itself previously has been known, but Dr. Miller has found that it is a parasite on the boll weevil and does not injure the cotton.

AMANULLAH GETS BACK HIS THRONE, BUT LOSES QUEEN

Reveal Inside Story of Afghanistan Tangle.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—Amanullah Khan, former king of Afghanistan, who was forced to abdicate on Jan. 14, 1929, in the face of a revolt against his attempt to modernize the nation, has bene summoned by his people to return to his throne. This latest development in the disordered affairs of the country came at a jirgah, or council meeting of the leaders of the Afghan tribes, to review the circumstances under which Amanullah was forced to flee his capital. Under the decision of the jirgah, Nadir Khan, the present king, will be retained as prime minister. Amanullah is now at Istanbul, Turkey.

The demand for Amanullah's return follows confessions by two governors of important Afghan provinces that the stories about Amanullah which led to the revolt were untrue. These stories were that Amanullah had acceded to the demands of his queen, Souriya, that Catholic priests be invited to Kabul as the first step in Catholicizing the country. This report received credence since the queen was educated at a Catholic convent.

Condemned to Death.

The governors, who were tried by a jirgah, admitted that they had spread the story of the imminent Catholicization of Afghanistan, and admitted also that it was without basis. They were condemned to death.

As a result of Queen Souriya's part in the affair, THE TRIBUNE is informed, the royal romance is at an end. The first advice of Nadir Khan, the new prime minister, on matters of state will be that Souriya remain in Europe and Amanullah return alone. Amanullah will choose his throne in preference to Souriya.

When Amanullah went to Istanbul to await the call to return to Kabul, Queen Souriya was left behind in Europe. It is almost certain that she will never return to him. They are separated as completely now as a Moslem couple can be without an actual divorce, and that is likely to follow. Nor will any one be surprised if the news of the final separation is closely followed by Souriya's conversion to Catholicism.

Meanwhile, at Istanbul, following the alliance between Russia and Turkey to help Amanullah regain his throne, negotiations are now going on between the Persian ambassador to Turkey and Amanullah in regard to the marriage of Amanullah's daughter with Shahpur Riza, the Persian crown prince. Amanullah also will be linked up with Turkey through the contemplated marriage of his sister to President Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

The story goes that Persia, also anxious to shake off the rule of the mullahs (Mohammedan priests) in the process of modernizing the country, is willing to join Turkey, whose present modernistic tendencies have changed the whole atmosphere of Turkish life, in supporting Amanullah. The three rulers believe that their modernizing campaigns will succeed better if they are united than if working separately.

THE YELLOW KID RETURNS HOME

MR. WEIL'S BACK, A NEW MAN, IF YOU'D ASK HIM

"Yellow Kid" Has Vision of Business Career.

Back to town last night, in a swirling snow storm, came Chicago's softest spoken confidence man, Mr. Joseph Weil, the "Yellow Kid" himself, minus an overcoat, devoid [he said] of his old "taking" ways, and shorn of his golden beard, debarked at the Dearborn street station on his return from Leavenworth penitentiary, where he has spent the best part of five years.

There was no official reception committee, but a crowd of the curious gathered in an instant when the news went around, gave loud hurrahs and the station roof echoed to the boom of photographers' flashlights. Mr. Weil shyly shielded his countenance from the cameras with a purple bordered hondkerchief.

"Through with Rackets."

"I am through with the rackets," said the Kid, "in that near palace which some call a prison, I have been spiritually and physically rejuvenated. Joe Weil asks nothing more than to be allowed to go straight. I shall enter business, I shall accept one of the four offers which have been tendered me—bonds, real estate, restaurant business or delicatessen—and my only future contact with the courts will be when I go there to use the phone."

The Kid's mouth now supports a "Kaiser" mustache, the ends uptilted militantly. He wore a black derby, starched shirt and flowing cravat of modest black, a dark gray business suit with silk piping, spats, gray socks and black shoes. On one hand was a gray glove, the other held its mate and the protecting handkerchief. His glasses were attached to a black silk cord.

Mr. Weil elaborated enthusiastically on the prison.

"A veritable haven for shattered men," he exclaimed. "Look what it did for me! I am now on the wagon, no more am I a near psychopathic case, and I may truthfully say that the man who perjured himself that I might go to the penitentiary actually added years to my life. I have seen the error of my ways.

His a "Noble Mission."

The Kid has been a hospital orderly during most of his term. "Caring for the sick is a noble mission," he said. "Dr. Cook [the arctic explorer] and I have been administering to the helpless together. A beautiful character Dr. Cook." [Dr. Cook is expected to be released from the prison on March 5, after serving a term for mail fraud in connection with an oil promotion scheme.]

"Did he convince you that he discovered the north pole, Joe?" Weil was asked.

"Convince?" quoth Joe. "I am certain of it!"

The Kid reported fully on the activities of other Chicagoans now doing time at Leavenworth. Former Congressman Charles S. Wharton is managing the chicken farm, Virgil Litzinger is a store clerk and John ["Red"] Flannery is similarly occupied, he said.

The latter three are in prison for participating in the Evergreen Park mail robbery, Joe himself handled some of the securities stolen in the Roundout mail robbery.

No members of the Kid's family were at the station.

"My wife," Joe said, clearing his throat, "well, it's a matter of showing her that I am what I am. My brother, Ike [bailiff to Judge David], will not be where I am, if I know it first. And now I'll leave you." The gloved hand fluttered for a taxi, and the "Yellow Kid," shivering slightly, set out for a hotel.

A Bit of History.

As far back as 1906 police records classified the "Yellow Kid" as "a confidence man of unusual cleverness." For a time in the early '20s he arose to considerable affluence and was credited with selling Grant park regularly to visitors from smaller communities. But the "Kid" slipped after a time and stooped to passing bad checks for paltry sums. He was charged with defrauding his friends of insignificant sums and his blunders in handling the Roundout securities finally sent him to Leavenworth, estranged from his wife, sued by his own brother, adjudged a psychopathic case with the mentality of a 16 year old boy (when his age was then more than 50).

Wounded Robber and Pal Are Held to Grand Jury

Joseph Durham, 22 years old, 8033 Muskegon avenue, and Leo Szlabiewski, 24 years old, 8134 Burnham avenue, who was wounded by the police when the pair were captured in a stolen automobile several weeks ago, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Samuel Heller in the South Chicago court on charges of robbery, assault to kill, and stealing an automobile. Their bonds were fixed at $65,000 each.

NINE CAPTAINS TRANSFERRED IN POLICE SHIFTS

Follows Records Made in Gunman Drive.

Nine police captains were shifted to new station commands yesterday in a transfer order issued by Commissioner of Police Russell. Seven lieutenants, three sergeants, and three patrolmen were also included in the shift, which was explained in part by the return of a number of men from their assignments at the state's attorney's office.

The failure of some captains to obtain results in the recent police drive on armed gunmen was reported to be another explanation of the transfer.

Capt. Daniel A. Lynch of the Austin district was replaced by Capt. Charles L. Larkin, who is said to have thoroughly cleaned up the Fillmore street area. A squad from Deputy Commissioner Ira J. McDowell's office recently arrested a number of O'Donnell gangsters in the Austin district.

Pay Day Is Factor.

Another possible cause for the shifts was seen in the fact that routine transfers have been delayed during the payless period of the police to avoid confusion in the handling of checks on the next pay day.

The captains transferred and their former and new commands are as follows:

Alfred C. Christenson, West Chicago to East Chicago.
Lake J. Garrick, East Chicago to West Chicago.
Charles L. Larkin, Fillmore to Austin.
Daniel A. Lynch, Austin to Fillmore.
Patrick Kelliher, Detective bureau to Canalport.
William P. Kennedy, Canalport to Morgan Park.
David C. Fitzgerald, Morgan Park to Detective bureau.
Patrick Gallery, Des Plaines to East Side.
John B. Enright, East Side to Des Plaines.

The lieutenants transferred and their former and new districts are as follows:

George De Mar, Summerdale to East Chicago.
William A. Gainer, Englewood to Chicago Lawn.
Michael J. Moran, Chicago Lawn to Englewood.
Joseph Piereth, Grand Crossing to South Chicago.
Howard Ryley, Woodlawn to Grand Crossing.
George A. Teeling, Maxwell to Woodlawn.
Philip Parodi, Sheffield to Maxwell.

Capt. Garrick was stationed at Warren avenue after Capt. William Shoemaker was loaned to the state's attorney. Shoemaker is now back on regular duty. Other shifts were necessary, according to the police, to compensate for the return of Capt. Shoemaker and others.

ATLANTA GRAFT INQUIRY JURORS INDICT OFFICERS

Atlanta, Ga., March 1.—(AP)—Nineteen persons, including six city councilmen, one alderman and several present and former city officials, were indicted tonight by a Fulton county grand jury which has been investigating charges of graft in Atlanta city government.

The jury charged collusion of other public officers, who were not indicted, and demanded that several city employés be removed from office.

The mayor, Ike Ragsdale, several members of the city council, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools; Business Manager Richey of the public schools, and others were criticized severely by the grand jury.

Ask for Food

A 17 year old boy and girl from Milwaukee walked hand in hand into the Des Plaines street police station yesterday and told police they were both hungry and desperately in love and could they have something to eat? Four months of hardship since their elopement had failed to dim romance for them.

Last night the boy, Edward Jones Jr., was in a Des Plaines street station cell, and the girl, Edith Williams, also 17 years old, was in the West Chicago avenue station.

Edward and Edith packed all their belongings and set out from their homes in the middle of the night, Oct. 29, hitch-hiking to Fond du Lac. Immediately they got a license, but Wisconsin's eugenics law required that they wait five days before they were married. Meanwhile a newspaper story was published, they said, reporting them missing, and the license clerk refused to give them the license.

ABLIN DENIED LICENSE TO OPEN NEW CABARET

Whoopee hunters who have been looking to David [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin for their amusement were forced to go elsewhere last night following an order by the police that the Club Algiers, 657 St. Clair street, bombed Friday night, should not be reopened at 20 East Adams street, as announced by Ablin.

Because of Ablin's record in connection with the Mid-West Garage Owners' association, the Epicure club, recently closed by injunction, and the Club Algiers, Deputy Commissioner Martin E. Mullin and Capt. Daniel Gilbert insisted that no license be granted for the club in the proposed new location. Lieut. Louis Klatzco instructed a detail to permit no one to enter the place.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION FIGHT TO SAVE REDS BARED

Attorney Tells of Parley with Swanson.

It was revealed last night that the American Civil Liberties union, which specializes in the defense of radicals, threw its influence and its local counsel into the fight to save six Chicago communist leaders, charged with sedition and robbery with a gun, whose cases were dismissed before the grand jury.

The "no bills" were voted by the grand jury at the request of the state's attorney's office, on Feb. 21, but this did not come to light until Friday, when the Chicago crime commission revealed the secret action.

And yesterday the hand of the Civil Liberties union, with William Z. Foster, apostle of communism and agent of the Russian soviets on its national committee, was disclosed. The union entered the case as soon as Municipal Judge Allegretti, after hearing testimony offered by Assistant State's Attorney Everett O. Hutchins, held the six men and one boy to the grand jury in $15,000 bonds on the two charges.

Lawyer Sees Prosecutors.

The Chicago law firm of Butler, Lamb, Foster & Pope, representing the Civil Liberties union, at once received instructions from the headquarters in New York to look after the interests of the reds. And Attorney Arthur W. Fisher, a member of the firm, who has been accused of pacifistic leanings, went to see State's Attorney John A. Swanson and his first assistant, John E. Northup.

While Mr. Fisher was conferring with the state's attorney and his men, the Civil Liberties union in its official bulletin, No. 378, issued on Nov. 15, 1929, was telling its supporters about the case. The bulletin said:

"Following protests by the Chicago attorneys for the American Civil Liberties union against exhorbitant bail, six Chicago communists, arrested for alleged sedition and robbery of a labor spy, have been released in $1,500 bail. The original bail in these cases was $15,000.

"The Chicago attorneys for the American Civil Liberties union are working to obtain the dismissal of the charges before they come to the grand jury."

Reds Accused of Robbery.

The reds arrested were C. A. Hathaway, Nels Kjar, Sarn Milgrom, Frank Borich, Stefan Zinish, and Edward Stevens, all holding high posts in the local branch of the communist party of the United States.

They were arrested early in October on allegations that they beat Irving Billig, threatening to mutilate him, and at the point of revolvers robbed him of $41 on the night of Sept. 9. Billig had been a member of the communist party. They suspected him of being a "stool pigeon."

The six men and Irving Herman, an 18 year old boy, who took part in the robbery and assault, were held to the grand jury by Municipal Judge Allegretti on Oct. 22. The case appeared to have been forgotten, the crime commission reports said, until the commission's investigators on Feb. 20 inquired at the state's attorney's office about them. An assistant state's attorney then took the cases before the grand jury and asked for "no bills."

Explains Union's Action.

Attorney Fisher last night explained the interest of the Civil Liberties union in the cases. He named a man whom he said was a well known "Red baiter," and added:

"The union knew this man was behind the prosecution. We, as lawyers for the union, discussed the cases with a dozen of the best known lawyers in the city, men who could not possibly have any charge of being in sympathy with radicals brought against them.

"We then decided we would step in to see that the Reds got a fair and impartial trial, that they got bail if they were in jail; that they were not made martyrs of and that they were treated in such a way as to give them no reason to believe in violence as their means to an end.

"I conferred with Mr. Swanson on the cases, setting forth these things. I didn't know the cases had been 'no billed' until I read it in the paper this morning and I was rather surprised."

The American Civil Liberties union has many pacifists on its rolls.

138 Reds Arraigned.

A company of 138 Reds lined up yesterday in Municipal Judge George B. Holmes' Des Plaines street court for arraignment on charges of inciting duct. Most of them had been in cells since they were arrested at a meeting in a hall at Halsted and Adams streets, last Wednesday. Eleven of the women were charged merely with disorderly conduct, but three others—Lydia Oken, 19 years old; Ethel Beran, 23 years old, and Dorothy Lipschitz, 38 years old—were charged with inciting to riot.

Attorney Albert Goldman obtained the dismissal of the vagrancy charges, leaving only disorderly conduct charges standing against the defendants, except the three women accused of inviting to riot. The lawyer then moved for a jury trial and the motion was granted.

N. Y. POLICE ROUT COMMUNISTS.

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—The second unsuccessful attempt in two days to stage an unemployment demonstration in front of city hall took place this afternoon. In the brief riot that resulted, women and children were roughly handled by the police, who did not hesitate to use their fists indiscriminately.

When the detectives, policemen and mounted men finally cleared city hall park, three women, two girls and a man had been arrested and locked up, charged with disorderly conduct.

Town Bemired, So Club Meets on Horseback

Galesburg, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—The ladies of the L. T. club in the Kenton neighborhood here entertained at a sociable yesterday at the home of Mrs. John T. Whitman. Since Kenton is bemired and the doughtiest gas buggy has been unable to negotiate the dirt roads thereabouts for three weeks, most of the ladies came horseback. After an hour's sociable the ladies mounted their horses and rode back to their husbands and chickens.

AIDS OF ROCHE RAID 3 PLACES AS GAMBLING JOINTS

Three gambling raids were made yesterday afternoon by state's attorney's detectives under orders of Chief Investigator Pat Roche, after Roche had heard of underworld boasts to the effect that he was "fixed" in the matter of gambling.

In the place of John Kasey at 32 South Halsted street, forty men were taken into custody. Kasey was not in at the time of the raid.

The cigar store of William and Philip Grossman at 14 North Halsted street was raided and four men arrested. A vigorous fight was made in 1923 over a presidential pardon given to Philip Grossman after he had been sentenced to one year for liquor law violations. The courts failed to override the pardon.

J. B. Drell was not in his place at 641 West Madison street, but four men were arrested there, among them Leonard Hirshberg, who was in charge of the racing ticker. Hirschberg was charged with being the keeper.

The case of Joseph Guzick, brother of the better known Jack, alleged Capone henchman, and Frank Miller, charged with operating a gambling house yesterday, was continued in South State street court until March 12. The pair were arrested on Friday when police raided their establishment in the rear of a barber shop at 735 South Wabash avenue.

WILY KING WOOS ARMY TO SAVE SPANISH THRONE

High Chiefs See Premier in Secret Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, March 1.— King Alfonso still has friends in Spain, and it looks very much tonight as if the fast spreading republican feeling in Spain would not be allowed to go much further without a struggle.

The brainiest of European monarchs also called on the army to save him from a threatening parliament in September of 1923. What is to prevent him from doing it again, if he thinks that it is the only way to save his crown? is the question Madrid is asking tonight after a significant incident at the ministry of war this evening.

Hold Secret Session.

At 8 o'clock two staff officers, Generals Cavalcanti and Saro, walked into Gen. Damasco Berenguer's office and remained closeted with the new premier until close to midnight. No communique was issued after their departure. The army chiefs are two of Spain's most powerful political generals. They were a party to the coup d'etat led by Primo de Rivera, and inspired by the king in 1923. Moreover they are intimate friends of the monarch, as well as staunch defenders of the crown.

They went to Gen. Berenguer as representatives of the loyal elements of the army to insist that measures be taken immediately to curb republican outbursts.

Republican leaders, congratulating themselves on the outburst of anti-monarchical sentiment that followed former Premier Sanchez Guerra's indictment of the crown, are spreading rumors that the king is likely abdicate at any moment, probably in favor of his cousin, Don Carlos de Bourbon.

In other circles, it is believed that a new and more vigorous dictatorship is more apt to occur. The resignation of Gen. Barrera Luyando, captain-general of Catalonia, is reported to be the result of efforts of Gen. Martinez Anido, iron man of Primo's cabinet, to win him over to a new coup d'etat. Premier Berenguer officially denied that the general's resignation had been received.

Numerous Street Battles.

The tension in Madrid was evidenced in the collision tonight in front of the Bank of Spain, between two groups of a score or so of roving monarchists and republicans. It took a dozen police to quell the battle.

Over Madrid this afternoon flew an airplane with "Long Live the King" written in big letters on the wings. Its appearance was greeted with boos and cheers, and a number of fist fights occurred as a result.

Gen. Berenguer, in addition to his announcement that the time is not ripe to restore full freedom of speech, assured the king's friends he would take most rigorous measures to scotch republican propaganda.

Make Death Threat

Trapped by detectives in one attempt at extortion, three Rogers Park youths were being held at the detective bureau yesterday for questioning in connection with other recent attempts at blackmail.

When Arden Brooks, 18 years old, 2322 Morse avenue, came early Saturday morning for a package of $500 which he had instructed Erik Borg, wealthy building contractor of 7000 Pingree street, to place in the fork of a tree in the yard of the Armstrong school, on penalty of death to himself and his daughter, Beatrice, 17 years old, Sergts. Rocco Filetti, William Balzano, and James Ryan seized him.

A shot in the air by Sergt. Filetti stopped Brooks as he turned to run. He named Carl Hartzell, 21 year old mail carrier of 1314 Devon avenue and Hartzell's brother, Gunner, 19, of 6744 North Maplewood avenue as his partners in the plot. Borg has known the Hartzells from boyhood.

U. S. SWINGS DRY MOP ON OASES IN SOUTH INDIANA

22 Arrested, Thousands in Rum Seized.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Cleanup of liquor resorts in southeastern Indiana was under way tonight, with twenty-two alleged violators already under arrest and thousands of dollars worth of liquor confiscated.

Five federal agents and three county deputy sheriffs from here worked under personal direction of John D. Wilkey, federal prohibition director for Indiana.

The authorities struck at Aurora, Lawrenceburg, Rising Sun, St. Leon, Brookville, Laurel, and New Trenton. It was explained the raids were part of a nation-wide program of federal authorities to check activities of liquor law violators, county by county.

Drys Invade Quincy.

Quincy, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Nineteen federal agents under James A. Eaton, with Sheriff Elmore and six deputy sheriffs, swooped down on Quincy late last night and gathered in fifteen violators, raiding seventeen places where evidence had been gained for the search by federal snoopers who had made previous buys. All were taken to the Adams county jail. This is the largest haul ever made here.

Many of the places raided will be closed under federal court injunction, as Mr. Eaton was busy all day today getting the names of the owners of the buildings.

Many taken in last night were old offenders. One woman was among those seized.

Word has come from Springfield that Charles Monckton of Quincy, who was before Judge Fitzhenry on liquor law violations for the second time, had been fined $500 and sentenced to the Springfield city jail for one year. William McMullen and John Beck, two other Quincy men, were sentenced to eight months and fined $500 each.

GERMAN CABINET NEAR FALL OVER RADICAL TAX PLAN

Seeks 'Sacrifice Levy' to Pay Jobless Doles.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 1.—The German cabinet is swaying dangerously and it is believed that it will resign Monday, unless President von Hindenburg succeeds in whipping the German People's party and the Democrats back into line with the government of Hermann Mueller.

Foreign Minister Curtius and Finance Minister Moldenhauer, both members of the German People's party, threaten to resign because they are opposed to the financial measures demanded by the Socialists to end the government's financial difficulties.

Want "Sacrifice Tax."

The Socialists want a "national sacrifice tax" to eliminate the deficit in the government budget and enable it to pay doles to the jobless. This "sacrifice tax" would mean a five per cent cut in the salaries of government officials and clerks.

The German People's party opposes this cut because, they assert, if the jobless insurance was administrated efficiently and not according to Socialist methods, it would not have a deficit and the party does not want officials with small pay to suffer for Socialist mismanagement.

Von Hindenburg Favors Tax.

President von Hindenburg today called in Dr. Scholz, leader of the German People's party, and Dr. Bruening, leader of the Centrists, and discussed the situation with them. He expressed himself in favor of a "national sacrifice tax" because, he said, "government clerks and employés are protected against dismissal by law. They should be willing to make a sacrifice for those whom hard times has deprived of jobs."

The German People's party has called an extraordinary meeting tomorrow to discuss the withdrawal of its members from the cabinet and the cabinet's overthrow.

HYDE HERE FOR WHEAT PARLEY

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and Mrs. Hyde arriving on the Capitol Limited yesterday. The secretary came to attend conference on wheat situation. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

U. S. FARM BOARD ENDS ITS FIXED PRICE FOR WHEAT

Secret Conference Brings Modification in Policy.

understood. Mr. Legge said that more time had been consumed in debating over legal technicalities on how farmer coöperatives could get into the farm board's national plan than consideration of the big issues of the hour.

With Secretary Hyde, Mr. Legge voiced the belief that the stabilization corporation's purchasing of large blocks of both cash wheat and future delivery contracts had stayed an impending panic that would have affected the entire financial structure of the nation.

Act to Check Panic.

"What has been done during the last week was to check what might have been a real panic," said Secretary Hyde. "It might be compared with what happened last October in the stock market crash. At that time bankers and big business stepped in with millions to rescue the situation.

"But when farm commodities started on the toboggan shortly afterward, no one in the country except the government through its farm board was on hand to help the farmer. When farm board loans failed to stem the tide of selling, and stocks of grain were piling up in this country, more drastic measures became necessary. That is why the farm board created the stabilization corporation, to be able to go the limit if necessary to save the situation."

Plan for "the Long Pull."

Now that the emergency is largely past, said Hyde and Legge, the time has come to consider a policy that will hold "for the long pull ahead," as the secretary put it. They would express no opinion as to the criticisms being voiced by grain exchanges, chambers of comerce, and individual farmers on the so-called "speculation" and "discrimination" by the farm board.

Mr. Hyde indicated that he expected to answer the Heflin resolution adopted by the senate asking for his recommendation on the situation "shortly." He said he could see no reason for the closing of wheat and cotton exchanges, which was indicated by the resolution as a possible means of stopping downward price movements.

U. S. Buying Rallies Prices.

While the federal officials were in conference a few blocks away the wheat pit was the scene of a drop of as much as 3 cents in wheat prices during the market's opening hours. Values were brought back to within a fraction of the previous day's close, however, by the reported buying of more than 3,000,000 bushels of May futures by the stabilization corporation.

The corporation is also credited with having paid in cash for about the same amount of grain delivered during the day on March contracts. This grain at existing prices is held at considerable profit by its purchasers. Some of it was bought when the March quotations were less than a dollar a bushel.

M. W. Thatcher of Fargo, N. D., member of the farm board's wheat advisory committee, said last night that the recent rush of farmers in the northwest to join coöperatives to insure the value of their present grain indicates that practically entire control of the northwest's wheat crop next year will vest in the federal farm board's national sales coöperative.

Many Attend Conference.

With Secretary Hyde and Mr. Legge at yesterday's conference were S. R. McKelvie, Carl Williams, James C. Stone and C. B. Denman of the federal farm board; and William G. Kellogg, president of the stabilization corporation and general manager of the Farmers National Grain corporation.

Others attending included Ward M. Buckles, C. E. Huff, William H. Settle, Bert Lang, John Manley and E. H. Hodson, directors of the stabilization corporation, and the following representatives from the Farmers National Grain corporation: J. J. Knight, George E. Duis, W. G. Kenney, L. E. Webb, S. J. Cottington, M. W. Thatcher, E. R. Downie, E. G. McCollum, and Frank Sloan.

Hectic Week Summarized.

The conference came at the end of a week of hectic fluctuations in the wheat markets of the world, which extended into other farm commodity exchanges and into stock markets. The primary cause of the break of 4 to 6 cents in wheat prices in Chicago on Monday, following earlier breaks in Winnipeg and Liverpool, was said to be sudden realization of the unusually high amount of wheat on hand in North America as compared with average years.

Tuesday's wheat prices continued lower, until March prices were 2 cents under the dollar in Chicago. In the closing minutes of the day's trading a rush of buying credited to the Grain Stabilization corporation brought quick recovery of over 5 cents a bushel. The corporation was said to have purchased more than 3,000,000 bushels of grain for future delivery in about ten minutes.

On succeeding days the price has been gradually working higher in the Chicago market, until within about 2 cents of the federal farm board's established price of $1.18. Chicago wheat prices for the week show plainly the artificial stimulus, with May futures selling above July and July above September futures, while Chicago quotations are now somewhat higher than those in any other world market.

BANDITS ROB STORE MANAGER.

GERMAN POLICE SEEK VANISHED ZOO AND OWNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LUEBECK, March 1.—Luebeck police are looking for the new Luebeck zoo with its lions, wild boars, monkeys, and other fauna. Incidentally they are also looking for one Ernest Schmidt, who started the zoo.

Schmidt was a photographer until he decided to take a fling at menagerie proprietorship recently, and ordered a number of animals from Hamburg and other centers dealing in animals. He received a pair of lions, a flock of assorted monkeys, a small herd of wild boars, and a couple of otters.

The consignment reached him, and the townsfolk of Luebeck admired the zoo. But when it came to paying for it, Schmidt and the zoo had disappeared. Although the police have not the slightest clew to the menagerie's whereabouts, they are optimistic. An order has been issued to all cops to walk their beats with ears cocked for the roar of lions and the chatter of monkeys.

RALPH RICHARDS IS ARRESTED AS CLOTHES THIEF

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Ralph Richards, brother of Vincent Richards, tennis star, and who two years ago fooled federal authorities and escaped while being held in $40,000 bail, was arraigned in west side court today on charges of burglary and possessing a revolver.

The arrest of Richards, who has been in custody on several previous occasions, but never has been convicted, can be laid to his desire for braggadocio, the police assert. He was taken into custody by detectives after they found wearing apparel, stolen from the apartment of a Miss Laura Marsh, in his room in the Hotel Alsmac.

The police declare that Richards telephoned Miss Marsh to boast that the articles were in his room.

CROWE DEAL PUTS LINDHEIMER ON SO. PARK BOARD

3 G. O. P. Judges Vote with Democrats.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, Democrat, was elected a member of the south park board yesterday at the meeting of the judges of the Circuit court. The only nominee against him was Julius Rosenwald, philanthropist.

The vote was 12 to 8 on a secret ballot but it was recognized generally that Lindheimer was elected as the result of a deal between the Democratic organization and former State's Attorney Crowe. Three Republican judges voted with the Democrats. They were said to be Michael Feinberg, Stanley H. Klarkowski, and Kickham Scanlan.

Report Swissler Deal.

Incidental to the meeting was a new report that the quid pro quo promised Crowe by the Democrats was that wherever Democratic organization voters go into the Republican primary on April 8 they will vote for William R. Swissler, Crowe's candidate for the board of review. In a number of wards the Democrats have no contests of their own and their workers will be free to ask for Republican ballots and carry out bipartisan bargains.

The meeting of the bench was behind closed doors, but some of the judges later disclosed privately what had occurred. They said that as soon as Chief Justice Taylor called the meeting to order Judge John R. Caverly, Democrat, nominated Lindheimer. Thereupon Judge Daniel P. Trude nominated Rosenwald and Judge Mary Bartelme seconded Rosenwald's name, saying that she would not propose a candidate she had intended to put forward.

Snow Candidate Not Offered.

That candidate was Mrs. Edith Strouse, whose selection had been urged in letters to the judges by Chairman Snow of the Republican county committee. The reason for the withdrawal of her name, it was said, was that the four Deneen judges—Trude, Matchett, Friend, and Taylor—refused to follow the Snow recommendation and insisted upon putting up Rosenwald. That compelled four other Republicans—Judges Bartelme, William V. Brothers, David M. Brothers, and Rush—to go along with the Rosenwald idea. The political weakness of this move was that it let the opposition contend that Rosenwald, who is out of the city, had not been consulted.

The nine Democrats who stood by Lindheimer were Judges Caverly, Harry M. Fisher, Thomas J. Lynch, Ira Ryner, Philip L. Sullivan, Francis S. Wilson, Otto Kerner, Dennis J. Normoyle, and Philip J. Finnegan.

Discuss Spring Outings.

It was said there was almost no discussion on the question of the merits of the candidates, that what talk there was concerned chiefly the relative merits of Biloxi and Hot Springs, Ark., for spring outings. This had been in progress some time after the nominations when some judge suggested that it might be just well to take a vote. Judge Taylor then tore up sheets of paper, the scraps being used for the secret ballot. It was said the votes of some judges were cast by proxy.

So far as could be learned the meeting did not touch the subject of withholding park funds from the regular treasurer for the board, Oscar G. Foreman, and depositing them in banks controlled by one of the commissioners, John Bain. The two banks concerned are the Stony Island Trust and Savings bank and the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank.

Say Deneen Quit Bank.

A bank directory issued in January shows the name of United States Senator Deneen as a director of the former bank which still holds $453,000 of the receipts from the Army-Navy game of 1927, but it is said the senator resigned recently. It is charged that the park records show no payment of interest on this money. Commissioner Bain says it is paying 2per cent.

The election of Lindheimer gives the Democrats a majority of the auth park board, the other Democatic members being State Representative Michael L. Igoe and Edward J. Kelly, chief engineer of the sanitary district. Lindheimer succeeds Louis J. Behan, whose term has expired. The one Republican holdover member in addition to Bain is Philip Graver.

Both Commissioners Bain and Graver are said to have had impotant shares in the park patronage dring the last two years, which probably will go to the Democrats.

Rio de Janeiro to U.S. Plane Turns Somersault in Crash

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CORDOBA, Argentina, March 1.—The New York-Rio de Janiero-Buenos Aires passenger plone, Rio de la Plata, crashed spectacularly this afternoon shortly after starting for Salta, Chile. In rising it hit a tree and the roof of a house, somersaulting to earth. One of its motors was flung 30 yards but the pilots and passengers miraculously escaped.

U. S. OFFICIAL WHO ASKED DRY CLEANUP GETS DEATH THREAT

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—While a senate committee prepared to consider charges police had failed to curb gambling and bootlegging in Washington, a special police guard today was assigned to George H. Carter, head of the government printing office, who has complained against conditions.

Carter said he had received three "death threats" in two days because of his assertion that gambling and bootlegging were rampant in the vicinity of the government printing office. The last warning, Carter asserted, quoted a gambler as having said, "It would be easy to import a gunman to get you for $5,000."

NEPAL SULTAN'S SON REPORTED TO BE INVADING TIBET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 1.—The Panchon Lama, spiritual leader of the Tibetans as well as the head of the Buddhist religion, today notified the Nationalist government that a strong native force from Nepal, a British dependency in northern India, was marching on Tibet led by the son of the sultan of Nepal, with the object of invading the Chinese border provinces of either Yunnan or Szechwan. The Panchon Lama's information was based on telegraphic information from India.

Simultaneously the Nationalist state council received a similar report from Lhasa from the Dalai Lama, the other spiritual leader of the Tibetans, and rival of the Panchon Lama, requesting a strong force in order to assist Tibet in protecting the border against an invasion from the British Indian province of Nepal.

The Panchon and Dalai Lamas, who are joint rulers of Tibet, have been estranged for many years. The Panchon Lama, now in Peiping, declared recently that he and the Dalai Lama have patched up their troubles in order to present a united front against Russian incursions in Mongolia as well as the alleged British incursions in Tibet.

HOUSE TO GET COMMITTEE O. K. ON MRS. OWEN

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—A house of election committee today decided to submit a unamious report to the house to recommend the seating of Ruth Bryan Owen as member from the fourth Florida district.

A contest against the seating of Mrs. Owen was brought by William C. Lawson, a Republican, on the ground she was ineligible because of her citizenship. Mrs. Owen is the widow of a former British army officer, who died in Florida several years ago.

Mrs. Owen, the daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was elected to the house in the November elections of 1928 by a majority of 2 to 1 over the Republican candidate.

The report will be submitted to the house next week.

Mrs. Deneen came direct from Washington and is the house guest of Mrs. Henry Davis. She will leave Monday for Chicago.

AMERICA'S GREAT MUSIC HOUSE

Judge the Washburn Grand by what it is . . . not what it costs

IN OFFERING such a value for your home or studio it would be plainly unfair to recommend the Washburn simply because its price is fully $200 less than any other fine grand piano. There are other things that matter more: the name and reputation of this great music house that guarantees your satisfaction, the delightful tone of the instrument itself together with its quick responsiveness, its lovely decorative case to match the finest furnishings, and the important lasting value built into its very structure. If you have waited, now is the time to buy a Washburn—the only grand piano with these features at this price. Genuine ivory keys . . . full 5-foot length . . . handsome mahogany case. Tone that rivals the depth and color of the human voice.

92 CHURCHES IN ONE RUSSIAN CITY CLOSED BY REDS

War on Religion Grows by Leaps and Bounds.

PETROZAVODSK, Russian, March 1.—(AP)—Fifty-eight churches, four cathedrals, and thirty religious shrines have been closed here to date and converted to economic or cultural uses.

Soviet authorities assert that the anti-religious movement is growing steadily. In five entire districts there are no longer any churches or priests. In this city the population turned over all church bells for industrialization.

The authorities also announced that in the presence of large numbers of peasants, six priests repudiated their calling, declaring that religion was only a cloak for counter-revolution. Membership in atheistic societies has increased tenfold.

Fanatic Sentenced to Death.

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—Dmitri Schultz, leader of a fanatical religious sect, tried for counter-revolutionary activities and unnatural practices, was sentenced to death today. His brother was given ten years imprisonment and his wife 3 years exile.

Schultz called himself "the living spirit of the Occult God Agafita Abdullah." With his disciples, who numbered more than a hundred ,his wife, and his brother, he was charged with having conducted orgies in front of an altar in which boys and girls were forced to participate.

He had attacked the Russian government as the "anti-Christ" and predicted that it was about to fall.

Report Red Detachment Deserts.

WARSAW, Poland, March 1.—(AP)—The Polish press today published reports that a detachment of twenty soviet border guards, fully armed and headed by an officer, crossed the Polish border during the night and reported at the Polish police station in the town of Luniniec.

The soldiers were said to have told the Polish authorities that they had contemplated deserting for some time. Bread shortage and orders to proceed against peasants defending themselves against expropriation and collectivization of their land, were stated to be the causes for dissatisfaction.

The correspondent of the Warsaw Morning Express today reported that the number of refugees from Russia was growing hourly.

Riot at Funeral.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 1.—Five national Socialists or Fascists were seriously wounded and an unknown number of Communists were hurt today when the two groups clashed at the funeral of a student, Horst Wessel, squad leader in the Fascist semi-military organization, who was assaulted in his room and alleged to have been fatally wounded by reds.

Raid Reds, Find Stolen Guns.

LEIPZIG, Germany, March 1.—(AP)—Police today raided premises in west Leipzig where the Communist party maintains a meeting hall and found part of the machine guns and rifles which were stolen from the barracks here Thursday. Sixteen light machine guns and 125 rifles were found. Police also discovered 30 rifles and six machine guns in a nearby town.

"ENEMY" FLEETS OF U. S. PREPARE FOR BIG BATTLE

U. S. S. MARBLEHEAD in Colon Bay, March 1.—(AP)—Two great American fleets are gathering at Colon and Guantanamo bay, silently going about last minute preparations for the greatest naval battle of the year—the joint maneuvers of the scouting and battle fleets in the Caribbean.

For weeks there has been the bustle of unusual activity and the noise of preparation on the ships of the two fleets which will oppose each other in the battle to be fought to a "deadly" finish beginning March 10. Aircraft, scores of planes with bombs attached, were resting aboard the great aircraft carriers, the Saratoga and the Lexington, today. Both of these ships will be in the thick of the battle activities. Their powerful air forces will be unleashed against the surface ships before the "fighting" has been concluded.

SHOT TO DEATH WHEN HE STARTS FIGHT IN CAFE

An unidentified young man, about 24 years old, known only as "John," was shot to death early this morning in the restaurant of Gus Anthony at 1156 West 79th street. Anthony told the Gresham police that the youth entered the place in an intoxicated condition and created a disturbance that drove four patrons to the street. Anthony, failing to quiet the disturber, called on the chef, John Manikis, 45 years old, for assistance.

When Manikis entered from the kitchen the youth threw a bottle at his head. The missile missed its mark and the chef snatched a pistol lying beneath the counter and fired. The bullet struck the youth near the heart. As he fell Manikis fled.

ANNOUNCE WINNERS IN 500 WORD HISTORY CONTEST NEXT SUNDAY

Winners in THE TRIBUNE'S 500 word history contest, which closed for entries on Feb. 15, will be announced in all issues of next Sunday, March 9.

Because of the large number of contestants, 3,759, and the care taken in passing on them, the judges of the final ranking had not completed their work in time for all editions this week It is known, however, that some of the entrants have quite successfully surmounted the technical obstacles and that those left in the race for the $2,100 of prizes have turned out some excellent work.

The judges are Prof. A. O. Craven of the history department of the University of Chicago; Prof. James A. James, dean of the graduate school at Northwestern university, and a representative of THE TRIBUNE. The contest was inspired by the announcement that former President Calvin Coolidge was writing a history to be carved on Mount Rushmore in South Dakota.

CHARGE $42,000 LOANS OBTAINED ON ONE AUTO

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—Two detectives left for New York today to bring back Charles W. Lloyd, 33, who is under arrest there on a Los Angeles charge of obtaining loans totaling $42,000 from 16 motor finance companies on one automobile in five months.

Investigators for finance companies say they found that 16 times Lloyd had changed the motor number of his expensive sedan between last August and last December and 16 times obtained loans by presenting forged certificates of ownership.

TWO ROBBERS SENT TO REFORMATORY.

KILLER'S MOTHER MAY DOOM PLAY HE'S QUOTED IN

Negotiates for Share of Author's Royalties.

Amarillo, Tex., March 1.—(AP)—A 60 year old mother will go to New York soon to decide whether she shall close a show which is one of Broadway's biggest hits or permit it to continue as a protest against capital punishment.

The mother is Mrs. Ella Blake. Her son died in the electric chair at the state penitentiary at Huntsville, Tex., last April 29, after being convicted of killing an automobile man in Tulia, Tex.

His copyrighted article, published in the American Mercury, is the theme and setting of "The Last Mile," by John Wexley, now running in New York. The article was appropriated by Wexley without a definite agreement.

Wants Barbarism Stopped.

When Mrs. Blake speaks of her son, her eyes fill with tears.

"Robert," she said, "was such a good boy to me. Every mother whose son is in trouble says this, of course, but Robert really was. He begged me not to spend the little money I had in trying to save him, and I know he meant it. He was only 24 when they strapped him into the chair and burned out the life I had given him. He wan't a man, but a child, almost. Would that I could make a million from this play in New York and spend every cent of it in stopping this barbarism!"

Acquired Drug Habit.

"Robert had no experience as a writer. He attended high school, and was an honor student before he acquired the drug habit, until the third term when he began to make his own living. When arrested he began writing articles for the local newspapers about the horrors of prison life. He was only 22 when charged with that crime he did not commit.

"His article, 'The Law Takes Its Toll,' was not something written, but something lived and heard and recorded. Those were his spoken words and the spoken words of others.

"If this play is not right, and if it is doing more harm than good, I'll make them take Robert out of it. Those words were Robert's, and he gave them to me to save others from the fate that came to him."

Check for $200 Sent to Her.

New York, March 1.—(AP)—James B. Pinker, play broker, said today that financial negotiations between John Wexley, 21 year old author of "The Last Mile," and Mrs. Ella Blake of Amarillo, Tex., have been pending for some time.

"Wexley did use Blake's story as the basis for his first act," Mr. Pinker said. "It was not, however, until the play was sold and in rehearsal that he learned of this. There was no intention on his part to defraud Mrs. Blake of her rights. He is only 21—he doesn't know much about copyright laws.

"Mrs. Blake first asked her $5,000 and 25 per cent of the royalties. We thought that was a little steep and have offered Mrs. Blake 10 per cent of the royalties. Although we haven't actually come to any agreement, I sent her a check for $200 last week as an advance."

In the theater program appears an acknowledgment from Wexley to Blake for material taken from "The Law Takes Its Course."

HUNGARY HAILS HORTHY ON TENTH YEAR OF REGENCY

Partial Amnesty Frees Political Prisoners.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 1.—This has been sort of a national thanksgiving day for Hungary in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the overthrow of bolshevism and the ascendancy of Nicholas Horthy, former admiral of the imperial navy as regent and dictator.

Ten years ago Hungary, or what was left of it, was in ruins, demolished by war and defeat, laid low by four months of Red terror under Bela Kun, and sacked by Rumanian troops, who occupied Budapest.

Blessings Have Been Few.

Today the nation celebrated in thanksgiving for whatever blessings have befallen the country since then. Of blessings there have been few, most Hungarians believe. But they feel they are better off under the reactionary government—which amounts to the practical dictatorship of Horthy and his powerful prime minister, Count Stephen Bethlen—than they would have been had the dictatorship of the proletariat, as set up by Bela Kun, been as successful as the Russian experiment.

Original plans called for a huge demonstration. It was to have been not only a celebration of the liberation from the bolsheviks and the advent of Admiral Horthy, but a mass protest against the Trianon treaty and what Hungarians term the "robbery" of three-fourths of their territory and two-thirds of their population by the victorious allies.

Wiser counsels prevailed and the holiday passed soberly and quietly with church services, community singing in public squares, and a simple ceremony in the old Hapsburg palace, high above the Danube, where Dictator Horthy received cabinet ministers, members of parliament, and the diplomatic corps.

Signs Partial Amnesty.

Earlier in the day Regent Horthy signed a more or less general amnesty, freeing hundreds of political prisoners, cutting the terms of hundreds of others in half, and setting loose a small army of prisoners for petty crimes. Those jailed for not paying taxes were also released.

Several former statesmen, such as Baron Ludwig Hatvany and John Hock, the priest who helped the ill-fated Count Michael Karolyi to set up a republic, and who escaped by fleeing to Vienna, have been pardoned and invited to return to Hungary if they wish.

Count Karolyi, president of the brief Hungarian republic of 1919, now lecturing in the United States, was not included in the amnesty. Feeling is still bitter against him here for sponsoring the bolshevik régime.

The celebration closed tonight with a gala festival at the opera and singing outside of the royal palace, where 200,000 sang patriotic songs and shouted the national creed. This creed pledges belief in "restoration" of Hungary's pre-war boundaries.

KILLER DRESSES AS GIRL, DANCES WITH POLICEMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUESSELDORF, Germany, March 1.—This city was again thrown into panic stricken apprehension today as "Jack the Ripper," blamed for a series of bold murders, announced his return today in a letter to the newspaper Freiheit, recipient of his former "murder notes."

With bravado the "Ripper" bares every clew except his name, saying he is an art student and the son of a court official. He relates being sated with ordinary dissipation at an early age and his turn to invert practices. He declares he attended last Saturday's big carnival ball here dressed as a girl and danced with a police official who has been hunting him.

He declares his murder victims were all bourgeoisie who were better off dead than alive. The child victim he explains as a result of his decision to do something which might snap him out of his exaltation and calm his tense nerves. He adds the experiment failed. He says that whenever the police get too hot on his trail he will kill himself.

SCHOOL ON WHEELS TO TEACH PEASANTS OF ITALY HOW TO FARM

ROME, March 1.—(AP)—Farmer Mussolini of Forli province, wheat grower on the few acres surrounding his country home of Villa Carpena, on March 10 will speed away in an "auto train" of eight big trucks, loaded with visible propaganda destined to teach the Italian peasant how to get the most out of his land.

This ambulatory agricultural college will be gone four months, carrying its easily understood lessons even to the smallest hamlets perched high among the Alps and Appennines. After that it is planned to ship it to Sicily and Sardinia; and still later to the North African colonies.

Its departure will be witnessed by practically all chiefs of the Fascist party present in Rome. Its escort will be composed of members of the newly organized forestry militia, and a specially chosen band of agricultural experts. The first truck will present, by pictures, statues and placards, the efforts of the permanent wheat committee to increase production at home. The second will demonstrate sowing. Other trucks will carry information of fertilizers, farm machinery, care of animals, and so on.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 1.—[U. P.]—An order approving the Oklahoma Railway company's application for a 10 cent street car fare here was signed today by corporation commission members. The new rate will be effective Sunday.

Portland Fare Boosted.

Portland, Ore., March 1.—[U. P.]—Ten cent street car fares will be put into effect at midnight, March 5, according to a statement issued this afternoon by Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Electric Power company.

BOY, 16, FIGHTS POSSE ALL DAY; SHOOTS 3; SLAIN

Attackers Fire House to End Battle.

Albuquerque, N. M., March 1.—(AP)—Bonifacio Torres, 16 year old youth who shot and wounded three peace officers this morning, was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff this evening as darkness was settling over the home at Jarales where he was barricaded. He had held off a posse of twenty men all afternoon. A deputy leaped through a first floor window and shot the boy through the heart.

Tear gas and bombs and dynamite were used during attacks on the youth and the possemen finally decided to attempt to rush him in his barricade.

Fire Drives Him Out.

Rag torches were made, saturated with gasoline and thrown upon the house. The smoke and fire drove the boy outside for air and then members of the posse advanced from several directions, forcing him back into the burning house. Torres was firing at the possemen when the officer leaped through a window and shot him.

This morning Sheriff Ignacio Aragon of Belen and two deputy sheriffs went to the house at Jarales to arrest Torres on complaint of his mother that he was intoxicated and incorrigible. She told the sheriff she wanted the youth committed to the state reform school.

Three Officers Wounded.

Resisting arrest, Torres opened fire on the officers and barricaded himself in the attic of the home. The three officers were wounded in the gun fight. Sheriff Aragon was shot through the left lung and wounded seriously. Deputy Sheriff Charles Cunningham was shot through the shoulder, the bullet passing through the left lung, and Deputy Sheriff Rafael Sanchez was struck by two bullets. Sanchez was not wounded seriously.

Torres had a large supply of ammunition. His mother reported he had bought 200 rounds of ammunition in Belen, N. M., last night.

SHIPS COLLIDE IN BLANKET OF FOG OVER NORTH SEA

HULL, England, March 1.—(AP)—Fog conditions in the North sea were bad today and several collisions were reported. The steamship Pendennis and the French steamer Capitaine le Naine were involved in one collision while the British steamer Pan of Leny and the Latvian steamer Livonia were in another. In each case tugs were sent out to help and the vessels anchored. During the night the steam drifter Perilla sank near Straraer, Scotland, after going aground. The crew of ten was landed.

MEXICO PUTS UP $750,000 TO PAY AGRARIAN BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—The Mexican government took tangible steps today toward settling the agrarian debt, which rose out of seizing land for the peons, by depositing $750,000 in the Bank of Mexico for the payment of interest on agrarian bonds and for honoring the principal of such bonds as have come due up to January of this year.

Behind the new agrarian policy stands the figure of Ambassador Dwight Morrow who, after two years' study of the problem, advised and finally convinced Gen. Elias Calles and Provisional President Portes Gil that the only remedy for the situation was payment of the agrarian debt. President Ortiz Rubio, in his election campaign, promised that this refunding for seized land would be accomplished during his régime.

The agrarian tangle dates back ten years to the time when the radicals employed the soviet methods.

JUDGE APPOINTS RECEIVER FOR INVESTMENT CO.

Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday appointed the Chicago Title and Trust company receivers for the Garard Investment trust, 39 South La Salle street, following the filing of equity proceedings in behalf of H. C. Goggins and R. A. Ritchie, Dallas, Tex., attorneys, who claim they have a $3,500 judgment against the company.

The bill, filed by the law firm of Chapman and Cutler, alleges that assets listed at $9,709,095.89 are frozen, and that the company is unable to meet matured and maturing obligations without forced sales. Libilities are listed at $7,174,731.30.

E. A. Garard, president of the concern, said yesterday: "We believe this action for the best interests of all concerned, and intend to coöperate with the receiver in every way possible to preserve and conserve the assets of the Investment trust, which with an orderly liquidation should prove greatly in excess of the liabilities."

HOOVERS ATTEND FUNERAL FOR MRS. RICHEY

Washington, March 1.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover, with their son, Herbert, and a distinguished group of Washington officials, today attended the funeral of Mrs. Lawrence Richey, wife of one of the chief executive's secretaries.

Mrs. Richey died yesterday of meningitis and septic poisoning. She was taken ill shortly after her return from accompanying her husband with the President on his recent fishing trip to Florida. Throughout the trip she enjoyed the best of health.

The services were held at St. Paul's chapel in Rock Creek cemetery, where interment was made.

Among those attending the services were several members of the cabinet and congress, as well as Mrs. Richey's brother, Morton R. Hunter of Milwaukee. Mrs. Richey was a native of California and married Mr. Richey in Chicago about 16 years ago. There are no children.

WANT AD GAME OFFERS SLEUTHS THEIR CHANCE

Arm chair sleuths who have whetted their wits in THE TRIBUNE'S Hidden Want-Ad contest, will find one with real ramifications in today's issue, the contest editor believes. A total of $100 in prizes is awarded the winners each Sunday.

Miss Helen Dickinson, 3236 Wesley avenue, Berwyn, won first prize of $50 for the best solution of the Feb. 16 contest, the contest editor announced yesterday.

The first clue is given in the cartoon appearing on the page where the list of winners are displayed. The key to the first classification is contained in the picture and a perusal of that classification leads to other clues. From there it is a question of sharp eyes and painstaking care. Replies to today's contest must be received by THE TRIBUNE not later than 6 p. m., Thursday, March 6.

JACOBITES AND JACOBINS.

A reader asks us to enlarge upon our recent suggestion that there is a revival of the Jacobite doctrine which prohibited criticism of government. The Jacobites were adherents of the house of Stuart, believed in the divine right of kings, at least of kings of the Stuart dynasty, and held with those monarchs that their acts were not to be criticized. The founders of America escaped from the Jacobite tyranny, and their children, who established the American republic, did not propose to have a similar tyranny rise up to destroy their hard won liberties. That is why they insisted upon embedding in the fundamental law of the republic the guaranty of free speech and free press. But it is inherent in power to resent checks upon its will, whether that power resides in a monarch who asserts his divine right to rule, as did Charles the decapitated, or in a government which derives its authority from a people's will. So we find in our day, as the powers and activities of the central government have been expanding, that officialism and its supporters are attempting more and more to obstruct free comment and create immunity from adverse criticism. In some cases unscrupulous political forces have contrived legislation to destroy freedom of the press, as in Minnesota. But more insidious and therefore more dangerous is the effort to discredit protest and discourage public discussion in regard to the foreign policy of the administration, which, like that of the Jacobites, subordinates this nation to another. The effort will fail, but up to this time it has had some influence and it deserves examination as an inevitable consequence of the growth of a powerful bureaucracy or of government dictated by fanatical cabals and minorities.

The prohibitionist régime is essentially a tyranny through officialism, and its power depends upon its ability to prevent disclosure of evils attendant upon it and their free discussion by the people. It therefore has from the first maintained that adverse criticism of the 18th amendment and the dry laws or of their administration or maladministration is actuated by a spirit of lawlessness. It is a treasonable assault upon government. It is little short of blasphemy against a divine right, the right of the moral prohibitionist to impose his mandate upon the nation. This sort of bullying is the contemporary form of Jacobitism. If it is submitted to it will make an end of free government, which cannot exist without freedom of speech.

But there is another term, with a very different history, that associates itself in the present situation with Jacobite. It is Jacobin and it is clearly distinguishable in the activities of the senate erratics. It first appeared in the French revolution and belonged to the extremists who produced the Terror. They represented not the tyranny of a monarch but the tyranny of the worst of despots, the mob. They were men without temperance of thought or feeling, zealots of one idea, of one panacea, bigots who preached liberty and destroyed it, who celebrated the rights of man and tramped them under foot. There is Jacobinism in the fanaticism of prohibition, its ruthless will to power, its contempt of the individual's liberty of thought and speech, its determination to seize the power of government and fasten upon the people its iron rule. Jacobinism during its brief rule in France set up a government without any restraint of humanity, justice, or reason, though it thought itself devoted to all three. In the name of virtue it slaughtered thousands, turned every man against his brother, and made a hell of France while it held sway.

Our Jacobinism does not present itself in so terrible a guise, but the acorn doesn't look like the oak. We think ourselves too enlightened as a people to permit such excesses of bigotry, but the French people were not Jacobins. Their great revolution began in a wise moderation. Statesmen and philosophers were to guide its course in the light of reason and human experience. But they could not keep their footing. Their quieter voices were soon drowned in the roar of the fanatic and the demagogue. At each crisis the more extreme faction won, until power reached Robespierre and his Jacobin club. The same process marked the Russian revolution, from moderation to extreme intemperance, and it marks, fortunately in milder forms, many reform movements, including our "experiment of noble motive," which of late has been passing through its Jacobin stage. The inevitable reaction against bigotry and its excesses is gaining in force. Jacobinism is not consistent with the normal temper and good sense of the American people. Bigots and extremists, and those who prosper politically or otherwise by exploiting zealotry, are always with us. But their day of influence is short if mischievous.

THERE MAY BE A SMILE IN THIS.

There is a certain gullelessness in treaty making which it is well to take into account. Gentlemen with open pores and engaging enthusiasms have stepped out into the future and often enough have discovered that there was a coal hole which had not been charted. They were looking up at the opening when they first perceived what it was. As for instance:

Altruistic American statesmen with a zeal for good works and an affection for mankind declared in a treaty ratified in 1868 that the United States recognized the "inherent and inalienable right of man to change his home and allegiance and also the mutual advantage of free migration and emigration of their citizens and subjects from one country to the other for purposes of curiosity, of trade or as permanent residents."

That treaty was signed with China. It declared a doctrine of international relations and rights which the United States now utterly repudiates, although a great part of the world holds it to be as true now as it was then.

The gold rush in California had made labor scarce and the Chinese coolies were welcome at first for domestic work and then for hard labor, such as railroad building. Leland Stanford and other railroad men importuned the Chinese Six Companies to send them laborers. Steamships were subsidized to bring them over and the Chinese monopolies were urged to ship more than they really wanted to. There were treaties protecting Americans in China, but none reciprocating for Chinese here. A Chinese embassy was received with enthusiasm in Washington and the treaty negotiated declaring inherent and inalienable rights which in our day would require a world war and an overrunning of the United States for recognition here.

And what happened? Within a year the overland railroad was completed and labor was reaching California from the east. The whole condition was changed. Altruism took to the woods. Riots began in Los Angeles in the autumn of 1871 with the hanging of fifteen helpless Chinese and the shooting of six, all with inalienable rights. In 1882 prohibitory legislation took the true conditions into account and the importation of Chinese laborers was stopped for ten years. That wrote another doctrine. It asserted the inalienable right of a country to exclude the people of other countries for its own good.

The statesmen of 1868 were cocksure. It will please millions of people all over the world if the United States will return to its former declaration. They think its protests of affection for peace and its good will for humanity is all pretense if it won't do something practical. The makers of the Chinese treaty could have kept themselves to the task in hand and even if their good judgment had not told them that two peoples with such opposed ideas of life could not meet in economic competition in the domain of the stronger they would have at least refrained from declarations on the inherent rights of man. They tried to lay down some general rules of conduct for the future and the immediate future quite promptly wiped them out.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS.

The effort of a number of American educators to change the plan under which Rhodes scholarships are assigned is interesting in more than one respect. If it succeeds it ought materially to check the disposition of rich men to make large bequests for new projects, for it will demonstrate that a testator's intention can be overruled after he is gone and his money disposed according to the notion, the theories, the standards of others.

Rhodes said in his will: "I appropriate two of the American scholarships to each of the present states and territories of the United States of North America." It is proposed now that the states shall be divided into eight groups of six states each and that the twelve scholarships belonging to the group be competed for not by states but by group. Under this plan a state might go a long time without a representative. The argument for the change is that some states do not contribute as good scholars as others and that by awarding scholarships to the best twelve competitors in a large group a higher level will be maintained.

The trustees of the Rhodes plan seem inclined to accept the change. To us it is not only a breach of the explicit terms of the will but a defeat of Rhodes' evident intention. He wished that each state should have two scholarships. If there is such a thing as plain English, he used it. What legal or moral excuse is there for substituting some one else's ideas for his even if we think or some of us may think them better than Rhodes'?

But are the new ideas better than Rhodes'? We doubt it. Rhodes wanted interpreters of English life and character in every state. He didn't want them collected in groups. He hoped the Rhodes scholars would go back to their communities and carry understanding and good will throughout the United States. He was not interested in giving rewards to deserving youth. And we doubt he would have taken seriously the discontent of the proponents of the new plan with certain of the winners. Perhaps their manners, their scholastic standards, their qualifications generally were below the level of the best scholars, yet they may turn out in the long run as conducive to Rhodes' purpose as many of the scholars the proponents of the new plan would approve.

It is intimated that the Rhodes trustees are disposed to accept the new plan on the theory that Americans wish the change. We don't see what our wishes have to do with Rhodes' will, but if they have anything to do with it we suggest the trustees be sure they know what our wishes are. We venture to predict quite confidently that they would be found in favor of respecting Rhodes' will as he expressed it.

A VALUABLE FRIEND.

[Battle Creek (Mich.) News.]

The house will be called upon next week to consider an immigration bill for limiting the quotas of countries in the western hemisphere, including Canada.

While giving consideration to the bill the house also needs to give consideration to the many years of peaceful and friendly relations with Canada, to that long boundary between the two countries which has not a single fort on it anywhere, to the fact that Americans and Canadians have never regarded each other as aliens. The house needs to recognize fully the value of Canada's good will. The house needs to move slowly that nothing will transpire to destroy this long and unique international friendship.

Congress has erred in the past in immigration policies. It is hoped that the loss of Canada's friendship will not be the cost of another mistake.

In view of the large immigration quotas allotted other countries, it is probable that the influx of aliens into the United States can be reduced without imposing the same stranger upon a good friend.

The following Bible reading begins with the first verse of the first chapter of Ruth. The American standard version is used. The only change is in paragraph form and punctuation method.

RUTH AND NAOMI

And it came to pass in the days when the judges judged, that there was a famine in the land. And a certain man of Bethlehem-Judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, and his wife, and his two sons. And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife, Naomi, and the name of his two sons, Mahlon and Chilion, Ephrathites of Bethlehem-Judah. And they came into the country of Moab, and continued there. And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died; and she was left, and her two sons. And they took them wives of the women of Moab; the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other, Ruth; and they dwelt there about ten years. And Mahlon and Chilion died, both of them; and the woman was left of her two children and of her husband.

Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab; for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the Lord had visited his people in giving them bread. And she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah. And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law, "Go, return each of you to her mother's house; the Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me. The Lord grant you that ye may find rest, each of you, in the house of her husband." Then she kissed them, and they lifted up their voices, and wept.

And they said unto her, "Nay, but we will return with thee unto thy people." And Naomi said, "Turn again, my daughters; why will ye go with me? Have I yet have sons that they may be your husbands? Turn again, my daughters, go your way; for I am too old to have a husband. If I should say, 'I have hope,' if I should even have a husband tonight, and should also bear sons; would ye therefore tarry till they were grown? Would ye therefore stay from having husbands? Nay, my daughters; for it grieveth me much for your sakes, for the hand of the Lord is gone forth against me." And they lifted up their voice, and wept again; and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth clave unto her.

And she said, "Behold, thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people, and unto her god; return thou after thy sister-in-law." And Ruth said, "Entreat me not to leave thee, and to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part thee and me." And when she saw that she was steadfastly minded to go with her, she left off speaking unto her.

So they two went until they came to Bethlehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Bethlehem, that all the city was moved about them, and the women said, "Is this Naomi?" And she said unto them, "Call me not Naomi, call me Mara; for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me. I went out full, and the Lord hath brought me home again empty; why call ye me Naomi, seeing the Lord hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?" So Naomi returned, and Ruth, the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, who returned out of the country of Moab; and they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

And Naomi had a kinsman of her husband's, a mighty man of wealth, of the family of Elimelech; and his name was Boaz. And Ruth, the Moabitess, said unto Naomi, "Let me now go to the field, and glean among the ears of grain after him in whose sight I shall find favor." And she said unto her, "Go, my daughter." And she went, and came and gleaned in the field after the reapers; and her hap was to light on the portion of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the family of Elimelech. And, behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem and said unto the reapers, "The Lord be with you." And they answered him, "The Lord bless thee." Then said Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, "Whose damsel is this?" And the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, "It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab; and she said, 'Let me glean, I pray you, and gather after the reapers among the sheaves.' So she came, and hath continued even from the morning until now, save that she tarried a little in the house."

Then said Boaz unto Ruth, "Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither pass from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens. Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them. have I not charged the young men that they shall not touch thee? And when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men have drawn." Then she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, "Why have I found favor in thy sight, that thou shouldest take knowledge of me, seeing I am a foreigner?" And Boaz answered and said unto her, "It hath fully been showed me, all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law since the death of thy husband; and how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people that thou knewest not heretofore. The Lord recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to take refuge." Then she said, "Let me find favor in thy sight, my lord; for that thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken kindly unto thy handmaid, though I be not as one of thy handmaidens."

INVICTUS.

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the Horror of the shade;
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

MENTAL CASES NUMEROUS.

No other group of disorders equals those of the mind in the number of hospital beds required. When a census of hospital beds is made in this or any other civilized country, it is found that the beds occupied by mental cases far outnumber those occupied by any other group. The appropriations made in support of mental hospitals far exceed those for other hospitals. The beds are always full and there is always a waiting list. To make matters worse, the demand for new space grows faster than does the general population, and, to cap the climax, very little by way of prevention is being done.

The institutions are on the basis of care with a moderate stress on cure. Neither in them nor radiating from them to the community, or operating anywhere else in the community, is there anything more than a suggestion of prevention. A few seeds sprouting here and there tell about all the story.

This great need and this poor supply make a conference to be held in Chicago March 6 to 8 a matter of exceptional interest. The organization responsible for the meeting is the Association for Child Study and Parent Education. The subject to be discussed is the emotional life of the child.

Specialists rarely find an insane child. Responsibility and perhaps age are necessary factors in the production of insanity. But they do find emotional instability with great frequency. These emotional twists are the forerunners of much of the insanity. Malaria left to run on uncontrolled may bring about hematuria, a highly fatal disease; a cold left uncared for may be the foundation for a serious pneumonia; before the eruption of smallpox comes there is a three day period of high fever. A large part of several varieties of insanity is preceded by years of emotional twists. Some of these emotional forerunners are well known to physicians, and the result of neglecting them is somewhat appreciated. There are possibilities of prevention of what may come after through training against what goes before.

All this is somewhat known to physicians and more of it is being discovered by research and study. The present need is for a method of getting these facts to the people.

FOOT TROUBLE NOT DANGEROUS.

Mrs. B. R. writes: After being out in the cold my feet and legs burn and itch terribly and if I scratch them they swell up. Is this a condition of the blood? Do I need a tonic?

REPLY.

It is not a condition of the blood nor will taking a tonic relieve the symptom.

You have frostbite or a cousin to it. This is an affection of the nerves and muscles which regulate the size of the small blood vessels of your feet and legs. It is very inconvenient and uncomfortable but not dangerous. That is lucky, because preventive treatment is unsatisfactory.

OLIVES NOT INJURIOUS.

L. M. writes:

1. Are olives injurious to the general health?
2. Are they fattening?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Not in the quantities usually eaten. Olives are high in calories and have very good food value otherwise.

HAVE CHEST EXAMINED.

S. T. P. writes: What causes a boiling water sound when I inhale or exhale? It is at the bottom part of the right rib running around to the back.

Would this cause a high temperature? At first I could feel a sharp pain round this region.

REPLY.

Have your chest examined for empyema, lung abscess, and tuberculosis.

CHRONIC HICCOUGHS.

Mrs. E. E. H.: Can you suggest a remedy for chronic hiccoughs? A man here has had them for two years. What is the cause?

REPLY.

The probability is that this man has a growth or some other diseased condition in his stomach or in some other organ in his upper abdomen or in the bottom of his chest near his diaphragm or somewhere in the middle line deep in behind his breast bone.

SLEEPY IN DAYTIME.

Mrs. A. T. writes: What causes one to have a sleepy, drowsy feeling throughout the day? I sleep soundly at night, but cannot keep awake during the day.

REPLY.

Assuming that you are organically sound, all you need to do is to lead a more active life. Work or exercise more in the open air and increase your interests.

SEWERS FOR NATCHEZ AVENUE.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—I am a property owner in the 5500 block of North Natchez avenue. I am very anxious to know if there are any possibilities of sewers for this district in the near future. We need them badly. E. F. E.

Your property located just south of Bryn Mawr avenue is part of the district to be served by the Bryn Mawr avenue outlet sewer, proceedings for which have just been confirmed in County court, and construction of which we hope will begin this spring. Plans for lateral sewers to connect to this outlet are now being made, and petitions for such laterals may be sent in at any time by property owners. The existing sewer in Bryn Mawr avenue of which mention is made was built by and for the use of the property north of Bryn Mawr avenue before that part south was annexed to the city, and it was not intended to be used by this newly annexed territory.

Assistant Chief Engineer of Sewers.

WORRIED ABOUT REMOTE CONTINGENCY.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A is a life insurance policyholder in a Canadian company which is chartered to write in the United States. The amount of his life insurance is $3,000 and contains the customary disability clause. It is written on the ordinary life plan and consequently the termination date is far in advance.

1. What would happen if the United States would suddenly find itself at war with the British government? 2. Where would the insured pay his premiums, 3. and in paying such premiums would he be guilty of "trading with the enemy"? 4. If he should be unfortunate enough to become disabled during such war, how would he receive the disability benefits provided in his contract? 5. If he were to die, where would the beneficiary make application for her money and would there be a possible delay in the settlement of the claim?

M. A. Z.

1. Nothing necessarily with respect to the policy. 2. Depends on legislation passed, etc. 3. Yes, if such laws were passed. 4. Depends on current law. 5. Same. We regard the contingency as extremely remote.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROHIBITION PRIMER.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me the difference between the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law. J. R. W.

1. The 18th amendment is the addition to our federal constitution which declares the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors illegal.

2. The Volstead act provides procedure and penalties for carrying prohibition into effect. It is a statute passed by congress.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

45 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Senator Trumbull and Representatives Wilson and Dawson as the select committee of the houses of congress waited upon President Lincoln and informed him of his reelection. To this he responded: 'Having served four years in the depth of a great and yet unended national peril, I can view this call to a second term in nowise more flattering to myself than as an expression of the public judgment that I may better finish a difficult work in which I have labored from the first than could any one less severely schooled to the task. In this view, and with increased reliance on the Almighty Ruler who has so graciously sustained us thus far, and with increased gratitude to the generous people for their continued confidence, I accept the renewed trust with its onerous and perplexing duties and responsibilities."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following dispatch has been received from Maj. Gen. Gillmore, commanding at Charleston, S. C.: "An inspection of the rebel defenses of Charleston shows that we have taken over 450 pieces of ordnance, more than double what I first reported."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The report of the conference committee of congress, requiring the Illinois Central railroad to execute the provision in its charter stipulating for free transportation of United States troops, elicited a heated discussion but finally passed by a large majority. At this writing both houses are in session on appropriation bills with no prospect of speedy adjournment. The best of humor prevailing and no drunkenness.

NEW YORK.—The Richmond Enquirer says the rebel congressmen have become so frightened that they are fleeing from Richmond, and Jeff Davis' congress is without a quorum.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1900.

LONDON.—The rescue of the almost starving garrison at Ladysmith, following so closely the relief of Kimberley and the surrender of Gen. Cronje, turned all England into a sea of rejoicing. Such demonstrations as the day witnessed throughout the isles were unprecedented. Sir Redvers Buller is the man of the hour and with Lord Dundonald is placed on the same pedestal in the public esteem with Lords Roberts and Kitchener and Gen. French. In London business was practically suspended and crowds poured into the streets, cheering and singing all day. Details of the relief of Ladysmith are meager, but the British public knows that Gen. White and his soldiers have been released at last and is satisfied to wait for particulars.

MANILA.—Col. Anderson with the 28th infantry, employing the insurgents' own tactics, ambushed the enemy near Batangas. Through spies Col. Anderson learned that a detachment of Filipinos would pass a certain road. He posted his soldiers, concealed among trees lining the road, and when the enemy arrived the Americans volleyed unexpectedly, killing 24, wounding 30, and capturing several. Previously, seven miles from San Fernando de la Union, 100 insurgents ambushed ten men of the 3d cavalry and killed one American.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 2, 1920.

TRENTON, N. J.—New Jersey's now famous beer bill which would make it legal in this state to manufacture, sell and transport beverages containing not more than 3.5 per cent alcohol by volume and which passed the house a week ago, was adopted by the senate by a vote of 12 to 9 after a bitter debate. It is said Gov. Edwards will sign it at once. The law will be used as the foundation of a fight Attorney General McCram will make in the United States Supreme court against the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

CHICAGO.—Federal Judge Geiger in Milwaukee handed down a decision upholding the Mulberger law passed by the Wisconsin legislature and legalizing the manufacture and sale of 2.5 per cent beer in Wisconsin. The decision was in a suit brought by the Manitowoc Products company for an injunction to halt enforcement of the Volstead act. Judge Geiger ruled that it is the sovereign right and police power of each state to fix its own standard of what constitutes intoxicating liquor.

LONDON.—The soviet troops have gained a great victory on the Bielaya front in North Caucasus, according to an official announcement at Moscow. Gen. Denekine's first Kuban corps has been annihilated, many perishing in battle and others being taken prisoner. The Reds are reported to be advancing rapidly.

DISCRIMINATION IN THE COLLEGES.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Nonfraternity college men and nonsorority women in the midwest noted with interest the recent presentation of loving cups to fifty-two fraternity and sorority sophomores at Northwestern university for scholastic attainments. Mr. Airth, donor of the cups, appears to have ignored the nonfraternity and nonsorority people in his awards. The unorganized students—independents, as they are called at some institutions—are accustomed to such oversights. President David Kinley and Dean Thomas Arkle Clark of the University of Illinois—both gray haired and still wearing their fraternity pins daily—state that they can see little justification for the Independent council, Illinois' independent men's organization. Yet when complimentary balcony tickets were distributed by the University of Illinois' athletic department for the Army-Illini dance last fall, fraternity men, less than three thousand in all, received over five hundred tickets, while independent men, numbering over four thousand, received fifty. And it is doubtful whether they would have received that many had it not been for the incessant clamoring of the Independent council. The presentation of these tickets at Illinois and the awarding of the scholarship trophies at Northwestern, of course only minor incidents at best, are nevertheless examples of the unfair discrimination that independent students everywhere experience.

Illinois independents are asserting themselves through their Independent council. Many Northwestern and Chicago independents have expressed their approval of the contemplated establishment of organizations similar to Illinois', but they desire the coöperation of their presidents, deans, and alumni, something which the Illini have not yet received. THEODORE J. WANG.

BUSINESS MEN AND BEAUTY.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—The season of beauty contests will soon be here. Private business enterprises, associated business enterprises, amalgamated business enterprises; in fact, business enterprises of every kind and description, will attempt to select the girl with the most beautiful figure, the girl with the most beautiful face, the girl with the most beautiful hair, hands, eyes, etc. Many or all such contests will be judged by business men or by men who aim to promote business for themselves or others. In short, the beauty contests of today are nearly always judged by business standards rather than by art standards. A mayor, an alderman, a moving picture master of ceremonies, or the president of the local chapter of the Whatnot club has no artistic license to pass judgment on the beauty of the human form.

If a beauty contest is to merit the serious attention of the public and properly justify the expenditure of time and effort by those behind the movement, it is of extreme importance, I believe, that the judges be artists of national or international reputation.

HIRED KILLERS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—You give space in your paper to a certain policeman who killed eight or ten men gaining a promotion. Why do you not place him in the category of a hired killer? He admits killing these men and was hired by the city for that purpose if necessary. Probably he made some mistakes and killed innocent men, but because he was not a dry agent his conduct is praised or at least not condemned.

POSTOFFICE WAGES.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—That great pa[tron] master general of ours, Walter [F.] Brown, has gone on record as be[ing] against granting the postal workers [of] this country a Saturday half holi[day] and the raising of the wages of [the] postoffice laborers to the munificent [sum] of $1,800 maximum per year.

Mr. Brown gives as his reason that he is trying to wipe out the post[al] deficit. Would it be amiss to ask why the postmaster general is so anxious to help wipe out the postal deficit at the expense of the postoffice workers when congressmen are allowed franking privileges that run into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, and when the big business man is allowed to send mail at the rate of 1½ cents per ounce in no way commensurate with the actual cost, and use other postal service which is in no way paid for near actual cost.

The cost for running our army and navy runs into hundreds of millions each year, without practically any source of revenue to make up the cost. Did any one ever suggest that the army and navy must pay for themselves? As long as the country insists on low rates and the best possible service, the deficit of the postoffice service should be paid without a whimper just as the bill for the army and navy is paid. POSTAL WORKER.

ANOTHER RACKET!

Chicago, Feb. 19.—I have a son who is employed as helper in a gas filling station. Recently a man in a big Lincoln car drove up to the station and informed the boy that they were organizing a "gas station helpers' union" and that he would have to join; the fee for joining would be $15 and the dues $2 a month.

A few days ago the same fellow again called on the boy and told him he would be around the first of the month for the $15 initiation fee.

The boy, so far as we can learn, will receive no benefits from the union. He will have no shorter hours and will receive no more pay and he is asked to contribute $42 a year to an organization which is not of one penny benefit to him.

It seems to us that this is just another of the rackets with which Chicago is overrun at present and it seems to us as if the authorities should take a hand in it and nip it in the bud.

The big oil companies such as the Standard, the Sinclair and others are surely strong enough and have enough interest in their employes to take a hand in this matter and protect them. J. H. B.

SMUT IN THE THEATER.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 20.—Is it not possible to induce the theaters to purge their programs of some of the vulgarities that are now being dished out to a suffering public? I refer specifically to some of the acts put on by so-called refined vaudeville houses. Dropping into a local circuit house this week in the matinée, I encountered a typical case. A turn put on by a man and woman was one continuous presentation of suggestive nastiness; in fact, it was more than suggestive, as it could leave no doubt to man, woman, or girl or boy in their teens as to what was meant. It was intended to be "nastily funny" but became "vulgarly obscene."

I am far from being a reformer or moralist, but as a man paying for a theater seat to be entertained I think I am within my rights in demanding a performance at least free from filth. E. L. R.

OAK PARK YOUTH BEATS N. DAME PRIEST; JAILED

Student Lays Row to His Arrest in Prom Dispute.

Harold Simpson, 21 years old, 832 Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park, a student at Notre Dame university, was locked up by the South Bend police yesterday on charge of assault with intent to kill. He was accused of beating the Rev. Allan Heiser, 45 years old, director of off campus students at the university. Father Heiser is in St. Joseph's hospital at South Bend suffering from an injury to one eye and severe cuts and bruises on his face.

The trouble between Simpson and the priest started on Friday night when the youth attended the Notre Dame junior prom with an Oak Park girl. After taking the girl, whose identity he refused to reveal, into the dance hall, Simpson left the place to get a package of cigarets. When he returned, he said, the priest met him at the door and questioned him about his right to reënter, Simpson having left his ticket inside.

According to Father Heiser, Simpson had no ticket when he appeared at the door and tried to gain entrance by climbing a fire escape, setting off the alarm installed by the management of the Palais Royale to warn of intruders.

Causes Youth's Arrest.

After a brief dispute Father Simpson caused the youth's arrest for investigation and he was held at the South Bend police station until 10 a. m. yesterday, still clad in the evening clothes in which he attended the dance. Simpson was unable to learn what had become of the girl who accompanied him to the prom and how she had reached her home in Oak Park, and upon his release from the jail he went immediately to the priest's rooms in a residence hall on the campus.

Simpson said he demanded an apology from the priest for having caused his arrest on Friday evening, but, instead of apologizing, the youth asserted, Father Heiser called him several objectionable names. Simpson admitted that he struck the priest several times with a short riding whip which he was carrying at the time.

University Starts Probe.

University authorities immediately started an investigation of the affair and a short time later had Simpson arrested on the assault charge. He was still held last evening while arrangements were being made to obtain his release on bonds, which were fixed at $5,000. The charge of assault in Indiana carries a sentence of one to ten years.

Pioneer Is 87 Today

MRS. BEDELIA GARRAGHAN.

Remembering way back when Chicago was a bit of a town where Indians lolled about taverns will be the pleasant task today for Mrs. Bedelia Kehoe Garraghan, 3300 Sheridan road. Mrs. Garraghan, who claims to be the oldest living native born citizen, is 87 years old today.

Chicago hadn't been a town very long when Mrs. Garraghan was born in a cottage near Randolph and Canal streets. Her father, Michael Kehoe, was in the Canal Land offices on Lake street and saw much of the central part of Chicago subdivided.

Mrs. Garraghan's earliest memory goes back to seeing Indians hanging around Bull's Head tavern on Madison street, where Lewis institute is now located. Her early school days were at the Scammon school in Madison street, near Halsted. She also attended St. Xavier's academy, at Madison street and Wabash avenue. She recollects among her schoolmates Isabelle Pinkerton, Rose Ella Gavin, Marian Nugent, who became the wife of Col. James A. Mulligan, Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. Henry Guerin, Marriel McDonnell, and Katie and May Cure.

U. S. COMMISSION BREAKS BOYCOTT ON HAITI PROBE

Opens Hearings; Lawyer First Witness.

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

PORT AU PRINCE, March 1.—President Hoover's commission settled down today to its actual investigation of the Haitian situation after a nerve-racking start, due to the original intention of opponents of the American occupation to boycott the commission's hearings.

After leaders of the anti-occupation faction had been reassured the commission really intended to solve the Haitian problem, if possible, they withdrew their opposition and the first witness against the American régime presented his arguments in the presence of Haitian as well as American newspaper men.

This witness, Pierre Lespinasse, is a lawyer. Before he was excused there came from William Allen White, one of the commission, a suggestion of a non-political union of Caribbean republics as a possible remedy for many of the ills of Haiti and her sister republics.

Sketches History of Haiti.

Lespinasse sketched his history of Haiti since it became an independent state 120 years ago. The Haitians, he said, had fought side by side with the Americans at Savannah in America's war for independence. They had been the only Negro people to win their freedom by force of their own arms and they had developed a civilization in spite of world-wide distrust and opposition. This civilization, the witness said, was very different from the Anglo-Saxon civilization and Americans are unable to understand it.

Opponents of the occupation have set great hope by President Hoover's statement a month ago that the commission would seek a way to make possible the withdrawal of the marines. It is evident they expect the commission itself almost immediately to end the American control, which, obviously, is impossible.

Chairman Sounds Warning.

The statement by Mr. Lespinasse today that the Haitians expected the council of state to be done away with while the commission is here, drew from W. Cameron Forbes, commission chairman, the warning that Haitians could not expect the commission to take any part in a change so sudden that it would be almost a revolution.

"What has been done by force can be undone the same way," the witness asserted.

It was this desire for instant action that moved editors of the opposition press last night to decide this commission was only a gesture. This morning they published an appeal to Haitians to stay away from the hearings. Accordingly, when the commission prepared to open hearings this morning not one appeared in front of the hotel where yesterday thousands waved their banners of protest.

Vasquez, who is going to Porto Rico, will not return to Santo Domingo until after the elections in May.

The national assembly will meet tomorrow morning to consider the resignation of Vice President Alfonseca and the withdrawal of President Vasquez.

Railroad Plans $1,500,000 Tunnel Under Quebec City

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 1.—At a cost of $1,500,000 the Canadian Pacific railway plans to construct a tunnel almost a mile long under the western part of the City of Quebec. The bill for the project will be submitted at the present session of parliament. The tunnel will be designed to afford direct connection with Quebec harbor.

HUGE TELESCOPE TO BRING STARS NEARER EARTH

Four Times as Strong as Others Used.

Lynn, Mass., March 1.—(AP)—Success in surmounting the first big obstacle to the 200 inch telescope which will peer four times farther into space than man ever looked before, was announced tonight by Dr. Elihu Thomson.

No way existed, when work began a year ago, of making a smooth quartz glass surface anywhere near the size needed for this great reflector, which is equal to that of the floor of a 17 foot room. The first two methods attempted failed. One tried melting tiny bits of quartz and the other large slabs.

Then something like the latest method of spraying paint on automobile bodies was tried—the suggestion of a laboratory assistant. It worked. The quartz was ground into a white powder resembling flour, and then run through a roaring blow torch which sprayed it flaming at 3,000 degrees upon the mirror backing.

Would Lift Zeppelin.

The torch is an oxyzen-hydrogen flame. When the 200 inch mirror is sprayed, the hydrogen needed, it is estimated, would lift a Zeppelin. Meanwhile the scientists have to make a less voracious torch.

Two-foot mirrors are the largest thus far made by the hot glass sleet. When the big one is made it is predicted field glasses will be used for observation to keep out of range of the withering heat. A special foundry will be built, having a dome, which a crane can lift entirely clear of the roof.

"Up to this time," said Dr. Thomson, "we did not feel justified in saying much about our progress. But now we have made a number of good discs of the two-foot size, and we feel confident we can successfully meet the problems concerned in the still larger ones.

"We hope to produce a 60 inch mirror this coming summer, and if that is successfully done, we then shall prepare for the 200 inch size with one or more intermediate steps."

Cost $6,000,000.

Cost of the telescope is estimated at $6,000,000. The International Board of Education financed it for the California Institute of Technology, and the General Electric company, of which Dr. Thomson is an official, is contributing the mirror work at cost.

Although only twice the diameter of the present largest telescope, the new mirror will collect four times as much light and is expected to "see" that much farther. The present limit is the distance light travels in about 150 million years. Through all that vast distance telescopes bring into view whole island universes of stars, with great empty spaces between.

MICHIGAN CO-ED TURNS ON GAS AND KILLS SELF

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 1.—[Special.]—Frances Eleanor Johnson of Flint, a sophomore in the University of Michigan, committed suicide early this morning. She was 22 years old.

After penning a note asking that "No one be blamed for my act," Miss Johnson entered the room of a fellow girl student and ended her life by turning on the gas. In the note, which she wrote to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Johnson of Flint, the girl gave despondency and ill health as the reason for her act and asked that they take charge of the body. It was removed to Flint this afternoon.

Miss Johnson, who seldom went out on dates, had proved herself a brilliant student. She entered Michigan this fall. After graduating from Flint High school in 1928, she enrolled at Oberlin college last year and ranked near the head of her class.

DUKE GOES BROKE; FACES LOSS OF 2 GERMAN CASTLES

Court Orders Lands Sold at Auction.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 1.—Two castles of a former reigning sovereign near the famous city of Weimar will be the prey of hard hearted auctioneers, unless people of the former duchy come to the rescue of their erstwhile ruler, Duke Ernst Bernhard Saxe-Altenburg, from his latest financial difficulties.

The courts recently decreed his 400,000 acre hunting preserve, Briseneck, shall be sold to pay his debts on March 21. Along with the land will go Herzogstuhl, which the duke's family always termed its favorite castle. A new court order just made public calls for the additional sale of the famous old hunting castle, Froehliche Widerkunft, on April 7.

Confronted with the hopelessness of trying to save the hunting preserve and its castle, the duke and his coterie of loyal friends are desperately striving to make an arrangement with his creditors to escape the auctioning of the latter castle. In this castle he has been employed in scientific labors for the last few years.

Unlike the usual bankrupt nobles the duke's troubles are not due to profligate extravagance. He is an astronomer of renown, as well as an explorer. He is said to know little of business dealings and is considered to be the victim of bad advice on investments.

Much of the fortune, which dwindled in his hands, also went for the famous Filchener expedition to the heart of Asia and other expeditions to arctic and oceanic regions, in some of which he personally participated. He spent part of his money subsidizing the esthetic aspirations of a local ducal theater.

The duke is 59 years old. Although his family had not participated and had not trained him for the rôle, he nevertheless became ruler of the province of Saxe-Altenburg through a series of deaths. Trained as a soldier, despite his scientific leanings, he took an active part in the great war, rising to the command of a division with the rank of lieutenant general. He led his own Saxon troops, at his own request, until he was retired by a leg wound.

When the republic was proclaimed and he lost his scepter, the government awarded him a fortune in settlement of his claims. All has now slipped through his fingers. His friends say it was paper money and that the Saxe-Altenburg people ought to help save their erstwhile ruled from the poorhouse.

HUBBY SAYS WIFE USED A GUN TO KEEP HIM HOME

John Rufus Hurlburt, advertising man of the Eastgate hotel, yesterday filed a suit for divorce in the Superior court against his wife, Mrs. Margaret Alice Hurlburt, 34 years old. The bill, drawn by Attorney William Gemmill Jr., charges that the wife kept him sitting in a chair for four hours on Oct. 20, 1928, at the point of a revolver, threatening to shoot him if he moved. She released him when she felt sure he would be unable to keep his supposed appointment with another woman, the husband charges.

The bill alleges that the wife once tried to stab Hurlburt with an ice pick and beat him on numerous occasions. He asks for the custody of their daughter, Charlotte Coates Hurlburt, 14 years old, a student at Notre Dame academy at Moylan, Pa. The Hurlburts were married on July 12, 1915, at Lowell, Mass., and separated in October, 1928. Mrs. Hurlburt is now in Washington, D. C.

HOUSE OF DAVID TRUCE MAY BE ENDED BY SUIT

Benton Harbor, Mich., March 1.—[Special.]—Plans announced a week ago for the equal division of the House of David's property between "Queen" Mary Purnell and Attorney H. T. Dewhirst, were jeopardised today.

Mrs. Emma Bushke of Detroit, Mich., widow of the late Lewis Bushke of Benton Harbor, who was the first local man to join the colony when it was organized in 1903, today filed a petition in Berrien county's Probate court for appointment as special administrator of the estate, for the purpose of bringing suit against the House of David.

Mrs. Bushke's new suit may wipe out the truce between Dewhirst and Mary. Today's petition did not state any amount, but it is known that Bushke put in a large fortune.

GOFF DENOUNCES COALITION FOR TARIFF DELAY

Charges Treason to Party Hampers Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Responsibility for existing business uncertainty and the resultant unemployment problem was placed squarely upon the shoulders of the senate radical Republican-Democratic coalition by Senator Guy D. Goff [Rep., W. Va.]

With their eyes on the coming congressional campaign, the allies have deliberately obstructed and delayed passage of the pending tariff revision bill in the hope that blame for unsettled conditions may be laid against the Republican administration, the West Virginia senator charged in a floor speech.

Recalls Party Promises.

After reviewing the history of tariff legislation and the contribution of the protective tariff system to the country's development, Goff turned to the tariff plank in the 1928 platform of the Republican party and the Democratic party's pledge of "maintenance of legitimate business and a high standard of wages for American labor." In the face of those promises, Goff asserted, the coalition embarked, as soon as the bill was brought to the senate floor by the finance committee, upon a "ruthless, blind and unreasoning slaughter of important rate paragraphs" and destruction of vital administrative features, which threatens the existence of American industry.

"It is too bad," said the senator, "to have to record all this here. I regret it particularly for the sake of President Hoover, who will find no balm of Gilead in the real attitude of the coalition toward the one suggestion he has made to which they have paid lip service, and to which they have from time to time given the stamp of their approval—the approval of hypocrites, the approval of a Brutus plotting all the while to tear down and destroy."

Time after time the coalition claiming to speak for American labor and agriculture, Goff went on, brutally has ignored the voices and interests of those groups, particularly, he asserted, when it voted to continue the present system of basing ad valorem duties on foreign valuations, defeated a proposal to give American producers and labor the right to intervene in customs court cases brought by importers, and destroyed the flexible tariff provision.

Success Appears a Crime.

"As I have listened," he said, "to these outrageous tactics on the floor of this senate it has seemed to me that only one conclusion was possible, namely, that to the senate coalition it was some sort of a heinous crime for an industry to be successful."

"For six months," he asserted at another point, "these coalition forces—these Democrats and insurgent Republicans—have been doing everything within their power to attack the high economic standards we have built up in this country over the last century and a half.

"I assert that the senate's consideration of this tariff bill has been a breeder of industrial uncertainty and added to the unemployment of American labor. And the coalition is responsible, in part at least, for this situation by reason of the shameful delay in consideration and passage of the bill."

BRAZIL ELECTS PRESTES AS ITS NEXT PRESIDENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 1.—(AP)—Though definite figures in the Brazilian presidential and congressional elections were not available tonight, the victory of the administration ticket was generally conceded. Julio Prestes is certain to be the next president, and Vital Soares the next vice president of the country.

The opposition, however, made a strong fight, and the question interesting every one tonight was how great the administration's majority would be. Some observers predicted a close vote, and the consensus is that the government will prove to have won by a 4 to 3 ratio.

Even the government officials concede that the opposition carried the Rio de Janeiro federal district. It probably will also carry the states of Rio Grande do Sul, Parahyba, and Minas Geraes. Reports received this evening from states as far distant as the basin of the Amazon river show that the balloting was orderly in all sections.

Loyola Dean to Discuss 'Roman Question' Tonight

The Rev. Frederic Seidenburg, S. J., dean of the school of sociology at Loyola university, will be the principal speaker tonight at the banquet of the international student council of foreign missions of the Catholic church, at the Ida Noyes hall at the University of Chicago. Father Seidenburg will speak on "The Roman Question" and will discuss the present relationship between the Vatican and the Italian government in the light of the recent treaty.

18 Families Driven from Homes by West Side Fire

Eighteen families were driven to the street in the wintry blasts by smoke from a fire that started in the basement of a three story store and apartment building at Division street and Crawford avenue early this morning. The flames damaged the United Dry Goods store and the barber shop of Samuel Lieberman, 1206 and 1204 North Crawford avenue, and the apartment of Ray Rosenthal above the store. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

Madison, Ind., Cashier Kills Self in Street with Pistol

Madison, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Miss Lela Lee, 21, cashier in a restaurant, committed suicide by shooting herself in the head on a side street here tonight. In her purse was found a card bearing the name of F. Shankin, 6735 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago, believed to be a law student.

TRANSIT MERGER PLANS REVIVED; CALL MEETINGS

Hope to Reach Agreement on Financial Plan.

The transit problem, in which little interest has been shown of late, appeared yesterday to be about to reenter the spotlight. With the city's financial crisis temporarily relieved, although far from solved, transit leaders and representatives of the bondholders of the existing car companies are planning a series of meetings on the proposed franchise for the coming week.

The conferees will gather to attack the obstacles which have been obstructing progress on the drafting of a financial plan for consolidation of the transit systems. They will undertake, the reports say, to reach a basis for the exchange of securities in the present companies for those which would be issued for the consolidated system.

Seek Agreement by July 1.

It is understood that the transit interests are anxious to perfect an agreement as soon as possible so that the financial provisions can be written into the new franchise ordinance and submitted to the voters before July 1. If an agreement cannot be reached, it is said that an announcement of that fact will be made.

The difficulty of the task has been in evidence since work started on a consolidation of the transit systems. When Samuel Insull appointed a committee of four bankers last October to draft franchise financial provisions the purpose was to prepare a workable financial plan that will be acceptable to holders of 27 kinds of securities and to Federal Judge Wilkerson, the city attorneys, the aldermen, the mayor and the voters.

The goal sought in the proposed franchise ordinance is a Chicago transportation system which will include a consolidation of the existing lines and provisions for large extensions. The merger and the extensions would provide a transit system valued at nearly $500,000,000.

Wait for Financial Plan.

But until the financial plan is settled the negotiations apparently are at a standstill. The city has drafted all other sections of the ordinance, which have been revised by attorneys for the companies and then rewritten. The council local transportation committee has been called to a meeting on Thursday, at which efforts will be made to adjust remaining differences so that all will be ready for the financial plan.

Among the problems which are expected to be discussed at this week's meetings of the bondholders and the companies' executives are those relating to what kind of securities should be issued for the consolidated company, the basis of exchange of present securities for the new ones and what income the consolidated property must have.

The stumbling block in the previous negotiations is said to have been the basis for exchange of securities. The first mortgage bondholders are unwilling, according to reports, to have their bonds reclassified as junior securities to provide a first mortgage rating for the new money in the consolidation.

Dry Official Held

RICHARD J. PROUD.

Richard J. Proud, chief investigator of the prohibition unit in Chicago, sold secret records on an important Wisconsin liquor conspiracy investigation for $75, it was charged yesterday when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker. Proud was held in $10,000 bond pending a hearing March 5.

Samuel Prokrass and his brother-in-law, Joseph Luber of Milwaukee, were held in bonds of $10,000 and $5,000 respectively. They were seized when Proud gave them the records in the Chicago & North Western station Friday evening. According to W. M. Joerling, special prohibition inspector, Prokrass is known to have interests in breweries and distilleries in Wisconsin.

Joerling said Proud had been giving information to bootleggers for some time. Proud is charged with illegally disclosing information contained in government files, conviction for which carries a penalty of five years in the penitentiary and $5,000 fine, with accepting a bribe and with conspiracy to reveal government information. Prokrass and Luber are charged with conspiracy and bribery.

BELCASTRO AND HEITLER FALL IN POLICE NET

Mike de Pike Heitler, James Belcastro, labor leader and alleged head of a bomb trust, and Louis Clementi, ex-convict and alleged killer, were arrested last night in the headquarters of the Gas Fillers association in the Mid City Bank building at Madison and Halsted streets. They were unarmed and were held at the detective bureau on suspicion.

Sergt. William Byrne and his detective bureau squad went to the association rooms on the fourth floor after an anonymous informant had told them they would find a gang of hoodlums there. Heitler, Belcastro and Clementi said they had no connection with the fillers association and had merely dropped in for a visit.

MERCHANTS JOIN PROTEST AGAINST BRIDGE NUISANCE

Point to Delays During Shopping Hours.

The State street merchants joined in the widespread protest against the open bridge nuisance yesterday. Elmer T. Stevens, president of Charles A. Stevens & Brothers, and Leon Mandel, general manager of Mandel Brothers, both condemned the antiquated bridge regulations as injurious to the rights of their customers and praised the attempts now being made to increase the closed periods.

Mr. Stevens and Mr. Mandel expressed these views to Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein, special assistant corporation counsel assigned to the city council bridge committee. Mr. Goldstein has received a score of similar complaints from civic organizations and transportation companies in the last two weeks.

Rules Ignore Shoppers.

"The present bridge closed hours may be all right for people employed in the loop or going through the loop to employment elsewhere," said Mr. Stevens, "but they totally ignore that class of citizens upon which the stores must depend—the customers.

"Customers have learned that they can do their shopping best when the clerks are not out for lunch and other loop employés are not shopping—that is, before 11 and after 2. Therefore our stores should be as accessible as possible during those hours, and every bridge opening in that period makes the stores more difficult to reach.

Says Compromise Is Needed.

"As a merchant, I would like very much to see bridges closed continuously during the daytime. As a citizen of Chicago I realise that the users of the river contribute to the prosperity of Chicago, and, for my own interest, must be granted the right to use the river until they are furnished some alternate possibility. Until this time is reached a compromise must be accepted and the proposed extensions of the closed hours to 10 a. m. and from 4 p. m. seem absolutely essential."

Mr. Mandel echoed Mr. Stevens' feelings and pointed out that the customers at his store come from all sections of the city. "The peak business period is at 4 p. m.," Mr. Mandel said, "and many customers are delayed in their homegoing by openings occuring before the closed hours start at 4:30. The proposed extensions would guarantee them a quick trip."

FIND FARMER HANGED SELF.

Kewanee, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—A verdict of suicide by hanging was returned by a coroner's jury after investigating the death of Camiel Claeys, 53, Geneseo farmer. His body was found in a corncrib.

MRS. BOURNE AND EX-CHICAGOAN WED QUIETLY

The marriage of Mrs. Florence Whiting Bourne to Rudolph Prussing of Cleveland was solemnized quietly at 4 p. m. yesterday at Mrs. Bourne's apartment at 1247 North State street. Miss Carol Bourne acted as maid of honor for her mother and Waldo F. Tobey was best man for Mr. Prussing. The bride wore beige printed chiffon and carried Talisman roses.

The ceremony was attended by a small group of relatives and close friends. After a wedding trip to Arizona and California Mr. and Mrs. Prussing will reside in Cleveland and Chicago. Mr. Prussing is a former Chicagoan.

Also of interest to society was the wedding of Miss Esther Stockton Ely of Pittsburgh, Pa. to Clymer S. Bowen, which was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Boyer Ely. Mr. Bowen and his bride will reside at 936 Sheridan road, Lake Forest, on their return from a trip to Florida.

The marriage of Ralph Chester Otis Jr., son of an old Chicago family, to Miss Claire Johnson of Dwight, Ill., was revealed yesterday. Announcement of the marriage was a surprise to friends. Mrs. Otis Sr. is giving a tea for her son's bride in her home at 2530 Lincoln Park West this afternoon. Confirming the report of the marriage last night, Mrs. Otis said she believed that it took place during the Christmas holidays in the home of a minister on the south side.

Mr. Otis was divorced by Mrs. Catherine Crerar Otis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crerar, on July 6. Their wedding Jan. 15, 1927, in St. Chrysostom's church was one of the brilliant social events of the season.

WATCH for the car with the GOLDEN ROCKET and ask for a demonstration

On the streets of this city today is the Oakland Eight demonstrator, marked on either side by a large GOLDEN ROCKET. You can see it at almost any hour. The driver is ready to stop at your signal and give you a demonstration.

The GOLDEN ROCKET was chosen to mark this car because it is a symbol of tremendous speed and power. And these are also outstanding characteristics of the New Oakland Eight. Its 85-horsepower eight-cylinder engine develops a full horsepower to every 37 pounds of car weight. That is why there are so few cars which can equal its remarkable speed. That is also why few cars, if any, can pass it on the hills, or match its swift acceleration in traffic. Just watch it for a few minutes, and you will know why it is described as "the car with superior performance."

You can get a demonstration—either by signalling the driver—or by coming to our showroom at the time most convenient to you. We want you to learn that the New Oakland Eight is not only fast and powerful, but unusually smooth and easy to control. We want you to see the attractive appointments of its new and smartly styled bodies by Fisher. We want you to learn that General Motors' new eight-cylinder car offers a high degree of owner satisfaction at an extremely moderate price!

The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers, rear fender guards and spring covers extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

First to Climb Quaker Hill in High!

Until December 19th, 1929, Quaker Hill near Baltimore had never been climbed in high gear by any closed car carrying five passengers, according to all available records. On that day, a New Oakland Eight, not yet presented to the public, accomplished this feat carrying five passengers whose weight totaled 943 pounds. In this dramatic demonstration of climbing ability, the New Oakland Eight presented further proof of its right to be called "the car with superior performance."

JUDGE THACHER ADMITS OWNING UTILITY STOCKS

Radicals Considering His Nomination Shocked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—[Special.]—Senate radicals who consider stock holdings in public utilities a disqualification for public office, but who had not expected to oppose confirmation of Federal District Judge T. D. Thacher as solicitor general of the United States, were placed in an embarrassing situation today by disclosure of the judge's investments in power company securities. Judge Thacher's nomination by President Hoover to succeed Charles Evans Hughes Jr., is pending before a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee.

In response to a telegram from Senator W. E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the subcommittee, Judge Thacher stated that in addition to personal holdings of power company stocks his wife owns securities of the Electric Bond and Share company, and the New York law firm of which he was a member before his appointment to the bench has represented the latter company and other public utilities for many years.

Less than 14 Per Cent of Total.

Included in his personal holdings, which he said "constituted, as of Dec. 31 of last year, less than 14 per cent of my personal investments," Judge Thacher listed 100 shares of the common stock and 400 option warrants of American and Foreign Power company; 55 shares of common stock of Consolidated Gas and Electric company of Baltimore, Md.; allotment certificates for 100 shares of Electric Power and Light corporation, and 400 shares of common stock of National Power and Light corporation. Under the will of his mother, who died last July, Judge Thacher will ultimately receive another 100 shares of American and Foreign Power company preferred stock and 47 shares of Columbia Gas and Electric corporation preferred.

Senators, both radical Republicans and Democrats, who were disposed to approve Judge Thacher's appointment, believing him to be rather more liberal than conservative in his tendencies, were surprised by his admission. The same senators bitterly opposed the recent confirmation of Hugh L. Tait of Tennessee to the interstate commerce commission, because it was shown that Tait's law firm had been retained to represent a division of the Southern railroad in a few Tennessee counties.

Admits Representing Companies.

Judge Thacher's disclosures challenge the consistency of these senators, it is pointed out, in that, while Tait insisted that he did not participate in his firm's conduct of business for the railroad company, the judge readily admitted in his letter to Senator Borah that he actively has represented power companies in litigation.

It appeared virtually certain today that the judge will be asked to dispose of his stock holdings before the Borah subcommittee reports on his nomination.

JURY FREES SERGEANT WHO KILLED PRIVATE

Detroit, Mich., March 1.—(AP)—Sergt. Joseph Poggione of the Michigan national guard, was acquitted late today by a Circuit court jury which tried him for killing Private Stanley Prusinowski, 16, whom Poggione shot to death Jan. 25.

Poggione shot the young private as the latter was running to escape arrest on a warrant charging him with missing drill. The sergeant's defense was his foot slipped on an icy sidewalk as he was firing in the air and that the killing was accidental. Several state witnesses said he took deliberate aim.

The State of Michigan has awarded $5,000 to the family of the dead boy, who was the principal means of support of his widowed mother.

Boy Stricken a Month After Fall on Ice; Dies

A month ago Charles Hood, 16 year old student at Bloom Township High school, slipped and struck his head on an icy pavement in Chicago Heights. The youth felt no ill effects until Friday, when he complained of headache. Yesterday he lapsed into a coma at his home at 1348 Euclid avenue, Chicago Heights, and died. A post-mortem examination disclosed water on his brain. He was the son of Harry Hood, Chicago Heights pharmacist.

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder yesterday presented colors to the Federal post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, composed of postoffice employés, at ceremonies in Washington hall, 19 West Adams street. BRITISH SHUDDER AS NEW BUDGET BOOSTS LEAK OUT

Snowden Program Will Mean Higher Taxes.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—British taxpayers received their first definite jolt from the office where Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden's budget is gradually being put together when the estimates for the civil service and revenue departments were issued today showing an increase of $240,000,000.

The total estimates for these departments were $1,788,942,710.52; the increase in terms of sterling over last year's expenditures being 47,906,103 pounds ($232,818,800.58).

Chief Increases Listed.

The chief increases were grants of nearly $6,000,000 to widows; old age pensions of $25,000,000; unemployment insurance, $32,500,000; other labor and health services, $13,500,000; education, $14,000,000; agriculture and fisheries, $10,500,000.

War pensions were decreased considerably and diplomatic and consular bills slightly, but colonial middle eastern service is up $1,000,000, Indian expenditure is $300,000 higher, and government hospitality, due to the naval conference, is $60,000 more than last year.

The mint wants $750,000, three times what it had the last year, while the police are costing $15,000,000 more and jails, despite the closing of many prisons and the half empty condition of others, are presenting a bill slightly higher than that for last year.

London's Expenses Increase.

Nor have local taxpayers any relief in sight. Londoners, turning from the gloomy figures of the national budget, discovered that London county council bills for next year call for $25,000,000 increase for municipal services alone.

Further depressing light is shed on the present economic condition of England by the gathering of 5,000 farmers at Cambridge, where the speakers deplored the high taxes which are held responsible for increasing unemployment, flooding England with low priced grain, and forcing thousands of acres of land out of cultivation.

RESTAURANT OWNER ROBBED.

Two bandits entered the Universal restaurant at 24 West Van Buren street yesterday and, after threatening S. P. Turas, the owner, and James Sofianos, his assistant, took $30 from the cash register, leaving behind $6 in silver with the remark "Keep the change."

WASHINGTON NOTES

Washington, D. C., March 1.—(AP)—As a further aid to veterans seeking employment, the civil service commission adopted a regulation today providing for the reopening within a year of examinations which have been closed to applicants generally, in order that veterans, afflicted with tuberculosis which has been started may apply for such positions.

Hearings on the Hawley bill to prevent international double taxation of income were completed by the house ways and means committee.

Senate recessed until Monday without taking up the Shortridge amendment for a tariff of seven cents on long staple cotton.

White bill to give preference to purchasers of shipping board lines in the award of ocean mail contracts was passed by the house and sent to the senate.

Charles Finley, a Republican of Williamsburg, Ky., took the oath as a member of the house from the eleventh Kentucky district to succeed John M. Robison, who was made senator.

RICH AMERICAN WIDOW PRESENTS ROME WITH VILLA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 1.—As a token of gratitude to Roman citizens, among whom she has lived for more than 30 years, Mrs. Henrietta Tower Wurts, American millionairess, formerly of Philadelphia, will turn over her handsome villa and magnificent gardens on the slopes of Janiculum hill to the city of Rome next Saturday, it was learned this afternoon.

Premier Benito Mussolini will personally receive the villa in behalf of the city from George B. Page, formerly of Richmond, Va., who will represent Mrs. Wurts. The actual acceptance of the gift, however, took place this morning when Mr. Page made the offer during a conversation with Premier Mussolini.

Along with the villa and its extensive grounds goes a check for $50,000 for the purpose of repairing the villa and improving the gardens. Mrs. Wurts specifies that the grounds be employed as a public park for the benefit of the citizens and never sold or used for other purposes.

Mrs. Wurts' husband, who died in 1923, was connected with the American legation in Florence before the unification of Italy and the couple spent most of their lives in Rome. Her brother, the late Charlemagne Tower, was formerly American ambassador to Russia.

PHONE IN USE; GETS TIRED WAITING; SO HE SHOOTS MAN USING IT

New York, March 1.—[UP]—Donald Leahley won't use a public pay station telephone very long next time.

He got his lesson early today, when he lingered over a call so long an impatient bystander, anxious for a turn at the telephone station, shot him.

Leahley was taken to a hospital with a wound in his right side.

FOUND DEAD OF GAS.

Gelmon Orloss, 38 years old, 630 North Homan avenue, a painter, was found asphyxiated by gas last night in the kitchen of his home with all of the burners on a gas range open. His wife told the police he had been in ill health.

HUNT OWNER OF $250,000 STOCKS LEFT IN N. Y. CAB

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—A brief case containing stock certificates valued at $250,000 is being held at the East 35th street police station while the authorities endeavor to find the owner, believed to be a resident of Tulsa, Okla., who left the case in a taxicab at the Grand Central terminal.

Charles Mintz, a taxicab driver, handed the case to the police. He said he had driven a man with several pieces of baggage to the station, where his fare hurriedly alighted. His next fare, a woman, whose name is not disclosed, found the brief case in the cab and gave it to Mintz.

In the case the police found shares of stock in the General Railway Coupler corporation and railroad passes made out to H. D. Driscoll, identified from letters in the case as an attorney of Tulsa.

This new Sunbeam ULTRA · VIOLITE delivers the safe, beneficial rays and is CERTIFIED TO DO IT by a famous physicist

THE health-building ultra-violet rays of sunshine, now delivered on a known, tested and certified basis!

This is the announcement you have been waiting for, the guide you have been seeking to select a sun lamp with absolute assurance—now a reality in the Sunbeam Certified Ultra-Violite.

O. K.'d in a Professor's Laboratory

Dr. Harvey B. Lemon, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, and nationally recognized authority on light, tested this new sun lamp, using scientific instruments specially constructed for light analysis. He certifies it for abundant ultra-violet in the zone of "unquestioned importance to human health." He found it to exceed clear summer sunlight in this respect as tested in Chicago.

Nature's Greatest Tonic

Now you can have sunshine in a form that makes results prompt and certain. Your whole family can share its gifts of greater health. The cost is but a trifle in comparison. And the Sunbeam lamp will serve you the year round, indefinitely.

Let the Sunbeam Ultra-Violite give you, sir, the teeming energy that keeps you feeling on top of the world. Let it give you, madam, not only brimming vitality, but the sparkling eyes and clear, smooth skin that go with perfect health.

Let its ultra-violet rays give your children the greatest possible guarantee of reaching full growth. For ultra-violet produces supplies of precious Vitamin D within the body, increases calcium, phosphorus, iron, and red blood cells. It spurs growth, hardens bones, increases resistance to disease, and makes children literally bloom with health.

These are among the known benefits of Ultra-Violite. And now that you can have these vital rays on a safe and certified basis, why deprive yourself and family of them longer?

Combine your ultra-violet sun baths with your dressing in the morning.

Doctors Tell Benefits of Ultra-violet

From Berlin come reports that artificial ultra-violet rays are incomparably better for rickets than even natural sunlight.

After experiments conducted on a wide scale, comparing accepted methods of treatment for this disease, Dr. Huldschinsky of the Oscar Helene Home for Crippled Children of Berlin, reports "ultra-violet light yielding incomparably better results."

This authority advises that every child, whether known to have rickets or not, should be exposed to a series of sun baths from ultra-violet lamps.

Colds Reduced 40%

From Cornell University comes new and striking proof of ultra-violet's power to build up human resistance to disease.

Ultra-violet ray treatment of students afflicted with common colds at Cornell University has reduced colds 40% in the last year at that institution according to Dr. D. F. Smiley of the university in a recent report before the American Students Health Association.

Gives Babies Healthy Start

Dr. W. Freund and Dr. K. Schmitt, specialists in women's diseases in Germany, have made some studies to see the effect of ultra-violet ray treatments given during pregnancy. Two hundred and twenty-nine women were treated with the ultra-violet light. Two hundred and twenty other women were not treated with the light and the babies born to the two groups were compared. It was found that the babies from the mothers who received the treatments averaged a quarter of an inch more in length and weighed about one-third of a pound more.

From these observations it is evident that part of the care of the expectant mother is to see that she gets plenty of sunshine. In this way the mother can help insure the maximum of health and strength in the baby, and give the baby a healthy start in life.

Urges Year-round Use

Dr. Howard Francis Humphries, noted physician of London, says: "I think, not only is it certain that in two or three years' time, artificial sunlight will become general as a winter pick-me-up; but that those who have once realized the salutary effects of artificial sunlight will not limit its benefits to the winter time, but will make a habit of it throughout the year."

When ill call your doctor. Do not attempt to treat actual sickness without a physician's advice.

GIRL FROM BOAT LONG IN ICE BUYS 'FLUFFY' THINGS

Back Home from Arctic, She Doffs Boy's Garb.

Seattle, Wash., March 1.—(AP)—Femi[nine] curiosity overcame an acquired [hab]it for a free and easy mode of [dre]ss here today, and Marion Swen[son], 17 year old Seattle high school [girl] who has spent the last eight [month]s dressed as a boy aboard the [whal]ing trading schooner Nanuk, locked in [the] ice off the arctic Siberian coast, went on a shopping tour with her [broth]er and sister soon after stepping [ashore] from Alaska.

"I wonder how I will look in those [funny] long skirts," Marion said as she [set] off in search of "fluffy" things [she] had learned to do without. The [eight]y go lucky girl presented a star[tling] contrast to her fashionably [dress]ed mother and sister as she [began] her shopping tour, in the [breeches], knee boots and mackinaw [she] had worn during her Arctic ad[ventu]re.

Old Clothes Too Small.

Marion had another good reason for [enjoy]ing shopping. She admitted that [during] her enforced stay on the ship [she] had gained many pounds in [weight] and that her old clothes did [not] fit.

"And, of course," she commented, "some of the skirts I had when I went away are long enough. That's why I had to go shopping in these clothes. Honestly, they're all I have that I can wear."

The girl was bubbling over with [suppressed] excitement and joy after [her] 4,000 mile air, land, and sea journey from the Nanuk.

The tragedy of the deaths of Carl [Ben] Eielson, noted Arctic aviator, and [his] mechanic, Earl Borland, Nov. 9, [while] flying from Teller, Alaska, to [the] Nanuk, cast the only shadow [on] her otherwise romantic far north [exp]erience.

Pays Tribute to Flyers.

"It seemed a pity that men as fine [as] Ben Eielson and Earl Borland had [to] die," she said.

Between thrills during the long [search] for Eielson's plane, life aboard the Nanuk was just one day of play[ing] solitaire after another.

"We played every kind of a game [any] one could suggest," the girl con[fided].

She read all the magazines aboard the ship until she could recite from [memory] even the advertisements.

Marion was accompanied on her [journey] home by her father, Olaf [Swen]son, who plans to remove the [million] dollar fur cargo from the [Nanuk] as soon as the bodies of Eiel[son] and Borland can be brought back [to] the states and the planes which [rescued] the Eielson's ship released for [other] duties.

BLAMES MATE'S BIGAMY FOR HER SUICIDE ATTEMPT

To be deserted by one's husband [three] weeks after the wedding is bad, [but] to learn that he had married her [bigamously] was too much. Thus Miss [Sophie] Podsak, 20 years old, 847 North [Hamlin], who has resumed the use of [her] maiden name, explained yesterday [to] Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen [the] round of drinking that had cul[minated] in her attempted suicide. The [charge] of disorderly conduct was con[tinued] until March 8 and the police [were] asked to search for Robert Fer[ver], said to be a hockey player, whom [Miss] Podsak blames for her troubles.

Miss Podsak started out Friday in a [cab] operated by Henry Suida, 739 [North] St. Louis avenue, on a tour of [restaurants] and concluded the celebra[tion] by drinking poison in the cab [near] Fifth street and Indiana avenue. [She] was taken to St. Luke's hospital [and] later to the State Street station.

101 Year Old Spinster Lays Health to Onions

Flemington, N. J., March 1.—[U.P.] [Miss] Ada Wilson Stout arose today, [ate] a medium sized onion with vine[gar] and salt, two slices of bread and [drank] a glass of water, and settled [down] to enjoy her 101st birthday. This [diet] was not unusual, for she has [found] wholesome health-giving qualities [in] onions which are shunned by many. [Miss] Stout has not married, she [says], because she "never really loved [any]one."

FINE FOR LUMBAGO

rub on Sloan's Liniment for relief!

St. Jacob's Oil is just [the] remedy for aches and pains of [neuritis], Neuritis, Lumbago, Back[ache], Rheumatism and sore, swollen Joints. [A] small bottle from your druggist.

ENDS OWN LIFE

EDWARD CASSIDY.

Former Chief of Police Edward Cassidy of Chicago Heights was found dead early yesterday in a gas filled basement at 1300 Halsted street, Chicago Heights. The former chief, who during his two years as head of the Chicago Heights police department was known as an implacable foe of gamblers and booze peddlers, was lying on a bench with his head over an open gas jet. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health.

For five years Cassidy had been in ill health and since leaving a sanitarium two months ago had appeared despondent, according to Police Sergeant John Bricks, who occupies an apartment at the Halsted street number. Sergt. Bricks detected the odor of gas and found the body.

Cassidy was 45 years old and a Chicago Heights policeman for 18 years until his retirement a year ago.

INDIA'S WAR ON RULE OF BRITISH BEGINS SHORTLY

AHMADABAD, Bombay, India, March 1.—(AP)—Vallabhai Patel, who is Mahatma Gandhi's chief lieutenant, in addressing a public meeting today, prophesied that an Indian war would begin soon. The meeting was to outline the inauguration of the all-India national congress civil disobedience campaign. Patel said:

"War unprecedented in the history of the world will begin in a few days, and the beginning will be made at Gujarat [a division of Bombay]. Those who are afraid of death should go on a pilgrimage and those possessed of riches should go to foreign countries."

The pundits Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru arrived this morning and conferred with Gandhi. The three planned to meet again in the afternoon. It was understood Gandhi would not publish his ultimatum to the viceroy marking the conditions upon which the civil disobedience campaign will not be initiated until Viceroy Lord Irwin gives his permission. It was stated in authoritative circles, however, that the campaign will be begun within a fortnight.

Canadian Navy Boat Sinks After Grounding on Rock

VICTORIA, B. C., March 1.—(AP)—The Thiepval, a Canadian minesweeper which ran aground on an uncharted rock in Barclay sound, west of Vancouver island on Thursday, slipped off the rock today and sank in 50 feet of water. None of her crew of 22 was on board, all having left yesterday.

BANDITS ROUT POSSE, WOUND THREE; ESCAPE

Fight Two Gun Battles; Drop Bank Loot.

Mattoon, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Two bandits who attempted to rob the First National bank of Humboldt, nine miles north of here, today, escaped after wounding three members of a Mattoon police posse in a battle just north of this city. Previously they had fought a gun battle with John W. Poorman, president of the bank, who spread the alarm and routed them from the bank before they could obtain any loot.

The two gunmen entered the bank at 3:05 p. m. just after it had closed, and ordered Poorman and C. C. Franklin of Mattoon, the cashier, to throw up their hands.

President Opens Fire.

As they herded the employes into a cage Poorman slipped to a room in the rear, snatched up a pistol, and began shooting. The bandits returned his fire and, apparently believing they had wounded or killed him, turned their attention to the robbery when he stopped firing.

Poorman, however, ran out a rear door and spread an alarm through the town. The bandits, in the meantime, had locked a safe which they were attempting to open and were unable to reach the bank's funds. One of the bandits had picked up $1,000 from a drawer when the other discovered Poorman had escaped and gone for help. Dropping the cash, both fled to an automobile bearing a Missouri license and headed toward Mattoon.

Poorman notified the Mattoon police and a posse went out to meet the bandits, encountering them a mile north of here, after they had left the main highway, route 25. As the posse closed in, the bandits opened fire with rifles, holding the police off.

Three Are Wounded.

Patrolmen Homer Brinberry and Jason Bence and Charles Smith, the driver of the police automobile, were wounded, but their injuries are slight.

Unable to corner the bandits because of the longer range of their guns, the police car returned to Mattoon and a citizens' posse was organized, several car loads of armed men spreading out over the countryside in an effort to head the bandits off before they reach Springfield or Decatur.

ASKS VET PROTEST AGAINST ORDERS TO MOVE BUREAU

All ex-service men's organizations will be asked to protest the moving of the Veteran's Bureau from 111 North Canal street to the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital at Maywood, Maj. E. S. Dickson, former head of the bureau, said yesterday. March 14 has been set as the date for moving.

"We have tried for a year to prevent this move," Maj. Dickson said yesterday. "We have pleaded with Senators Deneen and Glenn and with Illinois congressman to oppose it, but nothing came of it. Gen. Frank Hines, director of the bureau, promised us to study the matter thoroughly, but his decision was adverse.

"It isn't only Chicago and Cook county veterans who will be discommoded by having to go to Maywood for treatment. The downstate men who have to come to the bureau regularly will be forced to travel the additional distance with slow transportation. It's an injustice to all veterans who come for treatment."

Maj. Dickson is now liaison officer for the Illinois Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Leaky Refrigerator System Routs 100 from Apartments

A leak in an electric refrigerator system in a three story apartment building at 4105 North Damen avenue sent 100 tenants hurrying from their apartments into the corridors early yesterday as fumes spread through the building. The leak was discovered by a young woman tenant, who aroused the other occupants of the building. Firemen under Lieut. Eugene Channing donned gas masks and shut off the refrigeration plant.

YRIGOYEN PARTY JAILS RIVALS AT ARGENTINE POLLS

Seeks Victory by Strong Arm Tactics.

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, March 1.—The election campaign preparatory to tomorrow's polling when 81 national deputies must be chosen by the people throughout the country, is growing fiercer in the provinces, where much violence, arrests, and promiscuous shooting has been reported. The city of Buenos Aires, on the other hand, is taking things more sedately.

Argentina's turbulent province of San Juan, which has recently been providing the most sensational election news, is now the main center of interest.

Opposition Candidates Jailed.

The anti-Yrigoyen candidates in San Juan, Señor Porto and Señor Albornoz, were arrested last night. The charges against them were not divulged. Their legal adviser, Dr. Mulleday, also was arrested, as well as former Deputy Sandez.

The Buenos Aires paper, "La Razon," reports that its observer in the San Juan province has been arrested, while the representative of the newspaper, "La Prensa," has been assaulted by political hoodlums.

Federal Gesture Made.

The ministry of the interior last night telegraphed the provincial governor and the federal officials in San Juan, expressing the government's desire that "adequate measures be taken to insure peace and tranquility" at the elections.

The election may result with an Yrigoyenist victory due to the relentless official pressure. The official oppression includes confiscation of enrollment certificates belonging to those suspected of anti-Regeneration sympathies, and without these they cannot vote. It is feared that tomorrow's election in San Juan may see serious clashes.

'BLUE SKY' LAW VIOLATOR GETS PRISON TERM

Indianapolis, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Carollyn E. Crump, Chicago, 45, received a one to five years' sentence in prison and a $1,000 fine today in County Criminal court for alleged violation of the Indiana "blue sky" law. Crump was charged with offering for sale securities of insolvent issue and with misrepresentation of earnings and dividends. Charges of offering for sale securities of insolvent issue are pending against Mark Bemis, said to have been associated with Crump.

Crump was president of the Indiana Real Estate Securities corporation, closed by the Indiana securities commission in December.

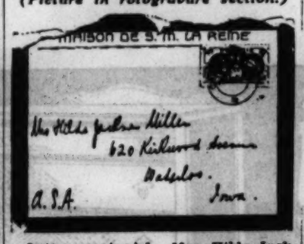
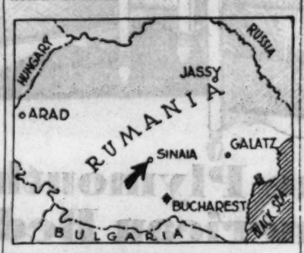
From a Rumanian Palace

(Picture in rotogravure section.)



Letter received by Mrs. Hilda Jackson Miller of Waterloo, Ia.

Built by "Carmen Sylva," Castel Peles is the Rumanian royal palace at Sinaia, in the Carpathian mountains. Sinaia is only a small town, but is a popular meeting place for health seekers.



"Carmen Sylva" was the pen name of Rumania's first queen, Elizabeth, who attained fame as a writer and poet and who also was skilled in painting and music. Her poetic temperament found expression in the castle and in the miles of well kept drives and sylvan paths leading to it. The palace is now the summer playground of the boy king, Michael.

The letter to Mrs. Miller was sent by Queen Marie from Castel Peles soon after the death of King Ferdinand.

Yale Student Is Killed, Vassar Girl Hurt in Crash

Miss Wyler is suffering greatly from shock and it is thought she has some chest injuries. She is at Vassar hospital.

100,000 CHURCH PROSPECTS TO BE REACHED IN DRIVE

20,000 to Canvass City This Week.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The second phase of the Greater Chicago Visitation Evangelism campaign begins today. During the day the Rev. Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, campaign leader from Washington, D. C., will make 17 addresses in churches throughout the city before 20,000 campaign visitors. An intensive school of evangelism will be conducted during the campaign for the visitors who will call on 100,256 listed prospects for church membership.

Nine members of Dr. Kernahan's staff will meet the 20,000 campaigners in daily meetings throughout the city and give courses in evangelistic promotion. According to leaders, the campaign is to be conducted without the emotional fervor of mass evangelistic efforts of the past.

Follow New Methods.

"In this method," said Dr. Kernahan yesterday, "the Christian decision is sought first and the emotional fervor follows. In the older methods the decision to be a Christian was the climax of 'an experience,' which was followed by an anticlimax. The present effort is to lead people to a decision before they have a religious experience—which is more reasonable."

Dr. Kernahan declared that the campaign is not a reform movement. He pointed out that it is a businesslike way to help the church do its real work—"soul winning." He said large groups of people have become wary of the churches because they believe them to be reform agencies only, and that they deal exclusively with legislative moral uplift and social betterment.

Workers Busy for Weeks.

According to the Rev. Dr. Joshua Oden, pastor of the Irving Park Lutheran church, chairman of the campaign committee elected by the Chicago Church federation, the real evangelistic drive will begin next Sunday. For several weeks the survey, which is to be the basis of the campaign, has been carried on by thousands of workers.

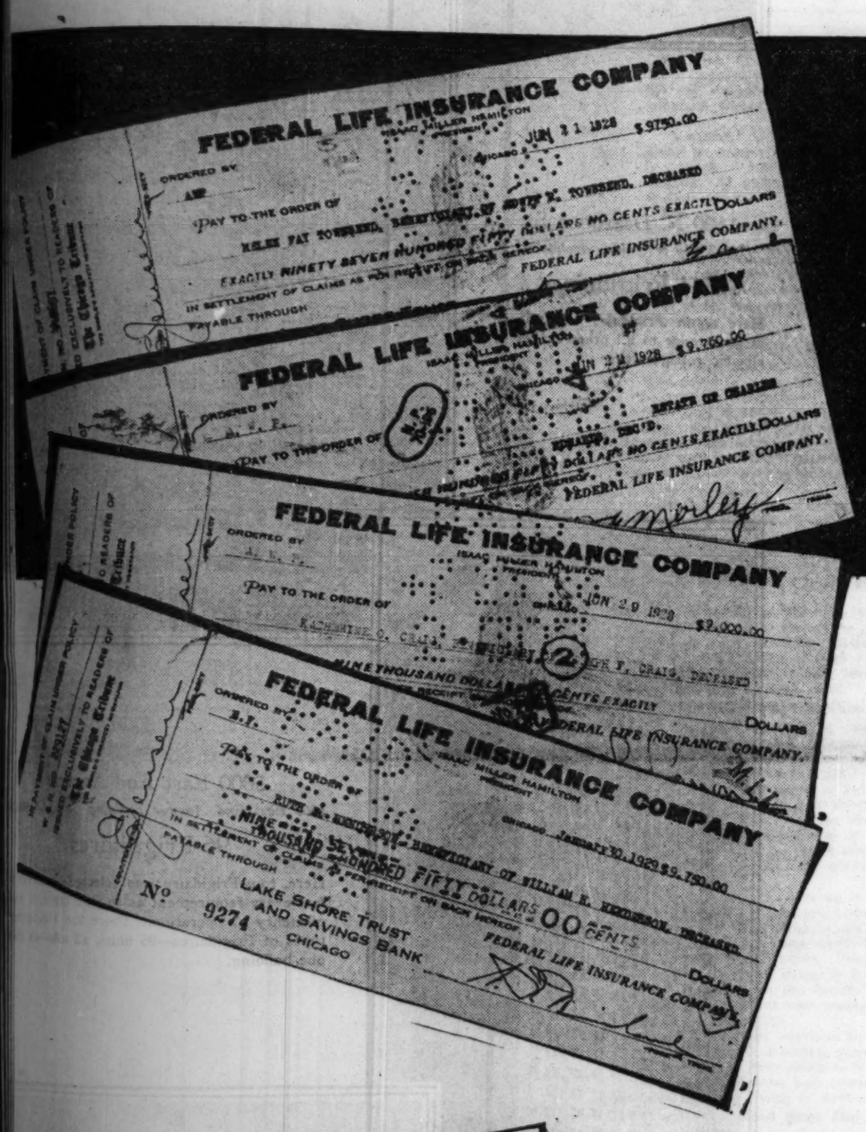
RENEW

Your TRIBUNE-FEDERAL ACCIDENT INSURANCE for another year. It costs only $1.25 with the coupon on page 3



$1,716,756.58

IN REAL CASH has been paid to Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance policyholders and beneficiaries

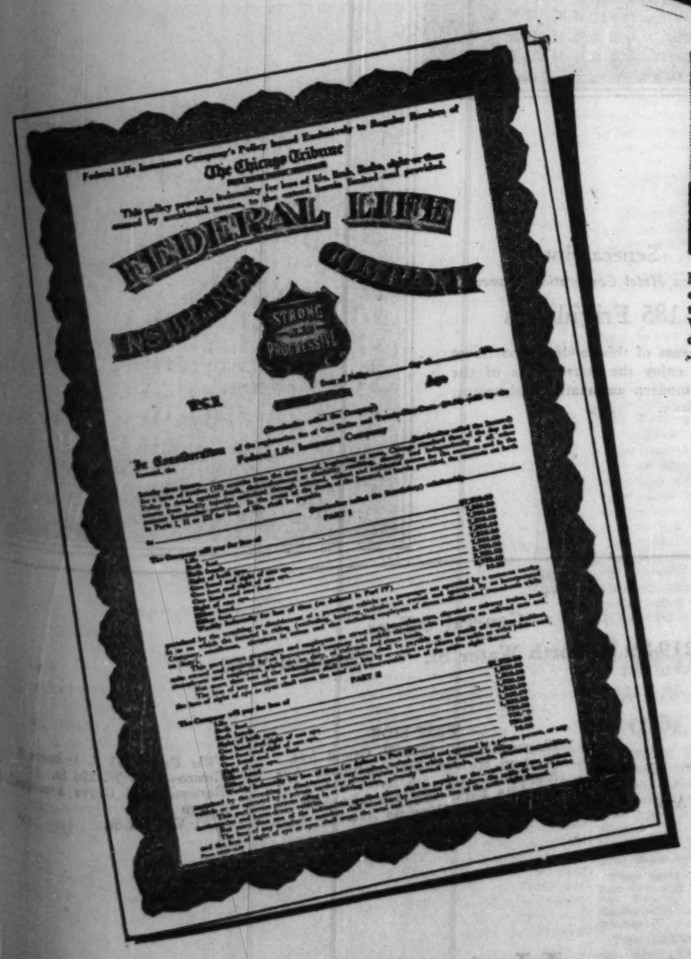
You need this protection more than ever before—Automobile accidents covered by these policies have increased tremendously

IT'S time to renew your Tribune-Federal Travel Accident Insurance. Send $1.25 with coupon on Page 3 for another year's protection. Don't delay. If you do not remember the exact expiration date of your policy, send the coupon now and be sure. You don't have to send in your policy. A receipt will be mailed to you and your insurance will be renewed for a full year from the exact date of expiration.

The staggering increase in deaths and injuries from motor vehicle accidents makes protection against travel accidents most imperative. The Tribune-Federal Travel Accident Insurance Policy is the broadest and most liberal of its kind in America. In many instances it pays large sums of money for accidents not covered at all by the provisions of policies issued through other newspapers.

The very fact that $1,716,756.58 has been paid to holders and beneficiaries of these policies is proof of their tremendous value. This is a special service exclusively for readers of the Chicago Tribune. The issuance of these policies has cost the Tribune to date in excess of $600,000.00. Tribune readers get the benefit.

You are not protected if your policy expires. Don't take a chance. For a new policy or renewal send the coupon on Page 3 at once as directed.



Mrs. Mary Harrison, beneficiary (son killed in taxicab accident), 75 Washington Street, Hinsdale, Illinois, was paid $9,000.00

*Mrs. Eva Wicklander, beneficiary (husband, motorman, killed in train wreck), 52 Elm Avenue, Highwood, Illinois, was paid..... $9,000.00

Howard E. Wilkinson, auto accident. C. E. Wilkinson, beneficiary, 224 South Locust Street, Centralia, Illinois, was paid..... $2,800.00

Carl Olson, struck by auto. Olivia Olson, beneficiary, 8248 South Loomis Street, Chicago, was paid..... $1,100.00

Lillie A. Schlotterbeck, injured in auto accident, 4250 Lamon Avenue, Chicago was paid $150.00

*Bernard J. Leo, injured in motorcycle accident, 22 West 66th Street, Chicago, was paid $80.00

*Accidents such as these are not covered by the terms of policies issued by other newspapers. The insurance is usually restricted to "fare-paying passengers." The Tribune-Federal Policy covers you whether you are a "fare-paying passenger!" or not.

These are only a few of the many hundreds of cases in which large sums of money have been paid. In many instances the payments to beneficiaries of these policies have been of incalculable help.

Renew your Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance at once for another year. Remember, the value of all specific indemnities in your policy increases 10% on renewal. This additional value is given each year your policy is renewed until the high value reaches $11,250.00.

Don't let this valuable Insurance expire. It is the biggest Insurance bargain in America. Protect yourself and family for another year by sending $1.25 and the coupon which appears every day on Page 3 of the Tribune.

M'LARNIN POUNDS OUT WIN OVER MANDELL

CUBS SURE TO REPEAT IN N. L., SAYS HORNSBY

Makes Prediction as Chores Start.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 1.—When Rogers Hornsby speaks, he can be counted upon to speak as Rogers Hornsby actually thinks. On this basis, it probably is of more than passing importance to mention that he inclines to a belief that the Cubs, present league champions, will have another title emblem to hang in their trophy room late next September.

More than a few of the experts, some of whom are good and some not so good as guessers, have beaten the great second sacker to the wire with similar predictions, but with The Rajah the forecast is not a hunch. Neither is the wish father to the thought. His basis is that the Cubs will be at least as good if not better than in 1929. What is more he can't see that any of the other probable contenders have strengthened sufficiently to catch up with the Cubs even if the latter move along no faster than the pace that carried them to a pennant and a world series last fall.

Launch Double Workouts.

Hornsby made his observations today while the entire squad was going through its first double workout of the spring grind. What started him was Gabby Hartnett's famous arm, which did not function last season. Hornsby saw Gabby whip a couple down to second and then a couple which handcuffed Lester Bell, the ex-Brave, at third.

"That ought to settle it," remarked the veteran to the few fellows standing with him behind the batting cage. Nobody offered him an argument on that point. Then he went on to explain that another improvement is going to be noted at third. He doesn't claim Bell is the best fielder in the world, but does insist that with Bell there will be one more important cog added to a batting order that was far from weak even last season. At Boston in 1929 Bell hit only .298, but predictions are being offered that he will do at least .315 for the Cubs.

Hartnett Makes Difference.

Anybody able to recall just how the Cubs flopped around for the first two months of last season will not have trouble agreeing with Hornsby on the difference Hartnett's presence is going to make. In the early part of the 1929 campaign, McCarthy had catchers put on the hospital list faster than he could bring them in. The unsteady catching ruined the morale of the pitchers. What the hurlers actually could do was shown when they got a wise head like Zack Taylor to help them. Had Gabby and Zack been there from the start, a dozen or so of the early defeats would have been avoided.

In summing up what he thinks are the probable happenings in the impending campaign, Hornsby could have mentioned himself but didn't. A man who hit and participated in every game as he did last year shouldn't be expected to improve in his work, but The Rajah probably will. He played the last couple of months in 1929 with a bruised foot that would have put most athletes on the shelf. The ailment cut down considerably the territory he was able to cover around second base. Now the foot is as good as ever as the result of an operation, so it is safe to bet that the veteran will go around well enough to keep the wise cracking experts from remarking that he plays second base on a dime.

Hornsby Takes It Easy.

In his practice labors, Hornsby is far more conservative than when making predictions. In his initial appearance yesterday he used up two hours hitting a couple of pitched balls and picking up a few grounders at second. He wouldn't even throw. Today in the morning and afternoon drills he displayed the same dislike for work. It is just his way of getting in trim. He doesn't believe in hurrying. At the proper time he'll be ready. Lester Bell trains in just about the same fashion. While fellows like Grimm and English were whipping the ball around in mid July style today, Bell let himself out only to the extent of lobbing a few throws to Grimm at first base.

McCarthy split his troops into two squads today so as to simplify the work. One squad hit while the other fielded in the morning. During the afternoon workout they reversed the order. The way in which the athletes were separated was of no significance. The regulars were on both sides, the idea being to match them about evenly for the camp games which will be played here next week.

Cuyler Likely to Lead Off.

In preparation for the exhibitions at Los Angeles, McCarthy's first experiment on a batting order that will fetch him maximum results probably will see Spider English, last year's leadoff man, batting second. If English bats second, Cuyler will bat first, because no other arrangement is possible. Cuyler can't swing second because it involves the trick of bunting and Kiki admits he is not a good bunter. Bell undoubtedly will be placed in the seventh notch, with Grimm just ahead of him. The so-called Murderers' Row will be continued. Cuyler and English will get on, Hornsby, Wilson, and Stephenson will drive 'em home. Quite simple on the days Burleigh Grimes or Dazzy Vance aren't facing them.

N. U. Trounces Chicago, 39-24 Ends Season

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Northwestern closed its conference basketball season at Patten gym last night, earning a .500 percentage by defeating Chicago, 39 to 24. The Wildcats were sinking their shots and, taking the lead shortly after the first tipoff, never were headed.

Chicago threatened only once, midway through the first half. After Northwestern had built up a 11 to 5 lead, Chicago spurted to pull up with a point, but the Purple drew away again to lead, 18 to 14, at the half. After the rest, Northwestern began to pass to short shots and gradually widened its margin.

Walter and Bergherm Star.

The Wildcats outscored Chicago in field goals, 15 to 8, primarily on the accuracy of Capt. Rut Walter and Russell Bergherm, who were playing their last game in a Purple uniform. Walter clicked on six shots from the field and added three free throws, while Bergherm caged four baskets and three free throws. Merrill Mundy, who has been a regular, but shifted between forward, floor guard and back guard, also finished his college basketball career.

Chicago was far from the team which beat Wisconsin. The Maroons were playing ineffectually, even getting in each other's way. Capt. Harry Chagnon and Marshall Fish were the only two who could hit the basket. Paul Stephenson, the little Deadeye Dick forward, played through all save a few minutes of the game and didn't get a point.

Northwestern had too much height for the Maroons and controlled the ball most of the time. There was more or less bad passing, which led to a flock of interceptions and kept the ball changing hands rapidly through the first period, but the Wildcats steadied in the second half.

Walter Starts Scoring.

Walter opened the game with a basket from the foul line, and Chagnon equaled it with a long shot from the side. Bergherm dropped a long shot, and, though Fish got a free throw, Walter caged two charity tosses. Free throws by Boesel and Fish left Chicago only a point behind, but Bergherm scored from under the basket on Walter's pass, added one of the two free throws from Fish's foul on the shot, and Riel scored from under the basket to bring the count to 11 to 5.

Then Chicago staged its only spurt of the game. Boesel started it with a free throw, Chagnon sank a rebound, and Fish scored with his specialty, a shot from midfloor. That left the Maroons only a point behind, but Bergherm's free throw and Lockhart's rebound basket left the Purple two points ahead after Chagnon scored a goal from the foul line. Bergherm clicked on a long shot and Riel got a short one after some quick passing before Fish ended the scoring of the first half with another midfloor shot.

Purple Draws Away.

Ashley opened the second half with a free throw, but after that Northwestern steadily pulled away. Bergherm and Lockhart batted in baskets before Fish scored on a driving dribble and Walter got three baskets and Mundy a free throw before Chicago scored again. That gave the Wildcats a lead of 28 to 17, and they increased it slightly before the finish.

The most exciting bit of that last part of the game was the first basket made on the home floor by Dallas Marvil, the 235 pound football tackle and back guard. When the ball slid through the hoop on his shot from the foul line the 5,000 fans rocked the gym with their cheers.

In an intramural match following the regular game, the Beta Theta Pi fraternity of Evanston defeated the Phi Rho Sigma fraternity team from McKinlock campus, 25 to 24, for the all-university title.

ILLINOIS, 30; MICHIGAN, 17

Champaign, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Shooting brilliantly and presenting a strong defense, University of Illinois' basketball team defeated Michigan tonight, 30 to 17, in the last home game of the season for the Illini. Michigan, which had won six consecutive games, had an outside chance for the title until tonight, but the reverse eliminated the Wolverines.

With Chuck Harper, his best forward, unable to play, Coach Ruby reconstructed the Illinois lineup, using Bartholomew at forward. The Peoria redhead came through brilliantly.

Illini Holds Lead.

The Illini hit the basket at the start and after rolling up a good lead never were headed. They scored three baskets in the first two minutes before the Wolverines knew the feel of the ball. Weiss made Michigan's first basket five minutes after the game started, and Kanitz, who was substituted for Daniels, completed Michigan's scoring for the half with two goals from far out and two free throws. Bartholomew and Kawal made two field goals and Capt. Mills made another to account for the Illinois score.

The Illini started the second half with another rally, scoring six points before Michigan got started. The Wolverines managed to come within three points of the winners six minutes after the start of the half, but Babe Kamp hit a scoring streak and sent the Illini

WHAT'S SHIRES UP TO? KEEPS SCRIBES IN AIR

Sun Shines, So Sox Practice.

Art Bobs Up

MC ALLEN, Tex., March 1.—(AP)—Arthur Shires, White Sox first baseman, had a parade in his honor today. His car stalled in traffic, and the populace forced him to make a speech.

"I hadn't," he murmured as he arose to comply with the shouts of speech, "oughta do this for nothing. If you've got anything to give away—"

The car stalled as the baseball player was being escorted down Main street with the mayor and chamber of commerce officials, led by fife and drum corps.

Shires said he would leave tomorrow for San Antonio for spring training.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 1.—San Antonio's well advertised sun, which has been in a rather ornery mood recently, did some plain and fancy beaming this afternoon. Result: A White Sox practice that had been all but called off hastily was reinstated and the emergency workout scheduled for the Sabbath was cancelled.

The day off tomorrow will be a day of rest for the athletes, but pretty tough on the suffering authors, for all they can do is sit around and wonder what the Great Shires is going to do next.

Authors need rest the same as any body, but it's got so there's no relaxation down here at all for writing fellows. The grapevine system has revealed that C. Arthur has devised a grand entrance of some sort.

Most Maddening Suspense.

It's the most maddening suspense we've ever experienced. Movies we've been wanting to see come and go, and we don't dare leave the hotel to go see 'em. We've just begun to get some wrist action into our golf shots, but whenever we start for the country club the Shires spectre halts us. And we've turned down no fewer than five invitations to partake of stewed cabrito.

There are many rumors as to what Shires is up to. There are some who claim to know he is going to ride down Houston street on a big white horse, in the rôle of a He Godiva. There are others who say he's going to make a parachute leap from the Smith-Young tower, the tallest and most magnificent structure in the south.

It looks like there ought to be some head or tail to the mystery, especially with Len Shires, Art's brother, here on the New York Giants, and admittedly in communication with C. Arthur.

Len'll Be Good Some Day.

When the Sox ball player-pug was here incog he sent Len to Manager John J. McGraw with the following note:

"Dear John: This will introduce my brother, Len. He'll make you a good second baseman and has a chance some day to be as good a ball player as I am. Please put him to work.

"[Signed] Your pal,

"THE GREAT SHIRES."

McGraw complied with the request and for three days high hopes were entertained that Len would tip something off about C. Arthur. But Len is adamant except to say that it is "The Sox' next move." He hinted that Art would be through San Antonio again, but again incog, proceeding on to Italy, Tex.

Shires Has Contract.

According to Manager Donie Bush, Shires has his contract, never having returned it as reported, and if he walks into lobby tomorrow or Monday with the signed document in his hand the suspension hanging over him forthwith will be lifted. All conferences on the contract are over, Sox officials say. But there will be no harping on the suspension if Arthur acts the part of a nice boy and hands in the papers.

In addition to Shires there still are five absentees, despite the fact that the deadline for the arrival was reached today. Bill Kamm, Carl Reynolds, Alex Metzler, Dave Harris and Smead Jolly are the ones still to show up.

VIRGINIA VAN WIE WINS FLORIDA GOLF FINAL, 4-3

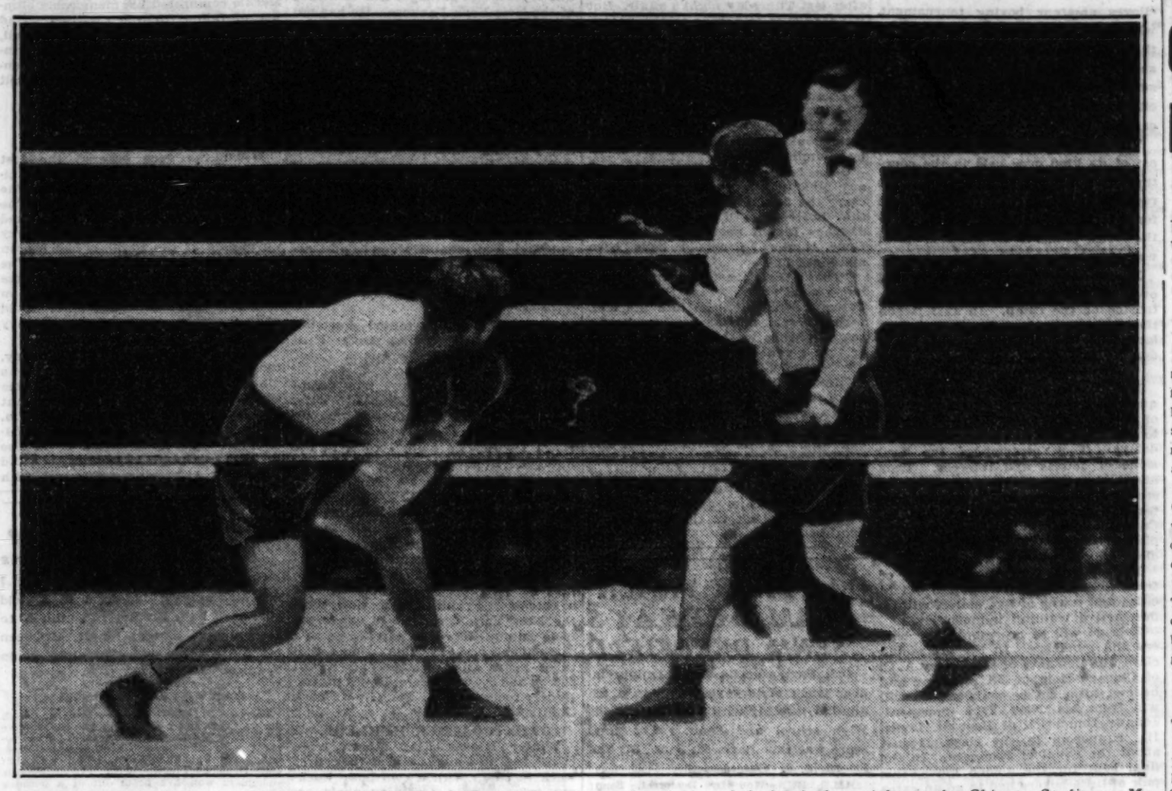
Ormond Beach, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago today won the South Atlantic golf tournament for the third successive year by defeating Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit, 4 and 3, in the final. Miss Van Wie shot a 41 on the first nine holes.

Their cards:
Van Wie—Out .....445 555 445—41
Van Wie—In .....454 454—26—67
Hanley—Out .....545 645 445—42
Hanley—In .....464 465—29—71

The Chicago girl won her way into the final Friday by defeating Miss Marion Bennett of New Britain, Conn., 4 and 2, incidentally establishing a new course record for women, 38—35—73.

Miss Van Wie negotiated nine of the fifteen holes in par and was never more than one stroke above par for the remainder.

WHILE THE BATTLE RAGED



Sammy Mandell (right) and Jimmy McLarnin maneuver for an opening during their battle last night at the Chicago Stadium. McLarnin hammered out a victory after ten rounds of aggressive punching on both sides. Fifteen thousand saw the fight.

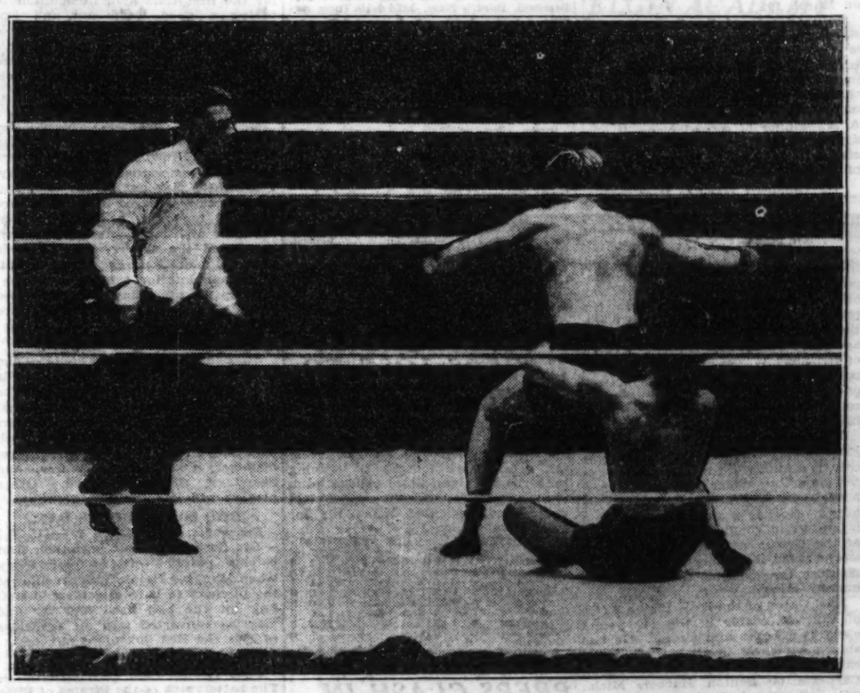
DEMPSEY MAKES CLINIC VISIT TO STUDY FISTULA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey's reason for his sudden trip to the Mayo brothers clinic in Rochester, Minn., was to undergo observation and prepare for treatment and possible operation in the near future. The ex-heavyweight champion suffers from a fistula, and it is this condition that led to his sudden decision to visit the Mayos.

Dempsey submitted to the knife for fistula once before, when six physicians under Dr. L. J. Huff of Hollywood hospital, handled his case here in March, 1927. On that occasion a cyst was removed.

The latest diagnosis of Dempsey's condition is that the ex-heavyweight champion resumed strenuous activity too soon after that operation, and lost the remedial effects of the treatment.



Mandell and McLarnin demonstrate a new type of clinch. Sammy is the gentleman about to be seated, and, from the looks of things, Jimmy is going to land right on top of him. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

16 to Face Barrier in $25,000 Race

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 1.—The first Derby of the year—the Agua Caliente 3 year old fixture carrying $25,000 in added money—will be run here tomorrow afternoon and 16 smart colts and fillies from all parts of the country were named overnight to strive for the prize.

In the betting tonight Greyola, owned by Raoul Walsh, was made a slight favorite over the entry of Norab and Hatrick, which will run in the silks of Baron Long of San Diego, part owner of the Agua Caliente track. There was also considerable support for Longus, owned by the R. C. stable of Los Angeles, which has shown exceptionally fast speed trials.

While the advance guard of Derby visitors was making merry in the Casino tonight, Mexican laborers were moving in and unpacking hundreds of cases of choice wines from France, scores of kegs of lager beer imported from Germany and Cuba, and large quantities of whisky from England and Canada. The thousands of thirsty Americans are expected to begin charging on the Derby liquor supply early tomorrow morning.

The field including jockeys and probable odds for the mile and an eighth struggle, follows:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—The Wake still is unable to accord Jack Sharkey, considered best of the American heavyweights, rank with Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, and the titleholders who have preceded him. Frankly, we'll admit we may be underestimating the Bostonian. We may be entirely wrong and we're willing to be wrong, but until he has shown us more than in any of his three bouts we've witnessed, we'll think Sharkey will be defeated by the first good fighter he encounters.

By good fighter we do not mean fair fighter, or fair to middling fighter, but a real honest to goodness ringman of both brawn and skill.

We'll not criticize Sharkey's effort on Thursday night. In fact, it may have been his misfortune that he was not privileged further to show his wares. Certainly the Sharkey we saw against Phil Scott was in far superior physical condition to the Sharkey who opposed Jack Dempsey and the Sharkey we saw against Young Stribling a year ago. Whatever the reports from his training camps, Sharkey was in condition. Make no mistake about that.

It was disappointing, then, that the bout ended as it did. It was particularly disappointing to the Wake because we wanted to see Sharkey extended at his best, and this apparently was the occasion. That he did not do more in the two rounds before the mixed up third session, in which he won by a technical knockout when he probably should have been disqualified for an unintentional foul, perhaps was due to his eagerness and his desire to win.

Sharkey, confident in some previous battles almost to the point of offensiveness, wants to be acknowledged champion. He is taking his battling seriously. Never have we seen him in better shape. Scott, who at first gave the impression of being in there for the money to be gained with weather eye toward easy street, actually was gaining confidence as the mooted foul occurred. There was no reason to expect victory from him because of his tactics, those of defense, but he was more willing to exchange blows with the raging Bostonian, who was forcing the issue.

Sharkey landed one blow in the second round, generally overlooked, which may have had an important bearing on the result. It was a left to the stomach, much the same as the disputed foul blow except that it landed above the belt line and where intended. We thought we saw Phil flinch. Sharkey evidently realized it, too, for thereafter he sought the body rather than the jaw, which was expected to be his point of attack.

So we'll not blame Sharkey for the sudden ending, although his wild hooks naturally might have produced such a result. And we'll not blame Scott for "quitting," the general opinion, because only Scott will know how seriously the low blow affected him, but we still regret that we've not seen Sharkey in a great fight. This may have been the occasion when he was prepared and ready to show great fight.

The Wake, as you know, is trustful and guileless. Have you thought, however, how much it meant for Sharkey and others for the Bostonian to win? There was confident betting of wise money on Sharkey at five to one. Sharkey now is a natural against Max Schmeling. Scott would not have been a great drawing card against the German. If Sharkey had been disqualified for foul, a return bout really would have been necessary, for Sharkey is the man to meet Schmeling.

Understand, we are attempting no insinuations. They would not be justified. But isn't it so? Events simply happened, in result at least, as they should have happened.

AGGRESSIVENESS OF COAST LAD EARNS VERDICT

15,000 See Battle at Stadium.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Jimmy McLarnin, the battling Irishman from California, decisively defeated Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., in the feature bout of the boxing show at the Chicago Stadium last night. The decision of the two judges and referee was unanimous.

The 15,000 fans who paid about $75,000 to see the show accepted the verdict without the usual boos. Mandell, who is the lightweight champion of the world, won only one round while Jimmy had the edge in four. The other five sessions were about even but if an edge belonged to either boxer, McLarnin should have been given the laurels.

Mandell Forced to Ropes.

It was a fight from bell to bell. There were rallies. There was toe to toe fighting and on several occasions Mandell was on the verge of being knocked out. Three times Jimmy had Sammy against the ropes and peppered him with blows around the head and body. When it appeared as if one solid punch would terminate the fight, the bell rang.

McLarnin, who does not hold a title but who is anxious to meet Jackie Fields for the world's welterweight title, tossed science to the winds. He took Mandell's punches without backing away. He never failed to trade punch for punch in the rallies.

In the opening round the Californian rocked Sammy with a long left swing. In the third, fourth and seventh rounds, Jimmy connected with left hooks which made Mandell go into close quarters to defend himself. McLarnin was the aggressor in every round except the last. In this stanza, the 135 pound champion made a garrison finish.

Sammy Tears In.

Mandell realized the only chance of victory was by a knockout. When the bell sounded for the last session, Mandell tore in. He tried to connect with right crosses and left hooks. He made McLarnin miss by wide margins but he was unable to connect with a solid punch. Jimmy stood up under the bombardment of blows and when the bell rang to end the fight they were fighting toe to toe.

It was the third meeting between this pair of sterling battlers. Mandell won a fifteen round decision from McLarnin in New York. Jimmy took a ten round decision from Sammy in the Stadium last fall. The Californian's victory in that fight was just as impressive as the one last night.

At times Mandell showed signs of slipping. His judgment of distance was not that of old. He did not block in the clever manner which made him the lightweight champion of the world. In some rounds his footwork was not impressive. McLarnin connected with left hooks, something that few fighters have done. In the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds Mandell started to hold to avoid punishment.

Mc Larnin's appearance was very impressive. He forced the fighting in all but the tenth round. He missed with some punches which would have meant curtains for Mandell had they connected. He was bent on a knockout and he tried to whip over either a left hook or right cross in every round. Jimmy may not be a master boxer but he is a puncher, the sort of fighter who appeals to an audience.

First Round Even.

The opening round was about even. There were several rallies and neither fighter heard the bell to end the stanza. After the gong, McLarnin shot a hard right to Mandell's stomach after Sammy had dropped his guard. McLarnin was master of the second round. Jimmy connected with left hooks and right crosses and had a clear edge at the finish.

McLarnin was the victor in the third round. He rocked the lightweight champion with left hooks and had the better of the infighting. Jimmy took the fourth while the fifth was about even. In the fifth round, Mandell connected with a left hook and Jimmy went to his knees. The knockdown was partially the result of a slip and punch. As soon as McLarnin got to his feet, he turned loose with right and left swings and had Mandell staggering when the round ended.

The sixth round was even and McLarnin took the seventh by forcing the milling. There was little to choose between them in the eighth and ninth rounds, but Mandell had a decisive margin in the final round.

Mandell's lightweight title was not at stake. Sammy weighed 140 pounds yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and McLarnin 142¾ pounds at the same hour.

In the fight which followed the main event Jack Thompson, colored welterweight from California, won all the way from Freddie Fitzgerald of Youngstown, O. Thompson was the superior boxer and won every round.

Williams Beats Jones.

Tom Williams, local colored heavyweight, was given the four round decision over Tom Jones of Alabama in the opening bout of four rounds. Pep Justo of Madison, Wis., was awarded the verdict over Al Isog of Rockford, Ill., in the second fight. They boxed four rounds and weighed 148 pounds.

Jack Barry won from Edgar Norman on a foul in the second round of the third bout. Norman turned loose a left swing which landed below the belt line when the round was twenty-nine seconds old. Both live in Chicago and they weighed 170 pounds. In the othed fight on the card, Buster Mallina of Chicago won from Dick Evans of Youngstown, O. They boxed six rounds and weighed 160 pounds.

L. E. Osborne and E. L. Cook were the judges and Phil Collins, Norman McGarrity and Ed Kinella handled the fights in the ring.

DUELBERG WINS N. Y. FEATURE BICYCLE RACE

New York, March 1.—(AP)—The preliminary sprint races, which is the forerunner of the 48th international six day bike race, at Madison Square Garden brought a small crowd of bike fans tonight to view the usual medley consisting of amateur and professional events.

The six day bike grind will get under way at 9 o'clock Sunday night when the starting gun sends the fifteen teams on their way for 144 hours.

Freddy Spencer, the American sprint champion, who was teamed with Bobby Walthour, defeated Franco Georgetti and Gerald Debaets in the professional one mile team match race tonight, capturing two of the three deciding heats.

The feature event, the five mile motor paced match race, was won by Franz Duelberg of Germany, who had the famous Jimmy Hunter in front of him on the motor. He defeated Charley Jaeger of Newark, N. J., who was paced by Charley Stein. This event went the prescribed three heats. The time of the final heat was 8:19 1-5.

TURNESA'S 138 LEADS FLORIDA GOLF; COOPER 2D

Belleair, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—Putting together rounds of 67 and 71, for a total of 138, Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., led a select field of professional and amateur golfers here today in the fifteenth annual Florida west coast open championship. Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, who led on the morning round with a 65, fared poorly this afternoon, finishing with a 74 in second place with a total of 139.

Two strokes behind Cooper came Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Whiffy Cox of New York and Gene Sarazen, another New Yorker.

Al Espinosa of Chicago, who burned up the short No. 1 course this morning with his par shattering 67, could do no better than 76.

John Dawson, another Chicagoan, posted 75—74, while Frank Walsh, also of Chicago, collected 77—74, eight strokes better than Ed Goyer, a fellow townsman, who had 78—81.

CORNELL, PENN TIE IN EASTERN TRACK TOURNEY

New York, March 1.—[U. P.]—Cornell and Pennsylvania tied with 27½ points each for first honors in the ninth annual indoor track and field games of the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. here tonight.

The result remained in doubt until the pole vault, the final event. Penn won five points in that event by being in a three way tie for first and taking fifth place.

The night's big thrill came in the two mile run won by Paul Rekers of Georgetown, who sprinted in the last 110 yards to overtake and outdistance by 15 yards Joe Hagen of Columbia.

The recognized record in the one mile relay was bettered by Harvard in 3 minutes 20 6-10 seconds. New intercollegiate indoor records were set in the 2 mile run and broad jump.

Harvard was third with 20½ points; New York U. had 15, Yale, 12, and Georgetown 10½.

Schurz 2d Half Rally Beats Wheaton, 28-27

Schurz High school of the City league triumphed over Wheaton of the Little Seven conference, 28 to 27, on the latter's court. Trailing throughout the first half and the last few minutes of the second period, two baskets by Hanson gave the one point winning margin.

Chicago A. A. Swimmers Nose Out Michigan, 39-36

Chicago Athletic association swimmers defeated the University of Michigan last night at the Cherry Circle pool, 39 to 36. Art Highland, former Schurz High school star, featured for the C. A. A. Walaitis starred for the Wolverines.

Groh, Ex-Big Leaguer, to Manage Canton Club

Canton, O., March 1.—[U. P.]—Heinie Groh, former New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds third baseman, today signed a contract whereby he became owner of the Canton baseball team of the Central league, and playing manager for the coming season.

Latvian Jauntne 5 Wins Tribune Trophy at Riga

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

RIGA, March 1. — The Latvian Jauntne basketball club won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Baltic basketball trophy from the Esthonian Kalev club, 49 to 37, today. At the close of the first half the score was 24 to 22 in favor of the Latvians.

The contest was held in a gymnasium located on the premises with the Latvian conservatory of music and a concert being held in another part of the building was interrupted until the game was finished.

THE TRIBUNE trophy is a massive silver cup, 16 inches tall, the first international sport trophy to be donated in the Baltic states. This season Esthonia and Latvia held elimination contests lasting two months. Next year Finland and Lithuania will compete.

Basketball was introduced into the Baltic states ten years ago by the American Y. M. C. A. and now it is rivalling hockey as a winter sport. Jack Greiner, head of the Y. M. C. A. work in Latvia, says that THE TRIBUNE torphy competition is already eclipsing national championships.

GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPS START TRAINING DRILL

Ready for Intercity Bouts with New York.

Sixteen fighters, winners of first and second places in the eight classes of THE TRIBUNE'S third annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament, which came to a successful close at the Coliseum last Friday night, will gather in Chicago on March 12 to resume strenuous training for the intercity contests with New York at Chicago Stadium on March 19.

The tournament, one of the greatest of its kind ever held in the country, grossed more than $40,000. Net receipts go to the Forty and Eight for the maintenance of its camp in the forest preserve for disabled world war veterans.

Last year THE TRIBUNE turned over $25,000 to Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee of the camp. In 1928, when the contests were held at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, $9,000 was donated.

Team Renews Training.

Men identified with boxing for a quarter of a century lauded the work of the officials who worked tirelessly to put the bouts in the ring without delays. They commended the decisions of judges and referees. They also had praise for the referees who stopped fights when any of the contestants were decisively outclassed. Captains and managers of teams were pleased with the way the doctors handled fighters who were injured.

The sixteen boxers, survivors of trials held not only in Chicago but in cities and towns of five states, will go into active training immediately.

Chicago will be represented by boxers and punchers. In the 112 pound class, Joe Espinoza of the Emery A. C. of Chicago Heights, Ill., can box and he can hit. He is confident he will win from his New York opponent. Johnny Emmerick of East St. Louis, Ill., runner-up in the class, is just about the equal of Espinoza. In the final bout for the golden glove, this pair of little boxers had to go an extra round before the officials could determine a winner. It was a fight all the way. Both will be hard to beat on March 19.

Paul Leberto of the Barry gymnasium, winner of the 118 pound title, is a stiff puncher. He can take punishment and is not afraid to trade punches. He is game and has come through the tournament without a mark. Sidney Kaplan of the Opal A. A., winner of second place, is also a puncher and boxer. He lost the decision to Leberto after three rounds of interesting fighting.

Goldblatt Hard to Beat.

Benny Goldblatt of the Majestic Radio, Central A. A. U., featherweight champion, took the 126 pound title without much effort. Benny is not the puncher of other boys who compose the Chicago team, but he was one of the cleverest boxers in the tourney. He will be hard to beat when the Chicago boys swing into action against New York. Joseph Roman of the Steel Works club of Joliet, Ill., is an excellent representative of secondary class. Benny won the three round decision from the Joliet fighter in the final bout.

Chauncey Crain of the Lawndale gymnasium, who won the lightweight title, is a hard right hand puncher. He can stand up under punishment and never hesitates to trade punch for punch. He has a good left hand and is always in condition. Earl Watson of the Coulon gymnasium, who won second place, is another rugged fighter. He lost the decision to Crain by a narrow margin.

Karl Ogren of the Belle Plaine A. C., of Chicago, victor in the 147 pound class, is a boxer and fighter. He has shown gameness in all his fights and can hit with his right hand. Ralph Carnegie of Benton Harbor, Mich., who will compete in the secondary division, is a hard puncher who can take punishment.

Ed Steeve of Champaign, Ill., can hit with either hand. He won the 160 pound title by winning the three round decision from John Baima of the Lawndale gymnasium, Chicago. Both are hard hitters and they know a lot of the defensive angles of the game.

Everett Improved Fighter.

Buck Everett of Gary, Ind., a member of last year's Chicago team, came through with flying colors in the light heavyweight division. He won a three round decision from Joe Mendoza of Coulon gymnasium in the finish. Everett is a much improved fighter over his 1929 form.

Grant Fortney of the South Shore A. C., winner of the golden glove in the heavyweight class, will be hard to beat. He has a dangerous left hand. Although not the puncher of some heavyweights who have competed in former tourneys, Fortney knows so much about fighting he will be tough for the best New York sends to Chicago. John Solik of Kid Howard's Arcade gymnasium will box in the secondary division. He can punch and take punishment.

Generally speaking the team appears to be much stronger than any of the two squads which met New York in the two previous years. There is balance and little to choose between the fighters who will represent Chicago in the first and second divisions.

Badgers Trim Gophers in Wrestling Meet, 23-3

Madison, Wis., March 1.—(Special.)—Losing one match in eight Wisconsin's wrestling team fought its way into second place in the western division of the Big Ten here tonight, defeating Minnesota for the second time this year, 23 to 3. There were no falls.

San Francisco Pair Wins N. A. A. U. Handball Title

St. Louis, Mo., March 1.—[U. P.]—Alfred Benult and A. Woodman Paynter, San Francisco, won the National A. A. U. four wall handball doubles championship here tonight when they defeated Jack Srenco and Herman Dworman of Detroit. The scores were 21-1 and 21-17.

Tunney Can't See Sharkey as His Successor

Miami Beach, Fla., March 1.—[U. P.]—Gene Tunney, whose retirement from the heavyweight championship plunged the fight game into the present state of uncertainty and confusion, believes that his successor is not yet apparent.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press today Tunney scoffed at Jack Sharkey's claim of the world's championship and expressed the hope that it would be some time before a new name followed his on the big bronze trophy in Madison Square Garden.

Gene does not feel that Sharkey is of championship caliber, especially after last Thursday night's affair. But if Sharkey is to accede to the vacant title Tunney wants to see the ex-tar whip some more of the good big men now coming up as contenders.

"To be a real champion worthy of the name, a man should first defeat all the outstanding contenders who merit a battle," Tunney said. "No man should gain the heavyweight title by claiming it."

Gene feels that Tuffy Griffith or any other strong puncher who would carry the fight to Sharkey would beat the Bostonian. Tunney said that Sharkey fought poorly against Scott. Gene thinks he should have been more serious.

"That's the biggest element in fighting, the most important thing," said Tunney. "Fighters go into the ring with different notions in their heads, some figuring what to do under this or that given circumstance and looking for the softest way out.

"No really game guy ever heard the count of ten," continued Gene. "If he could hear it he would get up."

Tunney said he thought Max Schmeling would defeat Sharkey when and if they meet, provided the year's layoff has not taken too much out of the German challenger. As for Scott, Gene regards him as a fair boxer whose heart isn't in the business of fighting to win.

PREPS CLASH IN WESLEYAN TRACK MEET APRIL 26

RUTH DROPS IN ON YANKS; TALKS WITH SHAWKEY

Plans to Discuss Terms This Week.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1. — [U. P.]—Babe Ruth returned from the Sharkey-Scott fight at Miami today and reported to Manager Bob Shawkey of the New York Yankees. He has not signed his contract, but expects to confer with Col. Ruppert next week.

Ruth sat on the bench with Shawkey a while and then left, promising he would be the first man on the field Monday.

Most of today's workout was devoted to sliding practice, with Coach Art Fletcher illustrating the ancient fall away, which he mastered under John McGraw.

TRIO JOINS ROBINS.

Clearwater, Fla., March 1.—[U. P.]—Pitchers Hal Lee and Hollis Thurston and Shortstop Gordon Slade arrived at the Brooklyn camp today. Lee took part in the workout, but Slade and Thurston arrived too late for practice.

Slade is the highly touted shortstop recently bought, along with Neal Finn, from the Mission Pacific Coast league club for a reported $50,000. Thurston, formerly with the White Sox, is from the San Francisco club.

Today's practice game was won by Val Picinich's team, which defeated Hank De Berry's club, 7 to 6, in six innings. Bressler's single scored the winning run.

BRAVES' PILOT EXPERIMENTS.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1. — [U. P.]— — Bill McKechnie, Boston Braves manager, still is experimenting, and his latest venture is an attempt to transform Ray Flaherty, first base recruit from Spokane, into a catcher. Frank Hogan, now with the New York Giants, was converted from an outfielder to a catcher on this same field and by this same club three years ago. Flaherty is a tall 200 pounder, who has played professional football for the New York Giants.

ALEX COACHES HURLERS.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 1. — [U. P.]—The Phillies ended their first week in camp with a two hour workout today, again confining their activities to morning practice. Grover Cleveland Alexander got in uniform for the first time and, in addition to taking a good warm up and run around the park, spent considerable time coaching Manager Shotten's young pitchers. Lou Koupal arrived this morning, making Chet Nichols the only pitcher missing.

BROWNS HOLDOUTS SIGN.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—Two more star pitchers of the St. Louis Browns, Walter Stewart and Sam Gray, signed contracts today. Two others still out of the fold, Rip Collins and George Blaeholder, are expected tomorrow or Monday when infielders and outfielders report. Stewart joined the batterymen in their workout today. Gray signed in St. Louis and left for camp.

Camp reports today were that Red Kress and Heinie Manush still are holdouts.

CARDS START SOUTH.

St. Louis, Mo., March 1.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals started their migration south tonight to prepare for the 1930 flag chance. Full of pennant hopes, the first flock of eleven players left Union station headed by President Sam Breadon, Gabby Street, new manager; Coach Clyde Wares, and Secretary Clarence Lloyd. Other players will join the club en route.

RED SOX HURLERS BAT.

Pensacola, Fla., March 1. —[U. P.] —The Boston Red Sox held their first batting practice of the year today when Manager Heinie Wagner allowed the pitchers to bat. Big Charlie Ruffing hit the ball hard and far and may be converted into an outfielder to give the Red Sox more punch.

2D PIRATE SQUAD ARRIVES.

Paso Robles, Cal., March 1.—(AP) — The batterymen of the Pirates of Pittsburgh completed a full week of training today, and with the arrival of the second squad tomorrow were looking forward to some real competition between the regulars and the yanigans. Manager Jewel Ens said there would be nothing official on the program for tomorrow, but "we will jump off with a bang on Monday morning." Burleigh Grimes, spitball ace, still is a holdout, but Manager Ens has the idea he will be in line before long.

BASEBALL WORTH REMEMBERING

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., March 1.—In the history of big league baseball there haven't been many afternoons like that of Oct. 4, 1908. That was the day on which the Cubs saved for themselves a pennant and a world series by whipping the Pirates in the final game of a campaign that saw three teams bidding for the ultimate honors. The game itself was one of a series of happenings that made it look as if destiny had picked the Cubs as the team that should come home with the spoils.

The string of incidents began to unfold as early as September when a victory of the Giants over the Cubs in a game at New York was thrown out and ordered replayed because Fred Merkle committed his memorable blunder of failing to touch second. Had that victory been allowed to stand, the Giants would have been flag winners and, instead of the Chicago entry, would have battled the Detroit team in the world series.

When the race entered the last week, New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago were struggling desperately. The lead changed hands almost daily. The Giants had received an unexpected jolt when a young left hander, Harry Coveleskie of the Phillies, had beaten them three times in one series. The Giants in advance had figured these games as good as won. A victory in only one of these engagements would have saved them the flag, but they couldn't hit Coveleskie.

The morning of Oct. 4, a Sunday, found the Cubs, Pirates and Giants almost deadlocked. If the Pirates could win that afternoon, the pennant was theirs. If the Cubs could win, Pittsburgh would be out of the reckoning and the Cubs would be in line to tie the Giants if the latter could win their remaining fights, all with the Braves. What happened was that the Cubs vanquished the Pirates on the day mentioned and then for three days waited for the Giants-Braves developments. The Giants won those three games, a tie between them and the Cubs was created and the latter then hopped a train for New York to play off the game tossed out because of Merkle's mental lapse. Frank Chance's machine won the playoff and then proceeded to Detroit to flatten the Tigers in the world series.

When the series finally got to Chicago it was nothing more than an anti-climax. The battle of Oct. 4 with the Pirates was still the thing. On the day it was played there were 30,247 in the old Cub park on the west side. It was the largest crowd ever drawn to a big league game.

Brown Hurls Against Willis, Cub Nemesis.

For the final but all important struggle Manager Chance picked as his hurler the lion hearted Mordecai "Three Finger" Brown. The ex-miner had worked on the Tuesday and Friday previous to keep the Cubs in the race, but he welcomed the opportunity of another chance to show his worth. Against him was pitted Willis, who, because of his effectiveness against the Cubs, had been saved for this last ditch battle. The same two pitchers had met shortly before, and the Pirates had whipped Brown by 1 to 0 in ten innings. But this was a different day, and Brown by a steady, brilliant exhibition in which the superiority of the entire Cub team was apparent, buried Pittsburgh's pennant hopes by a 5 to 2 score. Willis, the Cub jinx, didn't finish the fight.

The 30,247 crowd which spilled on to the playing field until it almost turned the outfielders into infielders, didn't have long to wait for the Cubs to swing into action. The eventual champions scored once in the first inning. Sheckard, leading off, doubled into the right field crowd. Evers sacrificed, and Schulte poked a single over Abbaticchio's head, Sheckard scoring.

Cubs Get Another Run in the Fifth.

After the opening round, Brown and Willis struggled brilliantly, and there was no break in the defense of either until the fifth when the Cubs counted once more. This run started after two were out. Wagner charged behind second to make a one handed scoop of a seemingly sure hit by Evers, but in his haste the mighty Dutchman heaved high over first base, and Evers took second. Schulte again came through in a pinch. He drove a hard liner straight at Willis. The hurler tried to snare it, but the ball drilled through his hands and rolled out behind second. Before it was retrieved Evers was over the plate.

What had appeared a sure victory for the Cubs took on a different complexion in the sixth. The Pirates, helpless for five rounds against the Cub star's curving, finally solved him for two runs and tied the score. Brown was invincible after this.

Brown's Hit Helps Cubs Regain Lead.

The Cubs jumped back into the lead in the home sixth and the bat of Brown did it. After two were out, Tinker doubled to left. Willis purposely passed Kling to get Brown, and the latter upset the Pirate strategy by singling to right, Tinker scoring. Another Cub tally in the seventh made the score read 4 to 2. Sheckard survived on a fumble by Wagner. Evers sacrificed and Schulte walked. Chance beat out a swinging bunt to Wagner and the bases were clogged. Howard's sacrifice fly let Sheckard scoot home. The fifth and last Cub run registered in the eighth off Camnitz. Score:

THREE BADGERS PLAY FAREWELL GAME SATURDAY

Ohio, Indiana Last Foes of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., March 1.—[Special.]—Three players who have worn Cardinal uniforms for the last three seasons will close their University of Wisconsin basketball careers next week when the Badgers wind up the Western conference schedule with home games against Ohio State Monday and Indiana, Saturday.

All of the departing athletes are from Chicago. They are Capt. Harold Foster, Carl Matthusen, and Maurice Farber. The last named pair will play on the Wisconsin baseball team this spring, while Foster will resign himself to studies in the commerce school.

Ed Chmielewski, fourth Chicagoan on the squad, has one semester of competition. Johnny Paul, Milton Junction, Wis., and Bobby Poser, Columbus, Wis., guards, will be around for a couple of years, as they are in the medical school.

Coach Walter E. Meanwell has a dozen members of his "sophomore varsity" available for next season, and in addition there are several freshmen who have been disporting themselves in a way to attract the notice of Frosh Coach George Nelson.

John Surquist, Kenosha, Wis., and Paul Griewank, La Porte, Ind., are yearling centers who stand 6 feet 6 inches in height. Other towering candidates for Foster's job are Le Roy Oakes, St. Charles, Ill., 6 feet 4 inches; Ted Ahlgren, Frederick, Wis., 6 feet 5 inches, and Bill Strampe, Reedsburg, Wis., who is a pygmy at 6 feet 1 inch.

Among the powerful and rangy forwards who have been outstanding in practice are Jim Kapolski, Westville, Ind.; Ray Wichman, Barrington, Ill.; Bob Goodell, Loda, Ill.; Dick Strain, Harvard, Ill., and Richard Knechtges, Madison.

Two tall guards contribute their bit to destroying the label of "Meanwell's Midgets" which has been applied to Wisconsin the last few years with the exception of the 1928-'29 season. Henry Brickman of Worcester, Mass., stands 6 feet 3 inches, and Charles Herman, Packwaukee, Wis., is an inch smaller.

INDIANA CROWNS 64 SECTIONAL CAGE CHAMPIONS

Heavy Scoring, Overtime Games Feature Play.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—The largest field in the history of the nineteen years of Indiana high school basketball play tonight was narrowed to sixty-four teams at the completion of sectional tournaments in as many cities throughout the state. These teams—the best of the 760 that started play Friday—will compete in sixteen regional tourneys next Saturday. The winners will play here March 14 and 15.

The Winamac sectional turned in one of the freak scores today in Puaski's defeat of Star City, 9 to 3. Froebel eliminated, Emerson, 13 to 12, in an intramural battle at Gary. Wheeler played two overtimes to defeat Hebron at Valparaiso, 22 to 20.

Washington Beats Horace Mann.

Horace Mann of Gary, crippled all season by football injuries, was defeated by Washington of East Chicago in the Gary semi-finals this afternoon, 16 to 14. Thus was eliminated the Chicago area's apparently best hope for bringing a title north of Lafayette for the first time in basketball history.

Frankfort, 1929 champion, continued its machine gun pace this afternoon by defeating Jackson township, 71 to 12. Technical of Indianapolis, runner up to Frankfort last year, surprised even its own rooters by routing Washington of Indianapolis this afternoon, 20 to 2.

North Liberty eliminated Mishawaka at Mishawaka, 22 to 21. Central of Fort Wayne won a bitter battle from South Side of Fort Wayne, the favorite in that sectional, 17 to 16.

Three overtime periods were required to advance Attica to the Attica sectional finals over Pine Village, 33 to 30.

Team Wins, 108 to 8.

Devotees of the ancient Hoosier prep style of blaze-away offense had their hour of thrills in several cases, although for the most part the new style of carefully placed and spaced shots continued to be the feature of the tournament. At Logansport, Logansport routed Deacon, 84 to 30. In the next game, Twelve Mile defeated Noble township, 108 to 8.

At Connersville, Connersville defeated Whitewater, 104 to 12. At Kokomo, Kokomo defeated Union township, 72 to 2.

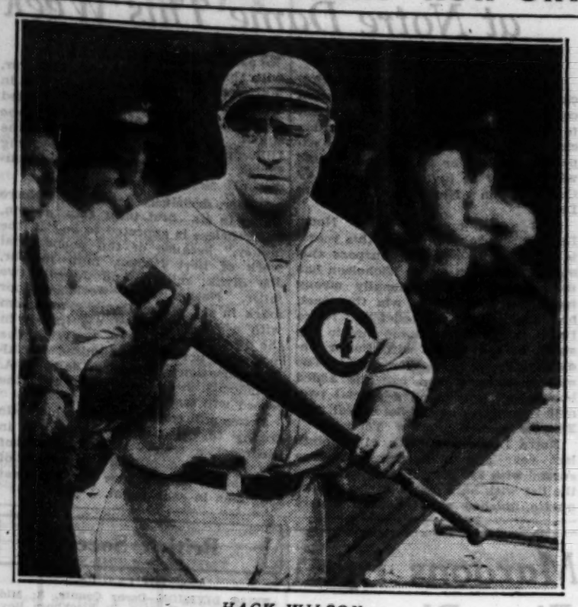
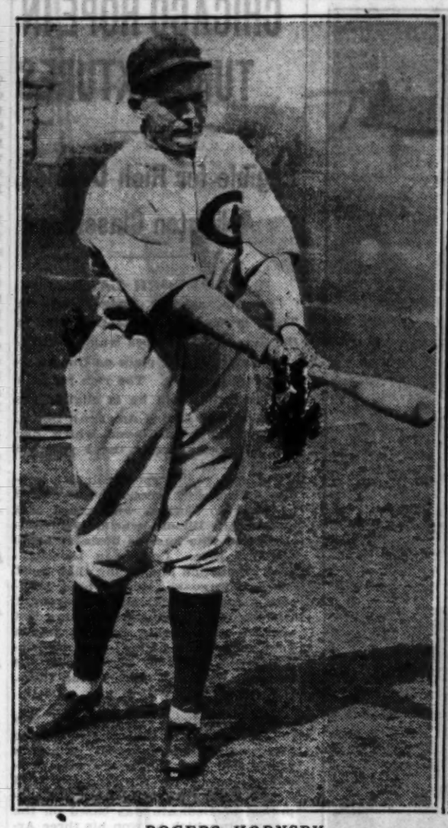
MURDERERS' ROW SWINGS INTO ACTION WITH A NEW MEMBER

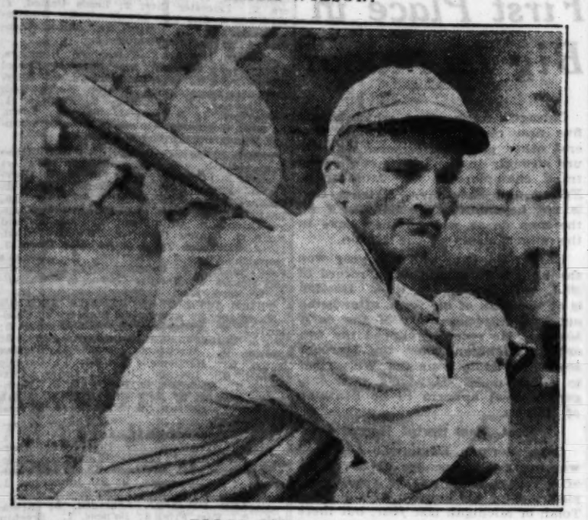


HACK WILSON.

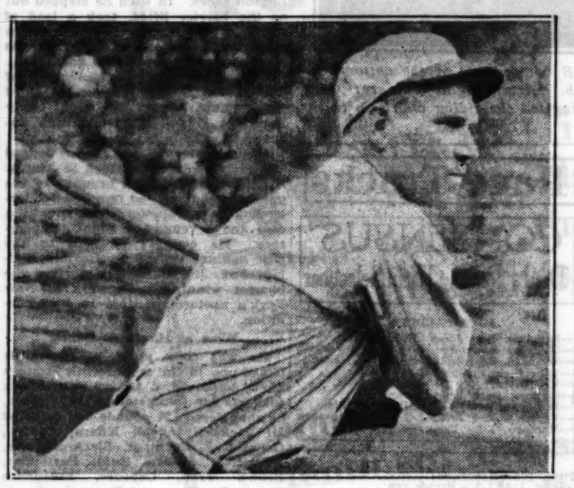


ROGERS HORNSBY.

KIKI CUYLER.



RIGGS STEPHENSON.



LESTER BELL.

Murderers' row, with a new addition in Lester Bell, who came from the Boston Braves during the winter, went to work yesterday at the Cubs' Catalina camp. The fence busters were given a chance to sharpen their batting eyes in the initial workout, but they'll be dazzled by the pitchers for a few days. Morning and afternoon sessions will get them ready for their run manufacturing duties, which begin in April.

Badgers Beat Irish Track Team, 54-32

Madison, Wis., March 1.—[Special.]—Winning firsts in six events and scoring a comfortable number of seconds and thirds, Wisconsin's track team vanquished Notre Dame in a dual meet today, 54 to 32.

Three records for the armory annex track were broken. Vernon Goldworthy, Mineral Point, Wis., of the Badger squad, set a new mark by winning the mile run in 4:28.8, as compared to the time of 4:30.4 established in 1925 by John Bergstresser of Wisconsin.

It's a Habit.

It was the third straight Saturday that Goldsworthy has eclipsed a mile record. He lowered the Patten gym mark in the quadrangular meet at Evanston, Feb. 15, and last week at Minnesota he bettered the Gopher mark for the same race.

Little, Notre Dame, Canadian Olympic star, finished third in the mile today when he attempted to crowd Thompson of Wisconsin on a turn and was spilled to the cinders.

Badgers Sweep Hurdles.

In the preliminaries of forty yard high hurdles, Art Brandt of Wisconsin traveled the distance in :05.3 to clip a second off the annex record. Four Badgers were the only qualifiers for the finals in this race and all loafed into a tie for first place in :06.

The Notre Dame mile relay team cracked the third annex mark with a time of 3:31.7. The old mark of 3:33.4 was set by Wisconsin in 1925. Alex Wilson, another Canadian Olympic ace, won the race for the Irish after Exum, Gary, Ind., Negro flash, and Bob Henke had given Wisconsin the lead at the three quarters mark.

Boagni of Notre Dame tied the annex mark in the forty yard dash at :04.4, winning in a blanket finish.

CULVER TRACK, SWIM TEAMS BEAT HYDE PK., TILDEN

Culver, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy athletic teams won a twin bill this afternoon when the track team overwhelmed Hyde Park High of Chicago, 69 1-3 to 25 2-3, and the swimmers nosed out Tilden Tech High of Chicago, 32 to 27. In the track meet Schroeder took the only first for the visitors by winning the 45 yard high hurdles. England, Culver, set a new local indoor record by winning the shot with a put of 46 feet 2 inches.

Capt. Peckham was the individuel point winner with 10 points won in the 40 yards dash and broad jump. Cadet Alexander established a new local record in the 100 yard back stroke by winning in 1:09.6. Lewis, Culver, was outstanding in the swimming meet with 14¼ points.

CONSERVATION TO GET SUPPORT OF ROCK ISLANDERS

Rock Island, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Members of the Rock Island Rod and Reel club have voted to support a bond issue for conservation of game and fish in Illinois. This measure was defeated when submitted a few years ago.

When the proposition comes up again it will be for $14,000,000, instead of the original figure of $20,000,000. This county was one of the few that gave a majority in favor of the issue when it was first submitted.

Loyola Names Temporary Director of Athletics

The Reverend Thomas J. Powers, S. J., yesterday was appointed temporary director of athletics at Loyola university. He will be in control for the remainder of the scholastic year in place of Dan Lamont, who resigned recently to take a position at the University of Washington. Up to this time Father Powers has been faculty moderator of athletics. It is expected that a football coach to succeed Lamont will be chosen this week.

Michigan Five Aims to Halt Purdue March

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 1.—[Special.]—Michigan will have the last chance to prove the championship caliber of its basketball team Monday night when the Wolverines will do battle here with Purdue's whirlwind quintet which is in the process of carrying a second major Big Ten title to the banks of the Wabash.

The Wolverines have the best of intentions to upset the Boilermakers and their inimitable combination of Stretch Murphy and Johnny Wooden. With the advantage of the home floor, Coach Veenker's men feel they are fit to wipe out the sting of a 23-19 defeat earlier in the season.

All Seats Sold.

Every one of the reserved seats for Monday's feature battle has been sold for two weeks, and a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected to jam into the fieldhouse which was intended to seat 1,000 less than that.

It is Michigan's last game of the year, and it will mark the final appearance of three star cagers.

An airtight defense which allowed opponents the miserly average of a fraction over 19 points per game in the eight contests will be Michigan's reliance against Purdue. No team has scored more than 26 points in one battle, and that was Indiana's total while losing, 45-26. An erratic offensive is Michigan's greatest cause for worry.

Following the fall of the basketball curtain, Michigan will turn attention to the Big Ten indoor track meet at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday. Iowa's until recently exiled Hawkeyes are defending champions, and though the Wolverines do not hope to succeed them as titleholders, they do have aspirations.

Track Squad of Fifteen.

The Wolverine squad probably will consist of 15 men, as large a number as has made the indoor trip in several years. Included in this number will be seven sophomores.

All three of the men who won individual honors last year will be in the coming meet, and the Seymour twins are left as the nucleus of another good mile relay quartet. Folker tied with five others for first place in the high jump, Capt. Poorman was fourth in the shot, and Eddie Tolan took second in the dash.

N. Y. RANGERS, TORONTO BATTLE TO OVERTIME TIE

Murdock's Scoring Factor in 3-3 Contest.

Hockey Results

Toronto, 3; New York Rangers, 3 [overtime].
Montreal Maroons, 5; New York Americans, 1.
Montreal Les Canadiens, 4; Pittsburgh, 2.
Boston, 2; Ottawa, 1.

TORONTO, March 1.—(AP)—Making their final appearance of the season in Toronto, the New York Rangers battled the Maple Leafs to an overtime tie in a National Hockey league game tonight, 3 to 3.

The contest was a nip and tuck affair, first one team going ahead, then the other. Murray Murdoch of the Rangers was the only player able to score more than one point, gaining a goal and an assist. Bill Cook and Taylor also scored for the Rangers while Cotton, Conacher and Bailey tallied for Toronto.

BRUINS NIP SENATORS.

Boston, Mass., March 1.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins continued on their winning way here tonight by defeating Ottawa, 2 to 1, in one of the best hockey games here this season. The Bruins winning tally was supplied by Cooney Weiland on an assist by Dutch Gainor early in the third period. This score infuriated the Senators, but their maddened efforts resulted only in a major penalty for Smith and a $25 fine for Hec Kilrea. The latter was sent off for tripping and he registered his displeasure by slapping the puck at Referee Bill Stewart.

LES CANADIENS WIN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 1.—(AP)—Les Canadiens of Montreal defeated Pittsburgh in a hockey league game tonight, 4 to 2.

MAROONS WHIP AMERICANS.

MONTREAL, March 1.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons whipped the New York Americans tonight, 5 to 1, in a dull hockey game.

WASHINGTON OF EAST CHICAGO WINS GARY MEET

Gary, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Washington High of East Chicago, which defeated Horace Mann of Gary in a semi-final upset, won the Gary sectional final tonight from Froebel of Gary, 20 to 12.

In the three other sectionals whose winners will play with Washington in the Gary regional next Saturday for the right to enter the state finals in Indianapolis Laporte defeated Michigan City, 23 to 18, at Laporte; Valparaiso defeated Chesterton, 12 to 9, at Valparaiso, and Brook defeated Goodland, 18 to 11, at Goodland. Laporte vs. Brook and Valparaiso vs. Washington are the pairings for the first round of the sectional. Washington-Froebel lineup:

ELGIN ACADEMY CAGERS DEFEAT ST. ALBANS, 25-6

Elgin, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Elgin academy cagers defeated St. Albin's of Sycamore here tonight, 25 to 6. Elgin academy now leads the Midwest prep conference. Morgan Park dropped to second place today, having lost to Wayland Academy.

Second Place in Hockey Race Again at Stake

Games Tonight

Pittsburgh at Chicago.
Rangers at Detroit.

Whether the Chicago Blackhawks or the New York Rangers finish the season in second place in the American division of the National Hockey league very likely will be determined by the games tonight and Tuesday.

Running neck and neck since the season opened, alternating in pushing the other out of second place, the two teams have been tied for a week. The Rangers are on their final road trip, playing at Toronto last night, at Detroit tonight, and against the Hawks in Chicago Tuesday.

If the Blackhawks play in form tonight they should win from Pittsburgh. The Pirates have a good front line in Darragh, Milks and Lowrey, but their defense is indicated by the fact 160 goals have been scored on them in less than forty games. In addition the Pirates lack good spares, while Frank Frederickson, the big center, who might have made a contender of the team, has been out all year with an injured knee.

The Rangers have a bit more difficulty ahead of them tonight, for Detroit is nobody's set up and the New Yorkers haven't been going so well since the loss of Ching Johnson, the big defense man, by accident. Whichever way the game goes, it can hardly help but be to the advantage of the Hawks. If the Rangers win the Hawks are that much surer of a place in the playoffs, for Detroit is their closest pursuer. If Detroit wins the Hawks are that much closer to finishing in second place.

The real matter of the second place probably will be decided by the result of Tuesday night's clash between the Rangers and Hawks at the Stadium. They can't be more than a point or so apart before that game.

Ruth Wins Decision Over Castro in Six Rounds

Cincinnati, O., March 1.—(AP)—Babe Ruth was given the judges' decision over Manuel Castro, Mexican, in a six round bout here tonight. They are junior lightweights.

ILLINOIS PREPS START DISTRICT PLAY WEDNESDAY

Favored 16 Named for Sectional Meets.

Bloomington, Ill., March 1. — [Special.]—Bib business has a new member. High school basketball is the latest to be enrolled. What is regarded as the most successful season in the prep cage sport will be climaxed by the twenty-third annual district tournament next week. Many tourney officials will exercise the privilege granted by the state authorities to start this year's meet Wednesday, a day earlier than usual.

This year's competition will be marked by an enrollment of 756 teams in 56 district tournaments. The winners will compete in the sectionals one week later.

The various competitions in 1929 drew 250,000 spectators with a total gate of $150,000. The prediction for this year with an increased number of meets and teams entered is a total close to 300,000, with receipts of $175,000. Last year every tournament center drew enough to pay the expenses of all competing teams, while all but three paid a bonus to each quintet.

Favor 16 Quintets.

Opinions gathered from all sections of the state rank these teams as the sixteen likely to reach sectional finals: Johnston City, Carbondale, Granite City, Olney, Hillsboro, Assumption, Beardstown, New Berlin, Atwood, Penfield, Peoria Central, Canton, Streator, Galesburg, Sycamore, and Waukegan.

Under the sectional plan teams are eliminated which are stronger than winners of other sectionals. Ranking among the closest to the "sweet sixteen" are Benton, Belleville, Decatur, Windsor, Kankakee, Peoria Manual, Moline, Rockford [Harlem], Freeport, Rochelle, Elgin, and Kewanee.

Fans of southern Illinois expect the title to return to "Little Egypt" this year. Johnston City, 1929 champion, has lost only one player, and in a schedule of 27 games has dropped only three early season games on foreign floors. One was to Streator in the finals of the holiday tournament, and the others were one pointers to Central of Evansville [Ind.] and Mount Carmel.

Carbondale Rates High.

Carbondale, Pontiac tournament victor during the holidays, has lost only to Benton and Murphysboro. Herrin owns a victory over Benton. The high ranking southern teams are headed toward the Herrin sectional.

Olney is a strong southern team which is headed toward the Salem sectional and is favored in spite of its recent loss to Mount Vernon. Allendale, a town of less than 500, has a phenomenal team which blocks the way of southeastern teams, among them Mount Carmel, Robinson, Lawrenceville, and Hutsonville.

Granite City, strongest on the west side of the state, lost games to Belleville and Collinsville before returning to winning form. The trio rank as chief contenders in that section. Madison and Dupo seem out of the running.

Atwood, Assumption and Hillsboro are three Central Illinois teams which have been groomed over a long period. They are rivaled by Windsor, county champion in Moultrie and Shelby, and by others which have been coming up in recent weeks. Decatur High, winner of the Big Twelve holiday tournament, is a possibility if it can shake off a slump of recent origin.

Penfield Again Strong.

Penfield, a three year school with only a dozen boys and no gymnasium, rates among the strongest in the east. Last year the same boys lost the Danville sectional title by only a few points to Champaign which finished second in the state. Beardstown, with a single loss this year, rates high in the west section of the state.

North Central teams have been going through a strenuous season with each other. Streator lost to Kankakee when several regulars were missing and dropped one pointers to Canton and Springfield. However, Streator has won twice from Peoria Central, once each from Canton and Decatur. Peoria Central has a battle in its own district with Peoria Manual. Canton and Galesburg have divided games.

Freeport and Elgin of the Big Seven of northern Illinois are expected to find trouble in their own districts. Sycamore has the most impressive record in the north, playing without a loss this season. Both Moline and Rock Island are of state calibre in the northwest, but one will be eliminated in the district. Waukegan and Rochelle are leaders in the northeast. More Chicago teams are entered in downstate competition this year and Morton, Harrison, Crane and Bowen are favored to reach the Joliet sectional.

Dreshar Named Captain of Carnegie Tech Eleven

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 1.—[U. P.]—John Dreshar of Irwin, Pa., was selected to captain the 1930 Carnegie Tech football team by Coaches Wally Steffin and Bob Waddell, it was announced today. Dreshar, who led the team last year, is the first man in Carnegie's athletic history who has twice been named captain of a grid team. Dreshar, 23, a guard, is a junior in the school of industrial education.

Kenosha Drops Madison Central from Lead

Kenosha, Wis., March 1.—[Special.]—Kenosha High school knocked Madison Central out of a tie with Beloit for first place in the Big Seven conference and went into second place itself by defeating Central here last night, 18 to 17. Only one point separated the two teams after the half.

Patrick Thistle Wins in Scottish Cup Matches

GLASGOW, March 1.—[U.P.]—Partick Thistle came through the fourth round for the Scottish cup today by defeating Falkirk, 3 to 1. Other fourth round scores: Dundee, 2, Hearts, 2 Rangers, 2, Montrose, 0; St. Mirren, 3, Hamilton, 2.

Eight Length Win Scored by Vanderpool

Miami, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—Dashing over a half mile of turf fetlock deep in mud, eight lengths in front of his field, Mrs. M. P. Allen's Vanderpool today strengthened his claim to the two year old championship of the Hialeah park meeting with a victory in the Miami Juvenile stakes.

The California Stable's Donie just managed to save the place from All Columbia. George D. Widener's entry of Friar and Francock did not like the heavy going, finishing far back.

So popular was Vanderpool that he went to the post at odds of 7 to 10. His time for the four furlongs was 45 3-5 seconds.

HIGH FOOT WINS TRIAL

New Orleans, La., March 1.—(AP)—High Foot, a flashy three year old from the Valley Lake stable of Chicago, today served notice of his candidacy for future big stakes of the Fair Grounds meeting when he galloped over a mile of mud in 1:46 4-5 to win the $5,000 added Derby trial.

With the speed of a sprinter the son of Prince Pal made every furlong post a winning one, finishing five lengths in front of Michigan Boy. The latter raced in second position all the way but never menaced the speeding High Foot. Two lengths back of Michigan Boy trailed Lightning Jones.

High Foot was made the odds-on favorite at 95 cents on the dollar while Michigan Boy and Lightning Jones were the second and third choices, respectively. C. Meyer rode the winner.

HERTZ STABLES SEND EIGHTEEN HORSES EAST

Eighteen thoroughbreds, most of them 2 year olds, that will race in the silks of Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago, were shipped east yesterday from their winter quarters at Leona farm near Cary. Their destination is Belmont Park in New York, where Mr. and Mrs. Hertz have a completely outfitted private stable.

The horses were in charge of Big Bill Knapp, former jockey, who succeeded B. S. Mitchell as trainer of the Hertz string last fall. In the shipment were also six horses which Knapp will train for Herbert Bayard Swope of New York.

In the Hertz shipment were the aged racers Fair Ball, Impropriety and Gypsy King, the 3 year old Valenciennes and the following 2 year olds:

Wrigley Field, black colt, by Sand Mole-Lonanna.
Potsare, bay colt, by Pot au Feu-Cotton Blossom.
His Last, brown colt, by Luke McLuke-Oubliette.
Black Ronald, black gelding, by Politian-Helen Betty.
Egypt, chestnut colt, by Zionist-Salome, 2d.
Thackeray, chestnut gelding, by Luke McLuke-Vanity Fair.
Outbound, brown colt, by Luke McLuke-Inbound.
Tweet Tweet, bay filly, by Sir Gallahad 3d-Bobolink 2d.
Fanciile d'Or, chestnut filly, by Sardanapale-Laserpe.

Little Deody, brown filly, by Buchan-Coufey.

The half dozen of the Swope string are:

Lativich, Curtsey, Seb, St. Denys, Forward March, and Parsifal, bay colt, 2, by Sir Gallahad 3d-Venturesome 2d.

The horses arrived at Leona farm last November.

FLEET DEDICATE CHICAGO HOPE IN TURF FIXTURES

Eligible for Rich Derbies, Arlington Classic.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Dedicate, son of Dodge and On Time, is Chicago's hope this year in the 3 year old fixtures which will occupy an important place on the American turf program. The rich races in the west to which he is eligible are the Kentucky Derby, American Derby, and the Arlington Classic, which, like last year, may decide the 3 year old championship.

The remarkable speed colt is a genuine Chicagoan, because he is owned by Fred A. Burton, who mines coal in southern Illinois, who lives in Chicago, and who has his business headquarters here. Longer in thoroughbred production and racing than most other Chicagoans, Burton bred Dedicate at his Kentucky stud. He brought the colt to the Arlington meeting last year to demonstrate that he was a youngster of the highest class by winning three races in a row from the smartest colts and fillies racing there.

Wins Races Impressively.

Before Dedicate started east late in July most of the horsemen who had watched him race at Arlington proclaimed him the west's most formidable bidder for the still undecided juvenile championship. This high appraisal of Dedicate was based on the manner in which he won his three Arlington races. In each he stepped out as the barrier lifted, took a lead of three or four lengths in half a dozen strides, and won on the bit. That was Man o' War's way in 1919 and 1920.

Burton turned down an offer of $50,000 for Dedicate after his third victory at Arlington and might easily have got $75,000 if he had been disposed to sell.

Dedicate would not have dodged any man's colt at Saratoga in August if he could have been brought to the post, but that proved impossible. Unloading in a rainstorm, he caught a cold and developed a slight temperature. He couldn't be sent to the post against Whichone, Boojum, Gallant Fox, Jim Dandy, or Caruso, the biggest winning youngsters of New York's upstate meeting, in that condition.

Wins at Havre de Grace.

He was right again at Havre de Grace and in the seventeenth Eastern Shore handicap, a $30,000 dash of six furlongs for youngsters of both sexes, he shouldered 121 pounds and defeated Hi Jack, Swinfield, Khara, Caruso, Goose Egg, Frumper, Black Majesty, Hacky H., Ellice, Enid, Particular, Brown Trap, Capture, Fortunate Youth, Try Too, and Prometheus.

These were better youngsters than he had spreadeagled at Arlington. Hi Jack, a Sanford stakes winner at Saratoga, had split Whichone and Gallant Fox at the finish of great Futurity, which had netted Whichone $105,750, after running Flying Heels to a head in a Nursery handicap at Belmont Park. Caruso, not so good at Arlington in July, had won renewals of the Grab Bag handicap and United States Hotel stakes at Saratoga. Black Majesty, Caruso's stable buddy, had won a juvenile at Belmont Park in the spring. Goose Egg, probably best of all the 2 year old fillies, had won a Spinaway and three other races at Saratoga.

Last Effort Mediocre.

Whichone would have suffered no loss of prestige through being crowded as Dedicate was. Dedicate did his three-quarters in 1:13 flat, and that was stepping at Havre de Grace last fall. The going was slower than it had been for a couple of seasons.

Dedicate's last 2 year old effort was not so good. Caruso, Hi Jack, Black Majesty, The Spare, Crossbones, and Sydney all licked him in the second Johnson Memorial, another dash of six furlongs which Caruso won in 1:12 3-5. Trainer John Ward had a hunch that something of the sort would happen. For a week the Dodge colt had not been working as briskly as he had galloped at Arlington. There was nothing wrong with his underpinning, however, and he was eating his head off, so Burton decided to take a chance.

The Kentucky Derby, unless the plans of Messrs. Burton and Ward miscarry, will be Dedicate's first big race this year, although he may have a trial gallop or so under silks at Lexington and Churchill Downs in advance of it.

Sire Won 30 Races.

Dodge, the sire of Dedicate, is the son of Jim Gaffney and from Flora Willoughby. He won thirty races, revivals of the Latonia and American Derbies among them, under the silks of John Ward and A. K. Macomber, earning $56,298, when purses were skimpy and the winning was hard. Packing weight over big distances was the best thing Dodge did.

On Time, the mother of Dedicate, is a daughter of High Time and Crankie, the latter by Charles Edward from Killicrankie, she a daughter of Kilmarnock and Kildeer. For a number of years Kildeer held the American record for one mile. So there isn't any reason why Dedicate should not carry over any distance the blazing speed he revealed last season.

Baltimore, Md., March 1.—Primo Carnera, gigantic Italian heavyweight, will come to Baltimore Tuesday to undergo treatment for varicose veins at a local clinic, it was reported here today.

The 259 pound fighter has been invited by Joe Dundee, former world's welterweight champion, to attend a varicose vein clinic in the medical arts building.

Pitt Five Trims Army, 39 to 25; Hyatt Is Star

West Point, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—The Panther quintet from Pittsburgh came from behind today to catch Army's basketball team and win finally with a furious rally, 39 to 25.

Army took a quick lead, 12 to 5, but Charlie Hyatt, Panther star, rallied his mates and managed to edge out a 19 to 17 lead at half time.

20 Track Teams to Meet at Notre Dame This Week

Notre Dame, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Entries for the fourth annual central intercollegiate conference meet to be held here Friday and Saturday closed at midnight tonight. It is expected that 20 or 25 midwest teams will respond to invitations issued by Coach John Nicholson of Notre Dame.

Last year's meet, won by Notre Dame, drew 20 schools and this year's is expected to equal or surpass this mark. Although Coach Nicholson has turned out an exceptionally strong team and is slated to win the meet, he has expressed the belief that Notre Dame is due for a slump due to the strain of dual meets with Butler, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. The middle distance men had the added burden of running on a special two-mile relay team at the Seton Hall and Millrose games in New York.

Notre Dame won with 44½ points last year and Michigan State was second with 33. Butler was well down the list with only six points and Marquette finished with the tail enders with three points. This year, however, Marquette defeated Michigan State in a dual meet, 74½ to 35½, and is slated to be on the heels of the Notre Dame squad. Against Michigan State, the Illiltoppers took first in everything except the pole vault and low hurdles.

Butler, decisively defeated by Notre Dame in its first meet this season, nevertheless is expected to be "in the money," because of the phenomenal work of Bert Nelson, high jumper, Joe Sivak, miler, and Jones, two miler. Nelson set a world's indoor mark in the Notre Dame gymnasium with a leap of 6 feet 6⅞ inches in the dual meet here Feb. 1. While the mark has not been recognized officially, application has been made to A. A. U. officials, and it is believed that the record will stand.

Prizes will consist of an emblematic trophy to the team placing first in the meet, a trophy to the winner of the relay, and individual medals of gold, silver and bronze for the first four men in each event.

Maroons Eye First Place in Big 10 Indoor

Chicago's track squad, which boasts five first class letter men and several other good performers, will figure strongly in the indoor conference track championship at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday. A team title is not beyond the possibilities if all the men do as well as they have in the minor meets of the season.

Harold Haydon, who last year won the high hurdles and set a record of :08.7, will defend his title. Haydon is at the peak of his form, after being out with injuries most of the early season. He recently clipped the record at Michigan when the Maroons scored a victory over the Wolverines in a dual meet. Haydon's most dangerous rival appears to be Sentman of Illinois.

Root, East Sprint Hopes.

Capt. Norman Root, who has been working slowly because of an attack of influenza, also will be ready. He placed third to Simpson of Ohio and Tolan of Michigan last year, but there is a possibility that he may edge out both of these men. Allan East, junior sprinter, a week ago scored a decisive victory over Tolan at Michigan, and must be figured in the event.

Dale Letts, who was a sensational middle distance man last season as a sophomore, is running the mile in fast time and is ready to give Orval Martin, Purdue star, a battle. Letts and Martin last year finished neck and neck, and they should run under 4:20 next Saturday night.

Buck Weaver, who did 46 feet 7½ inches to set a new Michigan record, has a better distance than that in his efforts, and may be able to get around 48 feet if he is going right. Weaver's opposition will come from Behr of Wisconsin, who beat Buck by inches in the recent quadrangular.

Relay Team Broken Up.

Ed Schulz, the other letter man, is a fair possibility in the 440, in which he is doing around :51. The Chicago mile relay team has been broken up by the ineligibility of Hathaway, who was running as fast as Schulz, and Coach Ned Merriam will not have a first rate quartet. Schulz, Letts, Colville, and either Root or Haydon, will compose the team.

30TH ANNUAL A.B.C. MEET OPENS AT CLEVELAND

207 Chicago Teams Bowl for Rich Prizes.

Cleveland, O., March 1.—(AP)—The curtain was raised here tonight on the thirtieth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress, and before the lid is clamped down the night of April 6 new champions in the five-man, doubles, singles, and all-events will have been established if the tourney runs true to form in never seeing a champion stage a successful comeback in successive tourneys.

All four of 1929, who won the spars at Chicago, have entered in defense of their titles. The Hub Recreation five of Joliet, team champions, Kleser and Butler of Chicago, who hit 1,353 to win the two-man title, Adolph Unke of Milwaukee, who shot 723 to cop the singles crown, and Otto Stein Jr. of St. Louis, who totaled 1,974 to annex leading all-events honors, are listed for play.

Purse Over $100,000.

For the second time in A. B. C. history the prize fund has bounced over the $100,000 mark. This year bowlers from twenty-five states and Canada will battle for a division of $100,000.

Chicago, Detroit, and Buffalo proved the only cities able to better the century mark in team entry. Chicago, as usual, leads, with 207 teams. Detroit turned in its greatest A. B. C. entry by entering 124 quintets, and Buffalo, which is Dowling and Englewood, and Loyola-Hyde Park and Aquinas feature the south division schedule at White City, where a similar situation prevails.

Indiana Fans See Last Cage Tilt Tomorrow

Bloomington, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Playing before the Indiana university rooters for the last time this season, the Crimson basketball squad will meet Minnesota Monday night in the Indiana field house. Two other games remain, at Wisconsin Saturday and at Minnesota March 10. Thus Capt. Branch McCracken, leading the conference scoring, will have three more chances to increase his total for the season. In the eight games played against conference teams McCracken has made 98 points on 38 field goals and 20 free throws.

Indiana has displayed fine offensive work at times, but in other instances failed to connect with the basket. Last Saturday night, against Michigan, the Crimson attempted 79 shots and connected with eight, while the Wolverines made the same number of goals on 34 tries. Most of Indiana's attempts were far back and hurried by close guarding.

Indiana Bids for Track Honors.

Much attention will be focused on the performances of the Indiana entrants in the western conference indoor track meet on Friday and Saturday at Minneapolis. Coach E. C. Hayes has a well balanced team and expects it to make a strong bid for conference honors.

Although the Indiana squad has not been picked, it is likely that the following will competé at Minneapolis: Gordon and Streicher, dash events; Todd, pole vault, high jump, and shot put; C. O. Banks, high jump; Smock, 440 yard dash; Hatfield, hurdles; and Kemp, Leas, Clapham, and Shaffer in distance runs. Clapham smashed the field house record for the mile run here last week when he ran the distance in 4 minutes and 24.2 seconds. Leas and Clapham placed in the two mile event in the national intercollegiate meet last season and have been running good races this season.

Unger Undefeated Wrestler.

When the conference wrestling meet is held at Illinois on March 14 and 15 for individual championships, Indiana should have an outstanding candidate in Unger, a heavyweight. Unger, who played in the Indiana line during the football season, has not been defeated this season. Aldridge, 118 pound representative, has come out of an early season slump to win every conference match by a fall. Eddie Belshaw, in the 138 pound, and Capt. Scott, in the 178 pound division, are going strong.

Coach Pat Page is disappointed over the small turnout of candidates at the football drills being conducted three times each week. When the basketball schedule closes he will begin an intensive campaign and hopes that many more will report for duty.

BASEBALL WILL BE REVIVED AT EUREKA COLLEGE

Eurka, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—After a two year lapse, baseball will be revived at Eureka college. The athletic board of control rescinded the action of two years ago which abolished the national game and Coach McKinzie is organizing a team. Games will be booked with others schools of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference.

Milwaukee to Form 19 Sandlot Leagues

Milwaukee, Wis., March 1.—[Special.]—Nineteen baseball leagues will be conducted this summer on the sandlots of Milwaukee, it was announced today by Harold Morgan, director of city athletics, who said that the registration will mark one of the biggest seasons in the history of amateur athletics here. Last year 5,761 players were included in 242 teams and played to nearly 700,000 persons in twilight, Saturday and Sunday games.

Bruins Whip Rochester's Five, 25 to 20

Rochester, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—Chicago jolted Rochester in an American Basketball league game here tonight, 25 to 20. The Bruins trailed at half time, 15 to 13, but Hickey, Russell and Ely scored in rapid order at the opening of the second half and the Centrals were never able to overhaul the Bruins. Chicago stalled away the greater part of the last five minutes of play with a great back court passing game. Hickey caged five field goals to top the scorers.

In the first preliminary at Broadway armory this evening, the Berwyn American Legion quintet will meet the Larrabee Y. M. C. A. heavyweights, in a game scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock.

PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Two of the greatest shots in the American Basketball league will clash tonight at the Broadway armory when the Chicago Bruins meet the Paterson Crescents.

Nat Hickey of the Bruins is tied with Benny Borgmann of Paterson for the league lead in scoring, and this evening's contest will see one of them go into the undisputed lead.

Borgmann has one factor in his favor—that Paterson always has been a jinx to the Chicago club and figures to give the Bruins a real battle this evening. The Bruins have lost to the Crescents in their last two clashes here.

Capt. Ray Kennedy, brilliant Chicago guard, will be back in the lineup this evening after an absence of almost two weeks because of an infected hand.

In a preliminary contest this evening the Taylor Trunks will meet the Waukegan Shamrocks in a girls' game.

HAWKEYE TRACK TEAM DEFEATS MARQUETTE, 57-37

Iowa City, Ia., March 1.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa cindermen defeated Marquette university's track and field team here today in a dual meet, 57½ to 37½. The Hilltoppers won five of the eight track events, while the Hawkeyes captured all of the three field contests.

A world's record was shattered in the 320 yard shuttle relay. Two fieldhouse marks were tied and one was broken during the meet. The world mark which fell before a quartet of Iowa hurdlers was the record of 41 5-10 seconds in the shuttle relay, established at the Drake relays by an Illinois team a year ago. The Hawkeyes, Willer, Handorf, Saling, and Gordon, in an exhibition race were timed in 40 9-10 seconds.

MANLEY PLACED IN CHARGE OF LITTLE 19 SWIM

Kankakee, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Edward Manley, swimming coach at the University of Illinois, will be in charge of the annual swimming tournament for schools of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference here March 22. The pool in St. Viator college has been selected for the annual competition.

H. Keys; treasurer, W. H. Odell. Committees were named to make up the program for tournaments and also a schedule of match play with teams from other clubs of central Illinois.

FACTS FOR SMOKERS WITH THE EXPENSIVE 10 CENT HABIT

WHITE OWL is a fine, mild, free-smoking cigar of generous size; made only by the most modern automatic machines, in model factories.

Former 10 cent smokers, by the thousands, now enjoy its complete contentment and satisfaction . . . and save a third of their cigar money besides.

They agree that there is no sound reason for continuing to follow the expensive 10 cent habit. That's why more men smoke WHITE OWL than any 10 cent cigar.

BIG 10 ATHLETES VIE THIS WEEK IN INDOOR MEET

Several Schools Conceded Chance to Win.

One of the leading indoor events of the season will be held next Friday and Saturday in the University of Minnesota field house, where the annual Western conference indoor track and field championships will be decided. Preliminaries in several events will be held on the opening day.

No team can lay claim to the title. Virtually every university in the Big Ten boasts individual stars, but none has the all around strength necessary for a pre-meet favorite.

Simpson Dash Favorite.

It will be the first time the meet has been held at Minneapolis. In other years the Gopher institution has sponsored the outdoor games.

George Simpson of Ohio State, holder of the world record for 100 yards at :09 2-5, will go to the mark a favorite in the dash. The distance will be either 60 or 70 yards, which is a trifle short for the Buckeye. He has been defeated over shorter distances this year and may meet with another setback at Minneapolis. Ford of Northwestern defeated Simpson in the four cornered meet at Evanston. Other sprinters of note will be Heinke of Wisconsin; Conway, Hubbard, and Jordan of Iowa; Useman of Illinois; Hass of Minesota, and Root of Chicago.

Sentman and Rodgers of Illinois and Hayden of Chicago appear to be the class of the hurdlers. Sentman has tied world records over various distances this winter. Potter of Michigan, Hass of Minnesota, and Siese of Wisconsin are point possibilities.

Letts in Half Mile.

Strother and Wise of Ohio State, Hampton of Illinois, Depping of Iowa, Henge of Wisconsin, and Seymour of Michigan are among the leading quarter milers. Each has covered the distance indoors close to 50 seconds. Letts of Chicago, Moulton of Iowa, Benson of Michigan, Hays and Heintz of Ohio State, and Goldsworthy of Wisconsin have made the best time in the half mile.

Makeever of Illinois, Letts of Chicago, Hanover of Ohio State, Strain of Minnesota, and Thompson of Wisconsin should be the point winners in the one mile run. Kelly of Chicago, Makeever of Illinois, Goldsworthy and Follows of Wisconsin, and White of Ohio State should finish well up in the two mile.

There should be keen competition in the pole vault. Warne of Northwestern, McDermont of Illinois, and Canby of Illinois have cleared the bar at 13 feet. They are consistent performers, and the winner should establish a record. Harper of Illinois, Mantz of Ohio State, Albright of Iowa, and Brockmeyer of Minnesota are other contenders.

Duel in Shot Put.

In the shot put, an interesting duel should result between Weaver of Chicago and Behr of Wisconsin. Both are capable of shoving the ball better than 45 feet. Roberts of Iowa, Wineland of Illinois, and Brooks of Michigan are others who may figure in the point column.

Carr of Illinois should finish near the top in the running high jump. The Orange and Blue athlete has been clearing six feet all winter. Butler of Ohio State; Shaw, Behr, and Murphy of Wisconsin; Gordan and Cochrane of Iowa, and Felker of Michigan should be point contenders.

BADGER RESERVES DEFEAT PURPLE SECONDS, 31-29

A field goal by Fries in the last minute of the overtime period gave Wisconsin's B team a 31 to 29 verdict over Northwestern reserves at Patten gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The teams ended the regulation playing period in a 27 to 27 tie. Northwestern possessed a 17 to 11 advantage at the first half, due to scoring by Bob Hails, who connected with four field goals and two free throws. Lineup:

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

by Westbrook Pegler

MIAMI, Fla., March 1.—Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as some of these prosperous athletes who find themselves suddenly and unexpectedly wealthy, nor has any charioteer of mythology larruped his steeds across the sky with half the speed of some of the boys as they take to the public highways in their new machines in the first thrill of opulence, expensive suits, and haberdashery. High powered automobiles are the favorite dissipations of the plowboy or bottle washer or nondescript bum who begins to pick up money in chunks of $50,000 or more in the arenas of the sport industry and discovers that some tailors charge $250 for a single suit of clothes and some dealers $15,000 for a roadster.

The automobile still was a primitive contraption when Jack Johnson began to make a public nuisance of himself, finally earning a 30 day scholarship in a California jailhouse for a burst of excessive speed some years ago. He drove as fast as 50 miles an hour at times, and this was considered a very brisk rate of going in those days, although Paulino Uzcudun at the present time regards 50 as a cautious speed to be observed only on right angle turns, and does not feel the true sense of motion until his speedometer records 98 or 100 miles an hour.

Paulino Uzcudun at the present time regards fifty as a cautious speed to be observed only on right angle turns.

Corps of Managers Perturbed by Whimsy.

Paulino's corps of managers was much perturbed by this whimsy of his during the off hours between his training gestures for his bout with Max Schmelling a year ago. He would bound into his rolling torpedo, kick the foot throttle down so hard as to crack the floor boards of an ordinary chassis and be gone around the bends, leaving the unhappy gents whose ease and livelihood were all dependent on the continued good health of Paulino gathered by the roadside in silent prayer for his safe return. It is a bit of a worry for a prizefight manager to see his principal means of support tearing from peak to peak along a winding turtle-back mountain road at one hundred miles an hour, realizing that if some cotter pin should give way or a tire explode, the remnants of his hero will be brought back on a shutter or a blotter, if at all, a total loss and probably uninsured.

Jack Renault, the lackadaisical Canadian pugilist, who could have made three times the fortune that he did make if he had been diligent at his work, owned the biggest car ever possessed by any of the profession, an imported contraption with a wheel base as long as a bowling alley, and a power plant up forward sufficient to run a steel mill, but something seems to have happened to this spectacular buggy, for he was using jitneys at a dime a hop when I saw him in Miami lately. Sometimes the boys are over optimistic about their futures and make down payments on machines which they are unable to maintain, so the dealers sneak up on them in unwary moments and take their plaything back somewhat the worse for wear.

Babe Ruth Once Source of Law Officers' Worry.

Babe Ruth used to be a great trial to the indulgent law officers, driving through the parks and along the boulevards of the east with absolutely no sense of caution. He once earned a technical day in jail in New York, being released however, at the adjournment of court, just in time to reach the ball yard for the first inning by a fast drive through town. The judge went to the ball game also, and I would like to relate that the Babe boasted a home run for his honor's special delight that day, but I believe the colorless fact of the matter is that he popped a couple of fouls and went out on a grounder to short on the third attempt.

In the last few years, however, I have not heard of the Babe as a rapid driver, and it may be that he doesn't even own a car any more, because he is a rich man now, and rich men in the sport business are prudent to disown dangerous vehicles because shyster lawyers with malingering clients are very quick to sue for personal injuries of a purely imaginary character.

Red Grange bought a dozen or more machines in his prosperous years, including one, at least, that looked like a hook and ladder truck and snorted over the hills with the cutout stuttering in a $10,000 accent.

Bespeaks Little Respect for Law or His Neck.

Several times when Jack Sharkey has fought in New York he has leaped into his high spirited motor car at the back door of Madison Square Garden about midnight and pounded over the Post road to be home in Boston not long after dawn, which bespeaks little respect for the laws of the road and not much for his own neck, either.

Leo P. Flynn, when he was managing Jack Dempsey, in Chicago once gave me a dash of haste along a straight stretch of road at 94 miles an hour, and Madam Flynn was almost a widow in one exciting instant as her loving husband's straw hat flew off and his hand flew up to catch it, thus wabbling the helm a trifle and throwing one of the rear wheels off the road.

The ride over the mountains from Speculator to Utica behind Gene Tunney, the night he took the train for Chicago was a lively progress, too, for Tunney had no nerves, and he sat in the lead car chattering with the driver as the caravan belted through the rain and darkness of the forest on a hog back highway. Going to Utica, his driver was so fascinated by the honor of the occasion that a street car stalled on a bridge ahead quite escaped his notice, and it was only by a dexterous skid that Gene's machine was saved from a dive through the rail into the river or freight yard, or whatever it was that lay in the darkness a right smart distance down below.

Indulge in Poor Man's Taste for Expensive Clothes.

Tunney, Sharkey, and Dempsey all indulged the poor man's taste for expensive clothes as soon as they were able to open accounts with expensive tailors, but Tunney and Sharkey seemed to have a natural instinct for neat and quiet designs, whereas Dempsey came up with gaudy effects tailored in hour glass lines at the waist and eagle wing lapels that gave him the appearance of a whining tenor in a second rate floor show. When Tunney began to collect appreciable money, he went to Tommy Armour, who is the class of genteel fashion on the golf course, for counsel as to his dressing and a broad statement of the rule of when to wear white shoes and what to wear with them. Dempsey's taste moderated and improved in a year or two, and having a much better figure than Tunney and more personal style or dash, he fills the eye more fully and with better effect nowadays.

The boys go in for pajamas at $50 a suit, tapestry galluses at $15 a pair, crêpe silk lingerie, and $25 hats. The standing investment in clothing, inside and out, when a man has hit 50 home runs or won the heavyweight championship, or almost won it, ranges between $3,000 and $5,000. Tunney at one time had seventeen suits and a complete wardrobe of overcoats, and Red Grange, having gone through college without a spare pair of pants, acquired 25 suits soon after the money began to roll in.

SPORTSMEN ASK STATE TO FINISH FISH HATCHERY

Geneseo, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Sportsmen of this vicinity are anxious to see the completion of the state fish hatchery here. After the department of fish and game conservation had expended a large sum a leak developed in the dike and work has been suspended.

Inspectors from the state department estimated that $2,000 would be necessary for the repairs, but sportsmen here dispute this figure, asserting that not more than $100 will be required.

STARTING BLOCKS TO GET TEST IN COLLEGE SPRINTS

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Starting blocks used by sprinters in place of the old fashioned holes dug in the track were given conditional approval at the convention of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America today.

The hurdles were eliminated from the annual cross country race to make it less arduous and, the way was cleared for holding the 1932 intercollegiate track and field championships on the Pacific coast for the first time.

ARREST PREP RIOTERS.

New York, March 1.—[Special.]—Seventy-nine pupils of the New Utrecht High school in Brooklyn were arrested last night and charged with disorderly conduct and juvenile delinquency. The arrests followed a demonstration in celebration of the victory of the New Utrecht High school track team in an interscholastic meet.

LITTLE 19 RACE ENDS THIS WEEK WITH TEN GAMES

Three Teams File Title Claims.

Bloomington, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—The Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference basketball season comes to an end next week with ten games. Indications point to a contested title with Bradley, Carthage, and Shurtleff as claimants. The two latter played their concluding games this week, but Bradley has one remaining with Eureka on the Tech floor Wednesday.

The season ranks with the most successful in the history of the Little 19, both from the standpoint of attendance and closely matched teams.

While the percentage system may show Carthage in the lead, Bradley followers are expected to dispute Carthage claims on the ground that the latter did not schedule teams like Millikin, St. Viator, Wesleyan, and others classed as the strongest of the conference. As long as such a numerous conference membership is permitted this condition is likely to continue.

Bradley Machine Tuned Up.

Bradley appears to be in its best condition for the final game. McQueen, Mason, Harms, Becker, and Steiner compose a machine that has been steadily crushing opponents.

Carthage wound up the season against Illinois college. This season was the most successful in the history of the school, and in Bush, Malec, Horenson, Howland, and Hankensen Carthage possesses a quintet which has brought prestige to the western Illinois institution.

Wesleyan wound up its season by losing to Eureka in a tight game, the showing of the latter squad indicating that Bradley cannot afford to minimize the strength of its final opponent. Failure of the Methodists to maintain their opening half standard was a disappointment to the supporters of Coach Roettger's squad.

Pace Too Fast for Millikin.

Millikin's athletes, who startled the Little 19 early in the season by trouncing Wesleyan and Bradley in the same week, were unable to keep up the pace. The Blues will close their schedule at Illinois college Tuesday. Monmouth meets two nonconference opponents to wind up its season next week.

Following is the list of games next week:

Tuesday—Millikin at Illinois college; Augustana at Knox; Mount Morris at La Salle; Lake Forest at Beloit.

Wednesday—Eureka at Bradley.

Thursday—Monmouth vs. Hamilton at St. Paul.

Friday—Lombard at Macomb; Monmouth at Carleton; Illinois college at Eureka.

Saturday—Knox at Cornell.

BRICKIES AGAIN PLAY CARPENTERS IN CUP BATTLE

The Bricklayers soccer team will meet the Carpenters today at Sparta field, 22d and Kostner, in the replay of their national challenge cup game. Last Sunday they battled for two hours to a 1 to 1 tie.

The winner of today's game will meet the Holley Carburetors of Detroit next Sunday at Sparta field in the western semi-final.

As a curtain raiser to today's feature, Sparta will clash with the Jugo-Slavs at 1 o'clock.

The Maccabees soccer team of the Chicago Major league will play the McDuff F. C. at Olympia field, 4700 West 19th street today.

CHAMPAIGN HIGH TIES FOR FIRST IN BIG TWELVE

Champaign, Ill., March 1.—(AP)—With a free for all fight following the contest, Champaign High last night won a share in the Big Twelve conference basketball title by defeating Peoria Central, 20 to 13. The victory gave Champaign a tie with Peoria Manual for the championship, each with eight triumphs and two defeats.

Briner, Champaign forward, and Wharry, Peoria guard, came to blows after the final whistle sounded. The crowd surged onto the floor, but the trouble was quelled within a few minutes. Champaign led, 14 to 5, at the end of the second period. Referee Williams ordered Jockish, Peoria guard, from the floor, when the latter protested a decision in the third period.

Irish League Soccer Club Defeats Free State, 6-1

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 1.—(AP)—In an inter-league soccer match today the Irish league defeated a free state eleven six goals to one.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question

The Question.

Do you think the Golden Gloves tourney has stimulated interest in boxing?

The Answers.

Ralph Ham, 2727 Pine Grove avenue, research engineer—Unquestionably. If more people would take an interest in promoting the manly sport, boxing would become one of the foremost competitions. THE TRIBUNE is helping to make boxing a good, clean sport.

Jack Schwartz, 3501 Sunnyside avenue, cigar clerk—The Golden Gloves tourney provides a wonderful opportunity for young fellows who are anxious to get into the boxing game. It also affords entertainment for countless fans who do not care to watch the professionals. Then, too, the tourney helps the disabled war veterans, for the profits go to the convalescent camp in the forest preserve.

Bailey Koerner, 661 Sheridan road, sales manager — Certainly it has. It helps to teach hundreds of young men the manly art of self-defense and brings out the best boxing talent in the middle west. It gives these young men a chance to develop and display their skill and also provides entertainment for thousands of Chicagoans.

Martin E. Corcoran, 876 First National Bank building, attorney—I took in the events at the Coliseum Wednesday night, and I was greatly impressed with the significance of it, besides being highly pleased from an entertainment standpoint. The tournament is being conducted under healthy surroundings and gives the boys the right sendoff on a pugilistic career if they aim to pursue that line of work.

J. L. Holleran, 6426 Newgard avenue, attorney—In promoting this tournament, where the youngsters can strive for honors in the boxing world, THE TRIBUNE is stimulating a wide interest in boxing. The Golden Gloves tourney makes possible a great show for the boxing fan and an excellent opportunity for the fighter.

3 Marquette Stars Finish Play Tuesday

Milwaukee, Wis., March 1.—[Special.]—Three Marquette university basketball regulars will wind up their collegiate careers Tuesday night, as Coach Cord Lipe's Blue and Gold cagers battle the University of Iowa in a return engagement in the Hawkeye fieldhouse at Iowa City.

Capt. Jimmy O'Donnell, right forward, of Milwaukee; Roy (Tam) Andrew, lanky center, of Shawano, Wis., and Neil Gonyo, who works either at right or left guard and is from Berlin, Wis., are the Hilltop athletes who are playing their third year on the varsity. Gonyo also was a football star.

These three luminaries of Lipe's quintet and their mates naturally want to wind up the season with their second victory of the year over Iowa. In a game played in Milwaukee during the Christmas holidays, Marquette turned back Rollie Williams' aggregation, 29 to 19.

Iowa, despite ineligibilities at the start of the season, has turned out a fairly formidable basketball aggregation this season, and Jack Figg, a sophomore, who became eligible with the opening the second semester, has been the star in recent games. Another dangerous Hawkeye performer is Bob Spradling, who was high scorer for the Iowans in their Milwaukee game.

The Marquette team wound up its home schedule against Michigan State here tonight, after games earlier in the week with Lawrence college and Drake university. Twenty-three games, most of them with major opponents, constituted the most extensive varsity schedule in the history of the sport at the local school.

BRITISH PRESS UNCOVERS 'MOVIE PLOT' TO ROB PHIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 1.—A Yankee conspiracy, in which the whole nation has joined in order not to let the world know that Phil Scott is the greatest living heavyweight, includes the moving picture industry, too. The British press today informs its readers that the pictures taken at Miami were edited and the final foul blow cut out and "the cameras are not being permitted to tell the truth about the fight."

At the same time an enterprising news reel company already has circularized the trade, promising an accurate, complete film of the fight and warning boxing followers to restrain from rash opinions until they see the film. The first showing of the picture is scheduled for March 17.

COACHES TO TAKE UP ELIMINATION OF CENTER TIPOFF

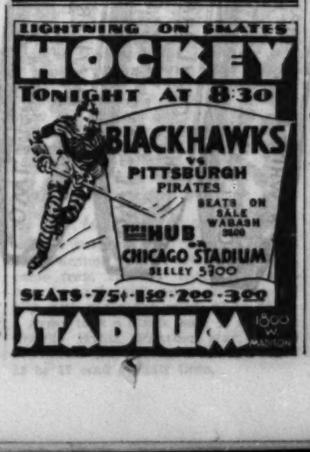
Champaign, Ill., March 1.—[Special.]—Elimination of the center tipoff and the stalling offense will be among the subjects discussed by the National Association of Basketball Coaches at the annual meeting in Chicago April 3, Craig Ruby, Illini cage coach, who is president, announced today.

H. G. Olson, Ohio State coach, who is secretary and chairman of the committee on rules, will report on the proposed changes in the rules. The date of the meeting will permit the coaches to attend the national interscholastic basketball tournament at the University of Chicago April 4-5.

Brownson Wins Inter-hall Track Meet at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., March 1.—Led by Leo Dilling, who scored 15 points, Brownson hall today won the second leg of the inter-hall track championship at Notre Dame. Dilling took first in the 60 yard dash, tied for first in the high jump, was second in the broad jump and 440 and gave his hall a large lead in the mile relay.

The teams finished in the following order: Brownson, 37; Sophomore, 20; Morrissey, 15; Carroll, 13; Stewards, 13, and Walsh, 7.



N.U. to Build for Reserve Grid Strength

Development of reserve material, the lack of which proved costly to Northwestern in the 1929 campaign, is the task confronting Coach Dick Hanley as he prepares to open spring grid practice tomorrow.

The freshmen team last fall did not prove productive in the way of furnishing varsity material and unless marked progress is made this spring the Wildcats will be in much the same position as last fall.

Coach Hanley plans to devote most of spring practice in tutoring newcomers, trusting they will develop sufficiently to be ready for varsity service in the fall. The necessity of strong reserves was evidenced last season when a first string lineup was called upon to carry most of the burden and in the last few games weakened materially.

Players reporting for spring drill are to be divided into four squads, and each week a series of games will be played. Each one is having an equal quota of varsity players. In this way Coach Hanley plans to introduce more competitive spirit and at the same time will have an opportunity to see the new men working under actual playing conditions.

Capt. Henry Bruder is rapidly recovering from the broken leg he sustained in the Wisconsin game and is expected to take part in most of spring practice. However, he may not take part in the scrimmages and other heavy work.

GET COLISEUM FOR AMATEUR MAT TOURNEY

Joe Coffey and Doc Krone have secured the Coliseum for the amateur wrestling championships April 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19. Special invitations to teams from colleges and universities in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin are being prepared. The meet will be held under sanction of the Central A. A. U. and efforts are being made to have the tournament contests carry with them the Central A. A. U. championships.

GRADE SCHOOLS OPEN SECTIONAL MEETS THURSDAY

PURDUE, 50; MINNESOTA, 22

Lafayette, Ind., March 1.—[Special.] Purdue romped over Minnesota here tonight, 50 to 22. It was the Boilermakers' eighth straight conference victory and assured them of at least a tie for the 1930 title.

Purdue launched a basket barrage at the start that had even the most ardent Boilermaker supporters looking askance, and in the middle of the first half held a 25 to 0 lead. While Purdue was piling up its overwhelming total, and holding the Gophers scoreless, Murphy, Harmeson, Wooden, and Kellar were looping the ball through the hoop from every angle and at any speed. INDIANA, 27; OHIO, 15

Bloomington, Ind., March 1.—[Special.]—Indiana defeated Ohio State, 27 to 15, here tonight. The game was listless with the possible exception of the performance of Capt. New York, March 1.—(AP)—The National Association of American Oarsmen tonight endorsed Lake Merced, located on the peninsula of San Francisco bay, as a site for the Olympic regatta in 1932. The site was suggested by Henry Burke, president of the association.

Los Angeles, official host for the 1932 games, may put up strenuous objections to the association's suggested site. There are two possible sites close to Los Angeles, San Pedro bay and San Diego bay.

Songs of Robin, Bluebird Soon to Cheer North

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rainey Slough, Fla., March 1.—Both the bluebird, a colorful harbinger of spring, and the robin are scheduled to appear in northern Illinois within a week if these birds maintain their average on spring arrivals. Thus the feathered travelers will be beginning one of the most interesting annual games of leap frog ever staged in the middle west.

It may be difficult to imagine robins, bluebirds and other species playing leap frog, but we know of no better way to describe the migration methods of the travelers.

Why It's Leap Frog.

Spring migration has no such comprehensive synchronized movement among birds as features the normal fall migration. Instead of a vast wave of birds marching right down to winter quarters, we have in the spring a game of spurts and stops, with the flight behind the vanguard "leaping over" the latter to continue their way northward.

In the case of the majority of our land birds, the robin and bluebird, for example, the first individuals appearing in Chicagoland are the old birds that nested there last year. We may expect these two species the first week in March. Behind these first arrivals who are going to be neighbors of ours during the summer of 1930 are others that nested in the region north of us.

Northern Birds Follow.

Later there comes out of the south another wave of birds of the same species whose homes always have been far to the north. When they pass through Chicagoland, figuratively speaking, they do a quick hop and a jump over the heads of the birds which are going to remain with us all summer, thus making a curious game of leap frog out of this migrating business.

It is easy to visualize this situation among our song birds if two groups in two different sections are considered. For example, it is easy to see that robins which like to nest in Chicagoland would arrive in the north much earlier than those which want to do their housekeeping in Alberta, Canada. Therefore these northern robins are apt to come up from the south quite late, pass over their friends who are already busy picking out homesites and continue northward to mate and nest.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

NIGHT TRUCKING MADE NECESSARY BY NARROW ROADS

Cartage Men Say Idea Is a Success.

BY HAL FOUST.

The congestion on the narrow highways radiating from Chicago is putting motor freight service on night schedules. Cartage companies report that night hauling has proved its value and is growing rapidly.

There are few available statistics on the subject. Robert Nau, traffic expert of the Chicago Association of Commerce, is studying this trend in motor transportation, but he will not be ready to make a report for several months.

Economy Is Obvious.

The economy of night operation of trucks, however, is obvious. The machine can travel faster. There are no farmer's wagons on the road. Village streets are not cluttered with parked cars. And there is not the hazard that goes with congestion—fast automobiles cutting in and out of traffic lanes to get around slower machines.

Use of the highways at night for freight service likewise benefits passenger travel in the day time. On a two lane pavement with heavy traffic, every truck is a hazard to the passenger cars that must go around it.

Mr. Nau points out that a similar situation exists in Chicago. The pavements carry maximum loads only for a fraction of the twenty-four hours.

Night Trucking in City.

"City trucking," he said, "will probably follow the trend of interurban carting. All of the factors that encouraged night driving on the rural highways apply to city freight service."

There is even a greater economy in the shift from day to night schedules for city trucking. Congestion causes expensive delays and wear and tear on machines on the inadequate highways, but this waste is much greater in the city's daytime traffic. Mr. Nau's survey will probably substantiate this opinion with statistics.

The use of trucks at night in Chicago has been retarded, according to reports, by the attitude of the chauffeurs' union. Organized labor is opposed to night work that can be avoided. However, if the chauffeurs by working at night can earn more money for their employers, an adjustment of wage scales would remove any objection from organized labor to the shift from day hours.

BRITISH R. R.'S FIGHT BUSES FOR TRAFFIC CONTROL

LONDON.—[U. P.]—The bitter war between the railroads and the motor coaches for control of passenger traffic in England has been revived.

There has been a lull since last August, but now the railroads have attacked with an ultimatum prohibiting railroad tourist agencies throughout the country selling motor coach tickets except those for agencies approved by the railroad companies.

Day motor trips from London and provincial towns to race meetings such as the Derby, St. Leger, and Ascot will not be allowed. Local tours to famous sights, organized trips to the Shakespeare country, and similar tours are either prohibited or only allowed on being submitted to the railroads for consideration or carried out in railroad road vehicles.

The ultimatum, which would have a serious effect on the American tourist season next summer, is expected to be contested bitterly by the motor coach companies.

Agents do not believe that the railroads can benefit in any way by the prohibition, since if the public wants to go by road instead of rail it will do so. And if the agents cannot or will not sell motor coach tickets, then the public will merely walk across the street to a purely coaching office.

FUEL FOR AUTOS IS ASSURED FOR 50,000 YEARS

For the next 50,000 years, at any rate, American motorists may feel assured of an ample fuel supply for their cars, boats, airplanes and whatnots. Nor will it be necessary to carry a tank full of TNT or nitroglycerin in the car to get us there and bring us back.

Thus one great national worry was laid at rest when Thomas A. Boyd, fuel technologist, recently talked to the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Mr. Boyd cited the known quantity of petroleum, crude petroleum, petroleum sands and shale deposits and described three ways of converting coal into liquid fuel. These are pyrolysis, or coking at high and low temperatures; hydrogenation and gasifica-

Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana Have Light Laws

Most states have adopted legislation providing for proper lights. The Illinois motor vehicle act provides that drivers approaching each other at night must dim their lights when not less than 250 feet apart; the Indiana statute specifies that drivers must dim the lights when approaching each other, and the Wisconsin code orders lights operated in such a manner that there will be no glare or dazzle, and also provides for official stations where lights shall be tested.

Pennsylvania Will Save $80,000 by Small Licenses

The state of Pennsylvania will save $80,000 in 1930 as a result of smaller license tags, envelopes, and postage. The longest tag issued will be not more than 12 inches. No car will carry a tag bearing more than five numerals. Twenty letters of the alphabet will take the place of numerals, and in many and varied combinations make it possible to register nearly 3,000,000 cars, never going above five letters and numerals.

ROOF PARKING IN SEATTLE

Seattle, which has grown into a thriving and busy metropolis in comparatively few years, is now facing a traffic congestion problem to such an extent that her motorists are forced to "park on the roof." In a very few years Seattle will have many such roof garages and Seattle motorists will then cease getting gray hairs trying to find a place to park.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

WOULD REMOVE STREET CARS.

Chicago, March 1.—One hears a lot about traffic and the sort, but it is like our subway—and you know what that means.

Why doesn't the city, now that it has the street car situation to do with as it pleases, have all the tracks removed from State street, Dearborn and La Salle streets? Have Clark street as a through street, also Wabash avenue.

Have the feeders come in from the west and not go any farther east than Clark street, and have that street as the east side of a loop.

This would leave Michigan avenue and State street clear and many cars could be parked on both sides and in the center of these wide streets.

It is not necessary that every street should be a loop street, and it is not necessary that the street car should pass in front of every merchant's door.

When a citizen pays state tax, city tax, and personal tax on his auto, he should be shown some consideration. He should be given a place to park.

DR. J. MURRAY NICHOLSON.

NEW PARK BOARDS

Chicago, March 1.—The new commissioners of the west park and the Lincoln park boards have their opportunity, with the opening of the 1930 motoring season, to do their stuff. There is a lot of stuff to do. Pavements have been torn and broken during the winter. If the new commissioners want to make a hit with the motorists, they had better get busy putting the boulevards into shape. LYLE ABBOTT.

CALIFORNIA AND DIVISION.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Why are no traffic signals installed on the corners of California and Division streets? This is one of the most dangerous crossings in the city, in view of the fact that it is the end of the street car line and is the entrance of the Humboldt park drive. North avenue and California have traffic signals, as well as less dangerous crossings.

It appeared at first when signals were installed on other nearby corners that same would be installed at Division and California shortly thereafter, but up to this time nothing has been done. I presume a terrible tragedy will wake some one up and then, as usual, some one will be accused of being negligible, etc., traffic signals will be put up, and the matter forgotten. ROSE A. KATES.

NEED ADEQUATE WARNING.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—I wish to offer a good idea for the west park board. Put up a suitable electric center street sign at Ashland and Warren boulevard to prevent motorists turning west on Warren boulevard.

One boy has been hit by a car going west on Warren already this year and no time should be lost in preventing another accident. CHESTER E. GOUVEIA.

FEDERAL MONEY.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—I read that congress has raised the annual appropriation for federal road aid from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000. I suppose most of this money is raised from the taxpayers in the wealthy states like Illinois and that the money is spent where it will do the Republicans the most good.

I'd like to see some aggressive organization, like THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, make Washington give an accounting of these expenditiures. I'd suggest that you make the government spend all of this money on transcontinental superhighways instead of scattering it in gravel in front of politicians' farms.

JOHN JACOB.

GREAT OPEN SPACES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 26.—All winter THE TRIBUNE has been giving Florida a lot of free advertising. Why hasn't anything been done for California and other western tourist states? You haven't given the great open spaces a fair play.

Every year at about this time my wife and I flush the anti-freeze from the radiator of the old bus and join the parade to the land of broad horizons. Away from crowded city streets, surrounded with beautiful scenery and with lots of fresh air to breathe, we find a new lease on life.

There is nothing grand or spectacular in the scenery on the trip to Florida. What has the journey south that will compare with Yellowstone National park or the Grand Cañon?

If I were a writer, I'd like to tell my fellow automobile owners of the midwest how they can get the greatest possible return on their investment in a car—by driving west. J. A. F.

YEARNS FOR SPRING.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—What is the best route to spring weather? I've driven around the dirty streets of Chicago during a long winter and I'm anxious to get on to some clean and smooth pavement that will carry me over hills that are turning green. How far south would I have to drive to forget winter for a couple of days? R. N. T.

WANTS RADIALS WIDENED.

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 25.—I was happy to read Gov. Emmerson's recent declaration at a meeting in Urbana that he appreciates the necessity for widening the radial highways in the Chicago area. I hope he included in this picture the congested Illinois route 4, between Chicago and Joliet.

A traffic count on route 4 might show that there are a few other highways as important to Chicago. However, a traffic count would give the entire picture. A more thorough investigation by the state highway department would show that Illinois route 4 carries a heavy load of trucks as well as passenger cars. It takes a four lane pavement to accommodate this type of traffic. Putting fast passenger cars and slow trucks on the same traffic lane is dangerous as well as inefficient and unsatisfactory. M. M.

MICHIGAN BEAUTIFICATION.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 25.—I'm glad to see that THE TRIBUNE appreciates what the Michigan highway department is doing to landscape the roads of this state. The Illinois highways likewise could be improved to increase the pleasures of motoring. ROBERT BEAUMONT.

THE I. C.'S REPORT.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—I noticed in THE TRIBUNE in the automobile section a letter from N. A. McKinnon telling of his experience on the evening of Dec. 28 at 71st street.

I now wish to advise you that our operating department have made a careful investigation of this particular case, and we find the facts to be as follows:

Flagman Gandino, who was on duty at the 71st and Jeffery crossing at the time Mr. McKinnon was caught between the gates, entered the service Feb. 11, 1926. As Mr. McKinnon approached the crossing from the south, gates were being lowered account train approaching from both directions. The north gates lowered a little more rapidly than the south gates, which permitted him to pass under the south gates without difficulty. However, by the time he reached the opposite side of the tracks, the north gates were completely down and he could not proceed until the crossing flagman raised them. Although Mr. McKinnon was not traveling at a very high speed, it is apparent he was of the opinion that he could get across before the gates were down.

Flagman Gandino and the police officer (Mr. Marshall), who witnessed this incident, report the facts in line with the above. Mr. McKinnon states he was between the gates several minutes, which apparently is erroneous, for had be been on the crossing this length of time his automobile would have been struck by one of the two suburban trains. Both the crossing flagman and police officer state Mr. McKinnon was blocked between the gates seconds rather than minutes, and the police officer states that he blames the driver of the automobile for the predicament he got into. F. L. THOMPSON,

Vice President Illinois Central Railroad.

LAKE VILLA NOT GUILTY.

Lake Villa, Ill., Feb. 25.—We notice in your Voice of Traffic column that one Mr. Herman H. Mess seems to insinuate that Lake Villa, Ill., has a speed trap, which is wrong.

I, as president of the board of trustees of the village of Lake Villa, wish to state to the gentleman who made the complaint and the public at large that Lake Villa has not employed a traffic policeman for three years and is not responsible for any arrests made for violations of the motor vehicle law.

Any arrests or violations by motor traffic policemen on our highways are made either by state of Illinois patrolmen or Lake county patrolmen, and should not be held against Lake Villa.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Will you please furnish me with plans for an auto trailer for camping or tell me where I can get such information? L. E. MASON.

MANY AUTOS IN PENNSYLVANIA NEED REPAIRING

Of 1,888,000 Pennsylvania motor vehicles examined in a recent inspection campaign, 1,332,000 were found to be in need of repair, states the Pennsylvania motor vehicles commission, as reported by the Automobile Club of Illinois. Almost 56 per cent of the machines inspected required lamp adjustment, while an additional 10 per cent needed entire lamp replacement. Inspectors reported they adjusted brakes on 23 per cent of the cars and trucks examined.

MASSACHUSETTS TO CONTROL ALL TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Massachusetts, which put itself in the motor spotlight with its compulsory insurance law in 1926, now pioneers in another field of automobile legislation.

Massachusetts' second pioneering venture is in the realm of controlling all traffic light installations throughout the state—in the cities and in the small towns, too.

Under the law, no municipality can erect a traffic light without proving beyond a doubt that it is needed. After this has been accomplished, it must erect the type of light the state specifies, must time it according to a state wide schedule, must use the same colors used elswhere and conform in every respect to a set of rules carefully laid down.

Tourists who have snarled at the number and variety of traffic lights encountered on their trip will see much cause for gratification in the Bay state venture. Other states are watching it.

North Carolina Has 130 Deaf But Safe Drivers

Can a deaf man safely operate an automobile? Data compiled by the bureau of labor for the deaf in North Carolina proves that he certainly can. The study shows that, while there are 130 cars operated in that state by persons who cannot hear, not an accident has occurred among them in two years.

RAILROADS TEACH LESSON IN AUTO ROAD BUILDING

Roadbeds Built for High Speed Traffic.

The railroads of today offer an object lesson for tomorrow's pavement construction and vehicular traffic regulation.

The iron horse is more than twice as old as the horseless buggy. The earliest roadbeds for trains in America were built in 1830 and a national system spread a steel web over the nation during President Grant's administration.

The automobile, on the other hand, may be considered a twentieth century product, although invented in the last decades of the nineteenth. Pavements are even younger. Men with gray hair can remember when a good roads campaign consisted of agitation to throw logs or rocks in the right of way where the mud was knee deep. Young men can remember when a gravel surface made a first class highway.

Motor Roads Lag.

Great improvements have been made in engines and coaches, both for trains and automobiles. The same is true of highways and railways. A conspicuous difference, however, is that railroads have developed facilities for efficient utility of their rolling stock whereas the improvement of vehicular road lags lamentably behind the 1930 motor car.

The engineer on the Twentieth Century Limited can pull his throttle wide open for hundreds of miles at seventy miles an hour. A good automobile is mechanically able to sustain this speed, but neither highways nor streets are built for such driving.

There are two outstanding facts that can be advanced in explanation of this difference between railroad and automobile development. The most obvious is the comparative youth of hard surface paving.

Demand for Refinements.

Gravel was such a big improvement over dirt roads that for a long time it satisfied the public, happy to be able to travel in wet as well as dry weather. Asphalt, brick, and concrete are such a big improvement over gravel that much of the public is still inclined to overlook a waving surface, sharp turns, grades, crossings, and so forth.

However, in the last few years there has been a growing demand for refinements. It will not be long before pavements must be built so that the automobile buyer can get everything out of his car that he is now paying for. Sixty miles an hour will be the common driving speed on through routes both in the cities and in the country. Some prominent students of the subject say a hundred miles an hour will be a common driving speed in 1950.

Another difference between railway and highway development lies in the fact that automobiles are manufactured by private capital and roads are built by political bodies whereas closely allied private interests build, operate and maintain railroads. The New York Central, for example, does not try to run seventy miles an hour equipment over forty-five mile an hour rails.

Not all of the country's tracks are seventy mile an hour lines. There are approximately 175,000 miles of first class track in the United States, 125,000 miles of siding, and about 75,000 miles of secondary, feeder or branch lines serving industries or communities off the main lines.

Each Mile Has Own Use.

Curves, grades, roadbeds and rails are used on the secondary and on the sidetracks that would not be tolerated on the main lines. Each mile of road bed is built with specifications to perform its special service.

In highway construction, public officials are under pressure to spread expenditures so as to please the greatest number of constituents. Class A pavements are laid on class B routes, leaving inadequate funds for the proper improvement of class A routes.

In cities and towns, motorists are permitted to use main lines as sidetracks, parking cars on through routes. The Twentieth Century could not step along at seventy miles an hour if switching was permitted on the main tracks in every municipality.

The highway and street systems of the near future must become more specialized, like the railroads. Broad highways and boulevards with continuous grade separation and with minimum speed limitations are needed for express passenger travel. Branch lines, such as carline streets and local traffic roads, can serve their purpose with less refinements. Residential side streets can become vehicular sidetracks for switching and parking.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chester G. Abbott, general sales manager of Hudson, advises that again this year the company is staging a national Essex Challenger week, beginning today. Every dealer throughout the country will have a special display of the new Hudson-Essex models.

Hill climbing and endurance tests will be held. In Chicago, there will be a parade on the north side tomorrow, on the west side on Wednesday, and on the south side on Friday.

Nash Motors yesterday announced production of a handsome new twin ignition eight phaeton to augment its straight eight line of "400" models. The new open car, built on a 133 inch wheelbase and finished in a striking color scheme of Bonaventure green with the high waisted molding in Dundee gray set off by a delicate yellow stripe, is considered a leader in the increasingly popular open car field.

Chevrolet dealers throughout the country yesterday began an intensive ten day campaign to dispose of used cars. Advertising during this period will be devoted to the used car stocks rather than the new machines. Salesmen will concentrate on the used cars rather than the new automobiles.

Reo last week announced three new lines of passenger cars in five body styles. Wheel bases are 116, 124, and 120 inches. All are in the six cylinder field.

Important changes are announced in the Ford model A one and one-half ton truck, including a new four speed transmission, larger front axle, larger brakes, and additional chassis strength. Dual rear wheels are optional and interchangeable.

Ways of getting more value out of their automobiles will be suggested to car owners in a nation-wide preventive maintenance campaign which has just been voted to start in May by the board of directors of the Motor and Equipment association, according to J. M. McComb, president of that organization.

MUCH ALARM AS LONDON VIEWS TRAFFIC RECORD

"London has the worst record of traffic fatalities of any of the world's capitals, according to an assertion made at the ministry of transport conference for the reduction of street accidents held recently.

"We cannot flatter ourselves unduly by comparing the death toll of our pedestrians with America's," said C. Foley, representing the Pedestrians' association. "There are more people killed in London streets than in the streets of New York. And Londoners are being killed off three times as fast as Parisians."

Several movements are under way to better traffic conditions in England at the present time.

AUTO HIGHWAYS DAMAGED BY SPRING THAWS

Two transcontinental highways serving Chicago were damaged last year by frost melting in the roadbeds. United States route 30, the Lincoln highway, developed a soft section five miles east of the Indiana-Ohio line, the asphalt surface breaking badly due to the floating subsoil. The Indiana highway department had to employ teams to pull cars from a soft three mile stretch of gravel on United States route 41 between Morocco and Kentland, Ind. Many gravel roads in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin were also in an unsatisfactory condition due to the thaw, according to the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club.

MOTORISTS USE OCEAN OF GAS

American motorists, it is estimated, used 14,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline in 1929—a lake five miles wide and four miles deep.

CONGRESS GETS PLANE ACCIDENT PUBLICITY BILL

Give Public Facts in All Crashes, Bingham Says

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, head of the National Aeronautical association, has introduced a bill in congress that would make it possible to bring all the details of aircraft crashes into the spotlight of publicity. The bill requires the secretary of commerce to make public his findings concerning the probable causes of civil airplane accidents resulting in serious or fatal injury.

In the past the department of commerce has refused to make its findings public. Inspectors attached to the aeronautics branch and stationed at various air centers throughout the country have investigated all major crashes in their district, but the results of these inquiries have been withheld by the department.

Wreckage Hurriedly Removed.

Worse than their silence has been the effort on the part of some inspectors deliberately to place obstacles in the way of others endeavoring to get at the causes of air accidents. In two recent major crashes the federal inspectors have hurriedly ordered the removal of the wreckage of planes, making it impossible for local authorities to make a thorough investigation.

In the crash of the passenger plane of the Central Air lines at Kansas City a month ago five people were killed. Richard H. Lees Jr., the local department of commerce inspector who authorized the removal of the wreckage before the coroner arrived, gave this explanation of his act:

"We are trying to sell aviation to the public and the wreckage of a plane lying around for people to stare at has a bad effect."

This is typical of the attitude of the government underlings who have only succeeded in deepening the mystery which surrounds the airplane accidents.

Causes Never Revealed.

Twice every year the finding of the department inspectors are placed in the hands of the accident board of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce. Here they are classified. But names are never mentioned and the causes of specific accidents are never revealed.

The accident report on civil aviation for the first six months of 1929, only recently made public, shows that 59.04 per cent of the accidents were laid to personnel. This bore out the findings of the army air corps and navy bureau of aeronautics in the military field. Army pilots in 1928 were held responsible for 63 per cent of fatal accidents, while navy flyers for the 1928 fiscal year were the cause of 74.8 per cent of fatal crashes.

According to Maj. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, there was an increase in the number of miles flown for each accident in civil aeronautics. In the six months period for all classes of civil flying there was one fatal accident for every 442,430 miles flown.

56,000,000 Miles Flown.

For the late period in 1928 there was one fatal accident for each 169,944 miles flown. The report stated that accidents decreased in percentage in spite of the fact that a total of 56,261,338 miles was flown by civil aircraft, more than three times as much as during the first six months of 1928.

In scheduled air transport operations in which aircraft carried passengers, mail or express in service over regularly established routes there was one fatal accident for 1,022,371 miles flown. In 1928 896,822 miles were flown for each fatal accident.

In contrast to the number of accidents laid to the human element, the second largest item was power plant failures, causing 18.08 per cent of accidents. Airplane structural failures contributed 8.80 per cent and miscellaneous, including weather and darkness, 8.85 per cent.

Can Call Witnesses.

In order to get at the specific causes of individual accidents Senator Bingham's bill grants the secretary of commerce full authority to summon witnesses and take testimony in investigating the causes of any accident in civil aviation. If the accident be a minor one he may make a public statement of his findings "if he deems it to be to the public interest." If the accident results in a serious or fatal injury he is requested to make his findings public.

It is stipulated that the secretary's report shall not be used as evidence in any subsequent suit.

In another bill providing the appropriations for the independent offices of government, recently reported to the house, is an item of $1,321,000 to be expended during the next fiscal year under the direction of the national advisory committee on aeronautics.

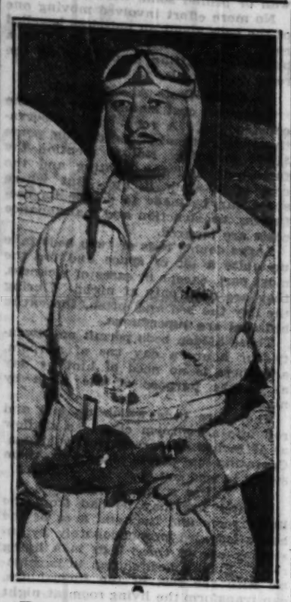
Plan Study of Spinning.

In its report to congress it is pointed out that the committee is now devoting particular attention to means for preventing tail spins, nose dives and other similar hazards which are attributable in a large measure to faulty construction.

The committee reported that it has has made an accurate study of all accidents and of these it finds about 50 per cent are due to negligence, disobedience of orders, errors in judgment and poor technique of the pilots. Other accidents, the committee finds, are due to two other causes—forced or bad landings and to spinning.

In an effort to overcome the latter the committee, with models and real planes, is conducting a series of experiments in variations of designs which the committee believes should materially reduce the tendency of airplanes to spin when the plane stalls.

PILOTS' CHIEF



Harry Huking, veteran flyer with 6,000 flying hours to his credit, is the new president of the Pilots' Association of America, which has 700 members. Huking flies the Boeing Night Transcontinental between Oakland and Reno. In seven years of flying he never had a major accident.

QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q.—Is there any difference between a "commercial license" and a "limited commercial license"? What privileges is a holder of a commercial license entitled to? What class of license is required for an air mail pilot?—J. W. Chicago.

A.—All licensed pilots hold either a "commercial license" or a "private license." A commercial license enables a pilot to operate an airplane used in commercial transportation. If he holds a limited commercial license he can carry cargo anywhere but can operate with passengers only within an area near the base specified in his license. Recent rulings also allow a limited commercial pilot to act as copilot on a dual controlled transport plane when there is a transport pilot in charge. Under the air commerce regulations, a limited commercial pilot can carry mail, but mail operators usually require a man with more experience. The privileges of a commercial pilot depend, however, on what type of commercial license he holds; whether he holds a transport license, a limited commercial license, or an industrial license.

Q.—Where can I get information and pictures that will assist me in building a model of Col. Lindbergh's new Lockheed Sirius low wing monoplane?—J. A. W., Riverside, Ill.

A.—You may find specifications and drawings of this ship in a current issue of some aviation magazine, or you might write the Lockheed Aircraft company, Los Angeles, Cal.

Q.—Will you please recommend to me a book in which I may find the records of the world war aces?—W. H. W., Highland Park, Ill.

A.—A list of American aces with a number of accredited victories may be found in the "Aircraft Directory, 1926." You may find this in one of the Chicago public libraries, or it might be purchased from the McGraw-Hill Publishing company. This firm bought out the Aviation Publishing company, printers of the directory.

Q.—Does being left handed handicap one in becoming a good pilot or stunt flyer?—W. C. B., Washington, Iowa.

A.—It makes no difference. Many experienced flyers can fly equally well with either the right or left hand on the stick or wheel. On most of the larger dual control ships such as the Ford, Sikorsky, Travelair and Stinson, the controls are so arranged that it is more convenient for the chief pilot, who sits on the left, to use his left hand.

Q.—Will there be an airplane show in Chicago this winter? If so, please state when it will be held, as I would like to attend.—F. A. R., Mount Carroll, Ill.

A.—There will be no aviation show in Chicago in 1930. The largest shows will be the International Aircraft exposition at St. Louis, which just closed and the All-American Aircraft show, April 5 to 13 at Detroit. The St. Louis show was classed as a class A show by the aeronautical chamber of commerce. The Detroit show is a class B show.

Q.—Can you put a 300 Whirlwind in a Waco? About how fast will it go? Who owns the Northern Light?—E. N., Barrington, Ill.

A.—Write to John Livingston, Waco agent at Aurora, Ill., for this information. The Public Service Corporation of Northern Illinois owns the Northern Light.

LIGHTED AIRWAY FOR CHICAGO TO ATLANTA MAIL

Completion of the lighting installation on the Atlanta-Chattanooga section of the Atlanta-Chicago Airway early in March will add another link to the growing chain of airways, according to Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics. The lighting of this airway is a major project, both from the engineering standpoint and from the standpoint of its resultant effect on the air transport system of the United States.

Although the Atlanta-Chicago air mail line has been in operation for more than a year it has not rendered maximum service, due to the necessity of flying on a daylight schedule. Thus the business mail of Chicago and vicinity, in order to be carried by air had to wait overnight before delivery or forwarding on connecting air mail routes—requiring time equivalent to that of the San Francisco to New York service, for a distance of but 652 miles—although mail for the southeast accumulating in Chicago overnight was expedited appreciably.

The New Schedule.

The new schedule will call for departure from Chicago at 9:30 p. m. with arrival in Atlanta at 6 a. m. the next day. Stops will be made at Terre Haute, Ind., Evansville, Ind., Nashville, Tenn., and Chattanooga, Tenn. At Atlanta direct connection will be made for Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, Birmingham, Mobile, and New Orleans. A ship leaving St. Louis at about 10:30 p. m. will connect with the southbound ship from Chicago to Evansville. Northbound, airplanes will leave Atlanta at 10 p. m., after arrival of ships from Miami and New Orleans, reaching St. Louis at 5 a. m. and Chicago at 6 a. m., in time to connect with westbound Transcontinental airplanes carrying mail to all Pacific coast points in approximately 36 hours from Atlanta—the same as from New York.

Survey of this airway was commenced in the early fall of 1928, and was carried on throughout the winter of 1928-29 and the spring of 1929 in the face of obstacles imposed by difficult terrain, impassable roads, adverse weather conditions and changing personnel. On a recent inspection trip over the southern half of this airway, one of the Airways division engineers found it necessary to travel 112 miles to get by automobile from one beacon site to the next—a distance of but ten miles as the airplanes flies.

Many Difficulties Encountered.

Early in the survey it was found that the straight-line course was impracticable and that landing fields would have to be built—not found. Straight in the direct line of flight from Atlanta to Chattanooga, and about 25 miles from the former, loomed Kenesaw mountain—a noted landmark, but an unpleasant neighbor for a pilot speeding with mail through darkness and low visibility. Beyond Kenesaw mountain, a stretch of some 50 miles offered no particular problems. But in the vicinity of Calhoun, Ga., the air line course crossed a 40 mile stretch of rugged, wooded, mountain ridges offering no chance for a successful forced landing, day or night. For this reason, the airway detours slightly to the north, to Dalton, and crosses these ridges through the gaps cut by Chickamauga creek.

The intermediate fields in this section were located at Acworth, close by Kenesaw mountain, Adairsville, located in the middle of the valley, and Dalton, at the edge of the mountains. The air line course from Chattanooga to Nashville passes directly over Signal mountain, of civil war fame, and thence over a high, heavily wooded divide for two-thirds of the 113 miles of distance, which offers no landing places, roads, or other facilities for airway maintenance. Consequently, the airway bears westward, between Signal mountain and Lookout mountain, cutting across the bends of the Tennessee river to Jasper, Tenn., where the first intermediate field is located; thence in a straight line to Murfreesboro and Nashville.

The radio installations necessary to give service on this airway have been worked out and are included in the radio construction program of the current fiscal year. Broadcasting of hourly weather reports will be accomplished by radio communication stations at Atlanta, Nashville, St. Louis, Indianapolis, and Chicago. The Atlanta, St. Louis, and Chicago stations are now in operation and will furnish fairly adequate service at the present time.

ICE WARNING DEVICES.

Ice warning instruments have been installed on the passenger planes of Stout Air lines operating between Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago to warn the pilots when the temperature drops to the danger point when ice is likely to form on the wings.

NEW SOURCES OF SATISFACTION

In addition to the smarter style and greater beauty which result from refinements in Oldsmobile body lines, the interiors reveal new elements of richness and new factors of luxury.

Chief among these are added roominess for rear seat passengers, finer long-wearing upholsteries, and deeper, more comfortable seat cushions.

In addition, there is a new recessed, indirectly-lighted instrument panel. Steering is even more responsive than heretofore. And the windshield is tilted at an angle to eliminate headlight glare and annoying light reflections.

These improvements add much to Oldsmobile beauty, comfort, and luxury. Yet they do not radically change its characteristic appearance. Important engineering advancements are also present in the famous Oldsmobile chassis. They include improved, fully-enclosed four-wheel brakes and improved carburetion. These refinements definitely add to Oldsmobile's value without changing those time-tested fundamentals of design which have proved their dependability through the trials of months and miles.

Today's Oldsmobile is better than ever—smarter than ever. Accept our invitation to see this car and to drive it, in order that you may judge it by your own standards of automobile value.

NEARLY 80% OF WORLD'S BIGGEST BUILDING RENTED

Merchandise Mart Breaks Leasing Records.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago's great Merchandise Mart, now so near completion that folks who merely thought of it as "the world's largest building" without having a very tangible idea of what that really meant, now can get a thrill of local pride when they glimpse its immensity. Yesterday it was officially announced that the huge structure is breaking another record, that of high speed renting of space. It was stated that nearly 80 per cent of its 4,000,000 square feet of floor space has now been leased.

CLAUDE A. WELLES
[Bachrach Photo.]

Renting that much space in a normal sized building several weeks before it actually was completed and ready for occupancy would be something to tell the world about. In fact, there are some modern buildings in American cities which aren't anywhere near that percentage occupied though they have been completed a year or so.

It is confidently predicted that the big Merchandise Mart will not only be entirely rented by the time the building is completed but it may boast that much longed for thing—a waiting list.

More than 600 Firms.

Claude A. Welles, general manager, stated yesterday that more than 600 manufacturers of merchandise are represented in the present list of tenants. He also stated that interior work will be far enough along by the middle of April to permit many of these firms to move into the new building.

The Merchandise Mart will have a formal, official dedicatory celebration beginning May 1 and continuing until May 10.

"The Mart will be the Mecca for merchants, economists, and business leaders of the world during the gala week," said Mr. Welles. "The dedicatory celebration will cover a wide range of activity and men high in the business, civic and political life of the country are expected to be among the guests of honor. Plans are rapidly being formulated and will be ready for public announcement within a few weeks."

Bank to Open May 1.

It is expected that the bank, many of the retail shops catering to tenants and perhaps the restaurant on the first floor, to be the largest in the world, will be ready for customers on May 1.

Work is being rushed on the quarters of the National Broadcasting company, which is to have what it claimed will be the largest studio of its kind in the world on the roof of the mart.

Marshall Field & Co. will occupy approximately one-quarter of the total floor space of the Mart with its wholesale and manufacturing headquarters divisions.

The big task of moving the wholesale business of Marshall Field & Co., from the old quarters at Adams and Wells, where it has been for many years, to the new quarters in the Mart will begin about April 1, it is expected. The old granite structure, designed by Richardson of Boston, is now on the market.

The large tower in the center of the structure, overlooking the river, which is to house a sumptuous Merchants' club quarters, is practically complete.

Recognize Chicago as Great Market.

"The list of tenants of the Mart is widely representative of many sections of the United States," said Mr. Welles. "One of the most significant facts revealed by the list is the number of eastern manufacturers who have taken space, signifying their recognition of Chicago as the great central market and of its increasing importance as a market center as compared with New York. Many buyers who heretofore have made seasonal buying trips to New York will be able to buy in the Chicago market, following the Mart's opening.

"The Merchandise Mart embodies the modern idea of a concentrated market; of bringing the buyer to market instead of attempting by means of sample cases, traveling salesmen, and trunks to inadequately take the market to the merchant."

Miles of Window Display.

Most of the impressive features of the Merchandise Mart have been told about many times, but some of them are worth repeating. For instance, the building will have 6½ miles of inside window display. It is the world's largest single development of air rights, the building being constructed above the tracks of the Chicago and North Western railway. The building rests on 458 caissons sunk to bed rock.

In addition to having a bank and restaurant, the Mart will have a branch postoffice, drug store, telegraph offices, convention halls, and other convenience shops.

Displays and facilities will be scientifically arranged by floors, sections, and departments, to save the buyers' time and energy. The plan is that the buyer may enter the Mart in the morning, attend to all of his business and personal affairs, and do all of his buying without leaving the shelter of the one roof.

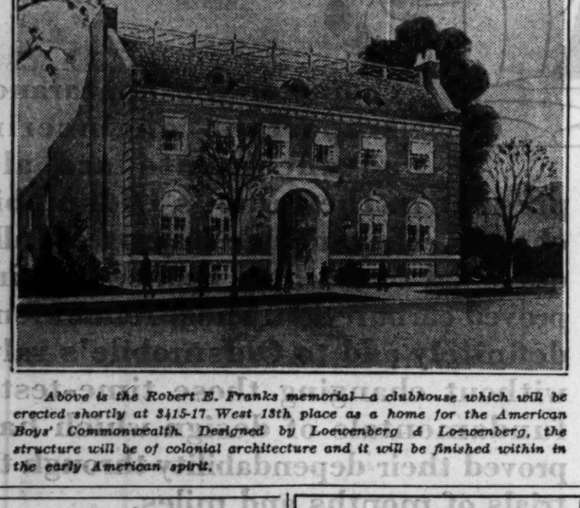
CITY'S BIGGEST CINEMA CENTER

Hooper & Janusch are the architects of the above Film Exchange to be erected by William T. Hooper at the northwest corner of Wabash and 13th. John F. Wallace will have the renting of the property. S. Chester Danforth made this picture.

ADDITION TO WEST SIDE

Above is a building being erected at the northeast corner of Madison street and Crawford avenue for the Walgreen company. When completed, prior to Oct. 1, it will contain another of the firm's drug stores. A. Epstein designed the structure which, it is stated, will cost about $350,000. William H. P. Owen of Mr. Epstein's office made the rendering.

ROBERT FRANKS MEMORIAL



Above is the Robert E. Franks memorial—a clubhouse which will be erected shortly at 3415-17 West 13th place as a home for the American Boys' Commonwealth. Designed by Loewenberg & Loewenberg, the structure will be of colonial architecture and it will be finished within in the early American spirit.

WESTCHESTER 'L' BEING EXTENDED TO 22D STREET

Realty Activity Causes a Mile to Be Added.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Real state activity west of the city is responsible for the start of work on a mile extension to the Westchester division of the Rapid Transit lines. The terminal of the branch is now located at Roosevelt road and the new terminal will be located at Twenty-second street and Mannheim road, with a station midway at Canterbury street (16th street).

The extension will run through the heart of Westchester, now served by L trains operating on a twelve minute schedule.

The decision to start now on the extension resulted from the rapid development of Westchester during 1929 and from plans for a major building operation during 1930 which includes business blocks, residences and two and three flat buildings. This program will involve an expenditure of $2,000,000, according to the offices of George F. Nixon & Co., who have been actively interested in the district.

Building permits issued during 1929 had a total valuation of approximately $1,00,000, while for the last eighteen months the total approximated $1,750,000. According to the Nixon offices permits issued to date provide for the construction of more than 107 buildings, of which ninety per cent have been completed.

In laying out the town plan for Westchester, provision has been made for public improvements sufficient to accommodate an eventual city of 250,000 persons. It is stated by the Nixon interests that the present section—the scene of the foregoing building activity—will be able to accommodate 90,000 people.

Passes Many Cities.

Building permits for the town during last December totaled $239,500—a volume exceeding the total for such cities as Toledo, O.; Memphis, Tenn.; Highland Park, Mich.; Paterson, N. J.; Albany, N. Y., etc.

A good part of the building development is in the hands of the Metropolitan District Realty trust, which is owned, through capital stock holders, by the leading public utilities companies in the Chicago district. It will be recalled that the trust company sometime ago announced plans for a building program to carry through several years involving the expenditure of several million dollars.

CLUB FOR JEWISH BOYS TO RISE ON WEST 13TH PLACE

Plans have been virtually completed for the Robert E. Franks Memorial of the American Boys' Commonwealth — a clubhouse for Jewish youngsters which is to be erected at 3415-17 West 13th place. Funds for the clubhouse are obtained from the estate of the late Jacob M. Franks who left $100,000 to provide a memorial to his son.

The American Boys' commonwealth is sponsored by the Young Men's Jewish charities, an organization which has been in operation for twenty-three years.

Loewenberg & Loewenberg, architects, designed the new club which is to be two stories high at the front and one story at the rear.

Besides the American Boys' commonwealth, the Young Men's Jewish charities sponsors Camp Wooster at Round lake, Illinois, where boys from congested districts are sent during the summer for country outings. Improvements at Camp Woosters are to be financed with a part of the Robert Franks Memorial fund.

Joseph L. Block is president of the charity organization which has 3,500 members. A drive is now under way to add 3,000 new members to the rolls for the purpose of increasing the organization's activities.

Work on the memorial clubhouse is to start in two or three weeks and it's to be completed next fall.

Feminine Realty Firm Closes Its First Sale

The Real Estate service—an organization composed of four young ladies told about in this department on Feb. 2—reports its first sale. In this transaction G. B. Weise bought from Lachlan W. Maclean, son of the late Senator William H. Maclean, the residence at 1112 Tower road, Winnetka. The feature of the house is a thirty foot, two story living room. Christine Baumann negotiated the deal.

Film Exchange Is Planned for South Wabash

South Wabash avenue's "film row" is to have what is claimed will be its most imposing structure, a six story building, to be erected at the northwest corner of 13th street. It will be known as "The Film Exchange" and will house most of the leading producing companies' Chicago offices and distributing stations. The names of these tenants, outstanding ones in the film world, will be made public shortly by John F. Wallace, who will have the exclusive renting of the property.

The site for the new film exchange was purchased from the Corwith estate by William T. Hooper, member of the architectural firm of Hooper & Janusch, who have designed the building. It will front 100 feet on Wabash and 146 feet on 13th street and will have five full size stories and a setback floor above.

The building and land will represent a reported total investment of $960,000. The structure will be of unusually heavy concrete construction, with special fireproof vaults for films. Work will start at once. Mr. Wallace states that practically all of the space has been leased for ten years. Harold J. Eschbach and Duerson Knight were brokers. L. P. Broehl and Gardner & Carton were attorneys.

ADDING SOME FUEL TO ARGUMENTS OVER 'LARGEST BUILDINGS'

It seems the West Side has been overlooking a good bet in arguments over which is the largest building in the world. In most big building lists, the Furniture Mart has been given the palm in point of floor area with its 1,930,000 square feet of rentable floor space. And now it appears that Sears, Roebuck & Co. have been hiding a great big light under the proverbial bushel with their huge establishment centering about Arthington and Homan.

John H. Mullen, personnel manager for the firm's Chicago store, states that the merchandise building of the mail order house alone has 2,645,703 square feet. An addition to this structure, erected years ago, called the grocery section, has 314,702 feet. Inasmuch as the two are really one structure, with doors and aisles conecting, the combined floor area of 2,960,410 feet should be given.

In all Sear Roebuck buildings in the immediate vicinity have 4,118,600 square feet of floor space. In addition to the merchandise-grocery building, the space is divided as follows: box factory, 15,174 square feet; power house, 67,371 square feet; administration building, 294,366 square feet; printing building, 241,558 square feet; wall paper mill, 345,116 square feet; manufacturing building, 126,257 square feet; sevice building, 8,114 square feet; garages, 37,654 square feet; carpenter shop, 18,040 square feet; clubhouse, 2,790 square feet and fire engine house, 750 square feet.

Of course for a single building the gigantic Merchandise Mart nearing completion on the site of the former North Western passenger station at Wells and the river tops everything we know about with its approximately 4,000,000 square feet of floor space. The Sears Roebuck buildings were designed by George C. Nimmons of the architectural firm of Nimmons, Carr & Wright with Martin C. Schwab, consulting engineer.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

CONCEALED BEDS ENABLE SAVINGS ON HOUSE COSTS

(Next week will appear an article on the "Winter Heating Plant" which cools the house in summer.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

Many of us would doubtless start building this spring if we only had "a little more money." Perhaps if we could see a way to get along with just one bedroom less we could cut down costs to fit our financial resources and so realize our ambitions of having homes of our own.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

Well, there is one practical way of solving the problem of "one room less," that is to include in our home plans a bed installation in a closet in one of the rooms, or in some shallow recess especially appropriate for the placing of a bed.

It is surprising, indeed, unless we know all about what these newer types of disappearing beds will do, to learn how efficient and satisfactory they really are.

Veritable secrets in the home they are, these hidden beds which conceal themselves behind a closed closet door or the panels of a spacious living room wall or behind some wide bookcase.

No more effort involved moving one of the beds about on noiseless bevelled rollers than is involved in pushing a button and letting machinery do the rest.

Room Costs About $1,000.

Cubic feet cost money today in home construction. A room can conservatively be estimated as costing some $1,000 to build. Not to mention the furnishing and the lighting and the cost of keeping it up. But where space can be made to double its usefulness, construction and maintenance costs are lowered.

Large double beds or twin beds take up quite a bit of space and for the most part, except in cases of sickness, they are used only at night. During the day the bed and, often, the entire bedroom are superfluous.

These hidden beds permit one twenty-four hours a day use of a room, and there is no need of hint by day as to the purpose of the room by night.

There are beds which up end and roll into a bedroom closet as shallow as 18 inches and are perfectly hidden. Operating on pivots, many of them swing in and out.

Use a Sun Room.

Greater use may be had from the living room and the total area of the house lessened proportionately by installing one of these beds in a living room. Such a bed, chosen to harmonize with the rest of the furnishings, can transform the living room at night into a spacious guest chamber. In the daytime, their place of concealment is hidden completely. No doubt, either, that one can get such a bed to harmonize with almost any decorating scheme as they appear in a wide range of design and lovely finishes. Again a sun room and sleeping porch may combine as one with a hidden bed installed for sleeping purposes at night.

When one is building a new house the architect provides for the concealed bed arrangements. When one is planning on a little remodeling or additions to the house comforts, manufacturers of these beds are ready with blue prints and helpful advice on which the owner can depend.

These disappearing beds can be had in various sizes, single, double, or twin types. They also come in different forms.

If one has no deep closet or cannot see his way clear to build one, there are recessed beds which take a scant 18 inches depth. Double doors can conceal them. When open, these doors permit the bed to roll out clear of the recess.

Beds there are, too, which have no housing accommodation of their own, but which can easily be called into service anywhere they are needed. Portieres can conceal their presence. They may easily be moved from room to room and provide for the occasional guest.

But whether they fasten to a door, slide independently into a closet, or fit into a recess or roll about entirely independent of their moorings, great accommodation is provided by their presence, and comfort is assured by good quality springs of various kinds and excellent mattresses with nonslip clamps.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

FARMER FORCED BY COMPETITION TO WORK HARDER

Every year of advancement in the mechanization of agriculture sees increased production of the nation's foodstuffs with fewer hours of hired labor required.

Reduction in cost per bushel has enabled the enterprising producer to furnish keen competition which in turn has driven the former one crop farmer from his life of leisure during many months of the year to one of two alternatives: out of farming, or into other operations to make his farm profitable.

In the past four years, according to agricultural economists in the United States department of agriculture, farm production has averaged about 16 per cent more than in 1919-1922. This is chiefly due to better farming, they say. The farmer is rapidly ridding himself of an inefficient and costly labor problem wherever possible. He is finding it necessary to rearrange his fields and his seasonal operations just as industry has been doing in factory management.

"The farmer knows more about his soils, plants, and animals today than ever before," says the department's report. "He is in a better position to combat pests and apply his labor more efficiently so as to secure larger returns per unit of labor or capital employed. Expenditures for fertilizer in 1924 were more than double those for 1909. The farmer is also feeding his livestock better, as indicated by an increase in feed purchases on the average of 70 per cent during the same period."

LONDON MARTS HAIL REVIVAL OF N. Y. SUPPORT

Interest Centered in Favorites.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright, 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 1.—The only exceptional features in an atmosphere of prevailing gloom around the stock markets this week have been Wall street's interest in international favorites and renewed attention to British government securities.

The support of Wall street imparted a welcome display of strength to trans-Atlantic securities, bringing bright periods to the street market after the close of the house and making Shorter's Court more animated than in many weeks past. Interest was chiefly centered in International Nickel, Radio corporation, and Columbia Gramaphone, with renewed rumors that another nickel pool was formed in New York.

Outside of these features the general interest was negligible with the buying public again conspicuous by their absence and further liquidation of even small parcels of shares bringing no alternative but for the dealers to mark down their quotations, many of which are now more or less nominal. Professionals, under the circumstances, prefer to continue to stand from under, realizing that the present clouds of depression are likely to last until the budget is out of the way in view of the uncertain political outlook.

Interpret Events.

The investing public's interpretation of the events of the last twelve months is that confidence in the established order of joint stock companies has been destroyed to the point where the choice of a speculative investor in industrial common stocks has become very limited, therefore the general investor also prefers to wait until the clouds roll by.

While this speculative interest is more or less dormant, however, there are still large funds available for the general investment business, and the surprise announcement of the government's new 4½ per cent conversion loan so soon after the recent 5 per cent conversion offer suggests that the opportunity is being taken to make issues of this nature before the influence of a sustained period of cheap money leads to the diversion of available funds to other markets.

There is a strong revival of hope regarding the bank rate prospects, with talk that the bank rate may reach as low as three and one-half per cent before the end of the summer, bringing fresh support of a strong character to British government stocks, with the probability that most high class investment securities will not be affected. The present position of foreign exchanges, notably American and German, are resulting in a hardening of discount quotations, but the market here is powerless in its present abnormal circumstances to advance the rates. The week has seen a renewed weakness of sterling.

Movement Is Reversed.

Operations of the French account brought sharp movements of the London rate of exchange on France and America. Early in the week the former declined rather rapidly, America moving in favor of sterling, but towards the close of the week the movement was reversed, francs depreciating and the dollar rising in sterling value, bringing the American rate lower and the French rate higher than at the end of last week. Until movements of French balances from one country to another, either direct or via London, ceases, the erratic exchange movement is likely to continue.

It is rather noteworthy that no steps of special character have been taken to check the decline in rates, possibly because the authorities consider that they would be futile or preferred to await the coming conference between the governor of the New York federal reserve board and the heads of the banks of England and France.

PARIS BOURSE SLACK

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 1.—The Paris bourse, which had become more buoyant at the beginning of the week on the knowledge that the government's policy would contain an all around reduction of taxation, returned to its usual slackness when the Chautemps cabinet was defeated the first day it appeared in the chamber.

The general situation in France is not of a nature to encourage an immediate rally in the market. While the political situation is still awaiting a clear solution, France also faces a threatened industrial crisis, and the market is maintaining a reserve which is somewhat natural under the circumstances.

Show Ill. Manufacturers' Mutual Surplus Gains

The insurance division of the Illinois department of trade and commerce reports the surplus of the Illinois Manufacturers' Mutual Casualty association, Inc., for the year ending Dec. 31, 1929, was $406,959. This was a gain of $99,522, compared with the statement filed with the insurance department Dec. 31, 1928, when the surplus was $307,437.

Ponders Fall of Commodity Price Levels

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of those obscure things that holds a certain amount of alarm for economists is the possibility of falling price levels of commodities on a world-wide scale.

It is frequently held, because there is overproduction, apparent or real, in such widely separated goods as wheat, lumber, newsprint, sugar, rubber, wool, and textiles, that world buying power is not being maintained at a satisfactory level. Likewise it is pointed out that there is a far greater plant equipment to produce steel and iron and automobiles than is needed the year around.

Is Price Structure at Fault?

There are few of these products that would not be consumed in much greater quantity if incomes were higher. At hand is a document which states that the price structure, which is dependent on the monetary situation, is at fault rather than the fact that there is present overproduction. The real point advanced is that it is hopeless to expect a shift of labor from one employment to another less congested to remedy the whole thing.

Thinkers along this line suggest that the gold supply, old and new monetary policies and the trend of prices must be studied together. They see troubles constantly coming to one class of people when the supply of gold is short and to another when the supply is over large.

As homely examples, we may take the man who places a mortgage on his house and the man who lends the money. If the general price level goes up, the borrower gains. He can pay off his debt in dollars that will not purchase as much as the dollars he borrowed. On the other hand, if the commodity price level falls—if money becomes more precious—the borrower must pay his creditor more than he actually borrowed in usable goods.

Price Level Changes Disturb.

Severe economic disturbances have occurred as a result of sharp rises or falls in price levels, which might as well be spoken of as falls and rises in the price of gold. There are historians who maintain that the fall of the Roman empire was due to the exhaustion of gold and silver supplies then known. There are others who declare that the common man in Europe was emancipated from utter serfdom by the vast quantities of gold that were carried across the seas from the hoards of Aztecs and Incas.

In the first case the theory is that the borrowers—and Rome had a great bondholding class—were so goaded by the exactions upon them when price levels fell that they smashed their way to freedom from imperial tyranny. In the second, it is assumed that the paying off of debts, first in Spain and then in all Europe, was easier, and that a new start all around was the result. Something of the same nature was accomplished in Germany after the war, when it was necessary to pay for a meal with bushel or more of bank notes. There are instances in America when the odd spectacle of debtors pursuing those whom they owed and "paying them off without mercy" in depreciated currency was frequent. This was notably true in the years after the revolution.

Have Seen Falling Levels.

We have in recent years witnessed the phenomenon of a falling price level. The recession was sharp in 1921. Since then it has been milder, but still constant. Doubtless it would have been more marked if the advance in credit facilities had not been greater than that in actual currency. It is probably true that business would be improved by a shift toward the other side; to a rising level of prices.

It is on this ground that the proponents ask for an "easy money" policy the world over. Such a policy would be advantageous, if it could be controlled. Because experience has shown such things get out of hand too easily, we prefer the evils we have to prospects of new and strange ones.

Restrain Taplins from Efforts to Control Road

Cleveland, O., March 1.—(AP)—Frank E. and C. F. Taplin of Cleveland, who have made several attempts in the last year to gain control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad, in which they were minority owners of stock, have been restrained from further attempts by a permanent injunction granted here today in Common Pleas court. The injunction, granted by Judge David H. Thomas, leaves the Van Sweringen interests in control of the road and is believed to end the long struggle between the Taplin brothers and the brothers O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen over the affairs of the Wheeling.

CHICAGO STOCKS BACK AND FILL IN QUIET SESSION

Prices Move Within Narrow Range.

Chicago stocks backed and filled in a quiet week-end session yesterday. While considerable profit taking came into the market, such selling was well absorbed and trading grew dull on reactions. The total turnover for the two hours was 131,300 shares.

Prices moved within a narrow range and net changes in the more active issues were generally confined to fractions. In the automotive group, Borg-Warner led in activity and declined a major fraction. Bendix and Cord also sustained fractional losses. Pines Winterfront advanced a point. Noblitt Sparks was up a bare fraction, and Winton Engine closed unchanged.

Investment Trusts Irregular.

The investment trust issues were irregular. Continental Chicago made a fractional gain. Chicago corporation common sagged a fraction, while the preferred finished unchanged. Utility and Industrial lost a minor fraction.

Middle West Utilities led the public utility group and finished fractionally lower. United Gas advanced more than a point, while Inland Utilities rose fractionally and Seaboard Utilities closed unchanged.

In the general list, John R. Thompson jumped two points in anticipation of a favorable annual report. Merger negotiations had small effect on Brown Fence and Kalamazoo Stove shares. Brown Fence B gained a fraction and Kalamazoo Stove closed unchanged. Northwest Engineering and Parker Pen advanced more than a point each, while Cities Service, Marshall Field, and Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line made fractional gains. Grigsby-Grunow was off a small fraction.

Make Annual Reports.

Two companies whose shares are listed on the Chicago exchange made favorable financial reports. Net earned surplus of the Seaboard Utilities Shares corporation has increased from $598,179 as of Dec. 31, 1929, to $804,439 as of Feb. 13, 1930, after deducting organization costs to that date in Delaware. Net earned surplus of the Railroad Shares corporation, after reserves for all expenses and taxes, has grown from $51,833 on Dec. 23, 1929, to $247,419 as of Feb. 21, 1930.

The fifty most active stocks traded on the Chicago exchange last week had a market value of $2,754,399,171 at the close of business yesterday, compared with $2,538,792,512 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Swift, Langill & Henke. This represents a decrease of $84,393,341, or 3.06 per cent. The analysis shows that 29 of these stocks were traded in last year. These stocks had a market value of $664,017,230 yesterday, compared with $511,219,080 on March 2, 1929, an increase of $152,798,140, or 29.88 per cent.

Trading Volume Runs 88 Per Cent.

With a total of 10,761,000 shares of stock sold on the Chicago exchange during January and February, this year's volume is running 88 per cent of the volume for the same time last year and more than three times that of 1928. The volume reached 12,150,000 shares during January and February of 1929 and 3,057,353 in 1928.

CHICAGO BANK STOCK QUOTATIONS ARE FIRM IN TONE; FEW CHANGES

Chicago bank stocks showed a firm tone last week, with few price changes being recorded.

Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company was traded in between 716 and 720. First National bank was 7 points easier at 733@736. Central Trust Company of Illinois held steady at 424@427. There were numerous trades in Foreman-State National bank between 800 and 804. People's Trust and Savings bank was again wanted at 495, with limited offerings at 500. Harris Trust and Savings continued in demand at 850 bid, 853 asked. Northern Trust company lost 15 points at 945@955. Numerous transactions were recorded in National Bank of the Republic stock between 153 and 155.

In the miscellaneous group Bendix Service was the most active, sales advancing the price to 16⅛@16¾, up two points. Chicago Daily News common continued heavy, being in supply at 28½, with best bids at 28, while the preferred was strong at 95½@96½. Chicago Title and Trust company lost 3 points at 507@510.

SEEKS LARGER WHEAT OUTPUT IN AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 1.—(AP)—A strong appeal to Australian farmers to put another million acres of land into cultivation for wheat has been made by Premier John Edmond Hogan of Victoria state. He predicted an excellent growing season.

Throughout Australia it was realized, he said, that it was absolutely necessary to curtail unnecessary imports and increase the production of primary commodities salable overseas.

There is not the slightest danger of a collapse of Australia's credit, but the surest way to assure the world is immediate action to adjust the present adverse trade balance, the premier added.

See Stockholders' Fight at Gulf Steel Meeting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 1.—Requests for proxies to be used at the annual meeting of the Gulf States Steel company and at a special meting of the stockholders called for the day following the annual meeting may precipitate a lively stockholders' fight in the company, it was learned. The question of the sale of the company is the point which has aroused the group which was favorable to merging with the newly formed Republic Steel corporation, and, according to reliable information, the attempt of the present management to change the company's by-laws so that it requires a two-thirds vote of the stockholders to authorize a sale, makes it possible that an effort will be made to change the present officers.

Charges Fly Fast in Fox Film Row

New York, March 1.—(AP)—Suit to restrain Harry L. Stuart, president of the investment banking firm of Halsey, Stuart & Co., and others from voting Fox Film or Theaters corporation stock at the annual stockholders' meeting next Wednesday, was filed in the Supreme court today on behalf of William Fox.

Justice Nathan Bijur of the Supreme court signed an order temporarily enjoining Stuart and the other defendants—John E. Otterson, president of the Electrical Research company, and the Bankers' Trust company, as trustee—from issuing proxies of any description to vote the stock held by the trust company. The order also restrains Stuart and Otterson or any of their nominees from exercising any voting rights whatever.

Follows Announcement.

Fox's suit followed an announcement last night by Halsey, Stuart & Co., creditor of the Fox concerns, that it did not intend to participate in a refinancing plan for the Fox companies recently submitted by the Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Lehman Brothers, and Dillon, Read & Co., but that another plan would be submitted on its behalf. The Bancamerica-Lehman-Dillon-Read plan was accepted by the directors.

Fox's affidavit charged that the proposed substitute was evolved by the Halsey-Stuart faction "upon ascertaining that they would be unable to absorb the valuable properties and rights" of the film and theaters corporations, "on the auction block through the medium ship of receivership."

Replies to Fox Charges.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. made public today a letter to stockholders in which they charge that Mr. Fox is wholly responsible for the "financial embarrassment" of both concerns. They charge him with having arbitrarily violated a trust agreement entered into with John E. Otterson and H. L. Stuart, and with exerting absolute control over $300,000,000 worth of properties, although the shares he owns represent only six per cent of the aggregate.

After charging Mr. Fox with sole responsibility for the corporation's present trouble the letter states that Mr. Fox's charge that Halsey, Stuart & Co. were responsible "is not only wholly unjustified, but an obviously unwarranted attempt to create a scapegoat on which to saddle that responsibility."

CURTAILMENT OF CUBAN SUGAR WILL CONTINUE

HAVANA, March 1.—(AP)—Efforts of sugar industrialists in Cuba to have the government lift its present sugar crop and grinding curtailment act and to secure the dissolution of the Coöperative Exports agency are believed to have failed.

Authoritative circles reported that the effort for freedom in Cuban sugar cane growing, grinding, and marketing had been lost by industrialists and that previous plans of the government for restriction would remain.

It is understood that the government considers curtailment of crops, restriction of grinding, and unified marketing of raw sugar as essential to the welfare of the industry.

United Biscuit Co. Reports Most Prosperous Year

The United Biscuit company enjoyed the most prosperous period in its history last year, according to the annual report issued yesterday by President Kenneth F. MacLellan. The company expanded its plants and also acquired several other concerns. Net profit for 1929 was $2,160,301, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $4.39 a share on 484,438 common shares, compared with $1,475,375, or $3.02 a share, in 1928, computed on a comparable basis. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, shows current assets of $4,082,993, current liabilities of $1,330,233, and surplus of $14,965,181.

NEW FACILITIES SEEN INSURANCE FOR PRODUCER

Gives Privilege of Lessening Risks.

For the first time in the history of live stock marketing in America an exchange for trading in future delivery of hogs was opened here yesterday, attended by ceremonies in which leaders of established futures trading agencies, bankers, packers, commission men and western swine growers took part.

Light hogs for September delivery sold at $12.00, April delivery at $11.65, and for March delivery at $11.25 in the initial trading. Heavy hogs for March and April delivery brought $10.15 and $10.25.

When trading started, Charles Wilson bought the first load, paying 12 cents a pound for light hog for September delivery.

Thus is added another agricultural commodity to the list of raw materials and foodstuffs in which producers are privileged to lessen risks and to secure collateral to assist in financing their production and marketing. The following futures markets now exist, according to Charles E. Snyder, editor of Drovers Journal, in his address at the opening: Barley, burlap, butter and eggs, cocoa, coffee, copper, corn, cotton seed, cotton seed meal, cotton seed oil, cotton, flaxseed, hides and skins, lard, mill feed, oats, pork ribs, rice, rubber, rye, silk, sugar, sugar bags, tin and wheat.

Has Dealt in Billions.

"The Chicago Live Stock exchange, which has been operating continuously forty-five years, handling 770,000,000 head of live stock, worth $18,500,000,000, in that time, is taking a progressive step in creating this futures market," said Charles Wilson, vice president of the exchange. "It came about through an intensive study of market problems and is a serious effort to aid and strengthen market operations. It aims to replace uncertainty with certainty, to place safety where there is now a risk and to remove such of the hazard that has been considered inseparable from ownership of live stock or its many products."

The man who does not avail himself of the facilities of futures markets is "on a par with the man who does not carry fire insurance," Mr Wilson declared. "We do not believe you can run a packing house or a feedlot on a futures trade alone, but we do know that you will find it an invaluable aid in either operation. Its quotation will throw light on the future. Its insurance features will enable you to protect yourself from severe and sudden changes in prices."

Seek Centralization Here.

Mr. Wilson expressed the desire of the directors of the Chicago exchange that this new market would help to centralize at Chicago all the future trading in live stock for the nation, where "supply and demand will operate freely and register correct prices. To bring stability into the trade, to reduce price fluctuations, to stabilize production, to prevent unseasonable gluts and unseasonable famines, is our purpose."

"Weathering the storms of political criticism through nearly three-quarters of a century, trading in futures has continued without a break," according to President John A. Bunnell of the Chicago Board of Trade, whose address was read by Fred H. Clutton, secretary. "Economists the world over are agreed upon the desirability of maintaining such a market. We wish you success in this undertaking."

Felicitations were given the new trading movement in live stock by O. T. Henkle, general manager of the Union Stock Yard and Transit com-

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., March 1.—Bull traders were still feeling their oats today and they continued to peg the prices of their stock market favorites to higher levels.

They pushed their operations quite vigorously in some directions and as a result various issues of the utility, amusement, tobacco, and farm implement groups scored good gains on fairly large dealings. A goodly number of stocks, in fact, registered fresh high prices for the year, while numerous others approximated peaks attained earlier in the week. It was the most

EYES OF LABOR WORLD TURN TO MARCH 10 NEXT

Seek Reorganization of Mine Workers.

BY THOMAS WRENN.

Radicals of former days will meet in conference with the labor conservatives of today in Springfield, Ill., on March 10, to discuss plans to reorganize the once powerful United Mine Workers of America.

Proceedings of this convention will be noted by organized labor throughout the world and also by American mining interests. Experienced observers of things pertaining to labor matters profess they are unable to predict the outcome of the Springfield meeting and just what effect it will have on the American labor movement. There are some who claim the meeting will pale the significance of any American Federation of Labor convention of the last two decades.

It is pointed out this is possibly due to the complicated issues involved and the men scheduled to attend. These include Frank Farrington, John H. Walker, Harry Fishwick, Walter Nesbit, Alex Howatt, John Brophy, and Dorchy, and a score of lesser figures.

Membership Declines.

Since the close of the war no other American labor union has suffered the membership losses experienced by the United Mine Workers of America. Open shop interests have succeeded in smashing the miners' unions in a number of places, notably in the bituminous fields adjacent to Pittsburgh. But despite adversity the coal diggers have refused to abandon the overdeveloped coal industry, which is constantly diminishing in man power with the increased use of gas and electricity and the increased use of machinery in the mines.

Impoverished living conditions were left in the wake of the wrecked unions of miners, and radicals found the coal fields fertile for the dissemination of their doctrines and preachments. Under John L. Lewis, the international president, the United Mine Workers of America has devoted time and finances to stave off radical rule, the domination of which has virtually wrecked the unions of fur workers, textile workers and has cut inroads into the ranks of the needle workers.

The Springfield meeting is the outcome of charges made by Lewis that the officialdom of the Illinois unit of miners purchased their election. Court action followed, counter charges were made and Lewis was said to be responsible for the losses suffered by the miners.

Hits at Farrington

Lewis charges one of the leaders of the recalcitrant faction is Frank Farrington, who resigned as head of the Illinois Miners' union in 1926 to accept a reputed $25,000 per annum job with the Peabody coal interests. When the exposure was made Farrington was representing American labor at the British trade union congress at Bournemouth, England. He announced to THE TRIBUNE in Paris that he intended resigning upon return to the United States.

It is reported Farrington has left the employ of the Peabody coal interests and now has a card in his old Streator local of miners. Lewis lists John H. Walker, the head of the Illinois Federation of Labor, as another leader. He states Walker for years has been ambitious to become national head of the miners. Walker has been equally active in the political and economic fields in behalf of the workingman.

Then in line come Harry Fishwick, head of the Illinois Miners' union; Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer; John Brophy of Pennsylvania, and Alex Howatt of Kansas. The stage is all set and advance notices state the rump convention will be held for the benefit of the coal miners of the nation.

The Short Seller.

The popular conception of a stock exchange as a battlefield where battalions of bulls and bears engage in daily combat to force prices up or down is somewhat misleading. Few traders are always on one side of the market. The bull today may be a bear tomorrow, or he may be both animals at the same time.

Short trading is a complicated operation usually indulged in only by professionals. The amateur speculator is almost invariably on the long side of the market.

For that reason the amateur rejoices whenever bullish sentiment is strong enough to push prices a few notches upward. He dislikes and distrusts the short seller, and the word "bear" conjures up for him the figure of a villain who is trying to push prices down when the little fellow's only chance of making a profit lies in boosting prices.

The bull is a fellow after his own heart—just a big brother helping him to make a cleanup. It sometimes doesn't occur to him that the bull is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde sort of person.

Doubtless this naive misunderstanding of stock trading is largely responsible for the perennial opposition to short selling and for the bills that have been introduced in state legislatures to prohibit such operations. Probably there are many who believe that if all the bears were caged and the bulls allowed to operate unmolested prices would always be on the upward trend and everybody could have a chance to get rich.

Pools are organized and prices are manipulated, but in general the shrewd professional trader follows the trend of the market rather than leads it. The short sellers act as a balance wheel. When prices are becoming more and more inflated and are approaching the inevitable crash, short trading acts to some degree as a check rein. When the crash does occur and prices hit the bottom those who have sold short begin buying in to cover their previous sales, and this buying helps to some extent in pulling prices out of the depths.

Contrary to popular belief, short selling does not depress prices permanently, because for every 100 shares sold eventually the short seller must buy in 100 shares to cover his sale.

Any one who sells anything—stocks or commodities—at a certain price, expecting later to buy it at a lower price, is a short seller. All traders are trying to do the same thing—buy low and sell high. The bull buys first and sells later. The bear sells first and then buys.

Which one performs a service of greater value to the public is a moot question. The aim of each is to make a profit for himself. He is not greatly concerned with the profits or losses of the little fellow who plays about the fringes.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

With the exception of the volume leader, Stinson Aircraft, which dipped a fraction in heavy trading, Chicago curb stocks moved upward in the short session yesterday.

Transformer reflected strong buying support and added another point and a quarter to finish the week in a net gain of over six points. American Superpower crossed 31 to reach new all time high ground.

pacy, which is providing the physical facilities for the exchange. He was joined by officials of the stock yards banks, and by Lloyd S. Tenney, manager of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, formerly chief of the bureau of agricultural economics in Washington.

Assume Part of Farmers' Risk.

"Many seem to hold the view at the present time that the farmer should take all of the risks attending the marketing of his products," said Mr. Tenney. "Others, notably in Great Britain, hold that consumers should be organized to assume these risks. But we here are convinced that neither will succeed in this country. There is a place for the services of the so-called middle man or speculator that no other class of people seem willing to assume. That futures trading is a sound and efficient medium for regulating supply and demand is best shown in its increasing acceptance by both producers and consumers. The public has confidence in a well regulated commodity exchange."

Several trades were made during the short initial sessions in the exchange room, ninth floor, Exchange building, Union Stock yards. Trading is to be done in March, April, May and September deliveries. A feature of the new market is trading in "to arrive" bids, to reach the market seven days after buyers have been notified by sellers when shipment will be made. Hours of the exchange will be 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. except on Saturdays, when trading will stop at noon.

Top yesterday, $10.85; average, $10.05.

International receipts at Chicago Monday, 18,000 cattle, 32,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep.

Hogs sold unevenly steady to 25c lower on the week-end cash trading session, the extreme top going down 25c at $11.15, while the general average moved down 10c at $10.65, comparing with a top of $11.60 and general average of $11.00 the previous Saturday.

Demand at the decline showed some improvement, with most smaller packers on the market, resulting in a good clearance. Only 2,000 remained at the close. Light and light butchers showed the sharpest decline compared with early Friday, while most butchers changed hands at steady to 10c lower prices.

Hits Snag During Bulge.

The hog market hit a snag during the midweek bulge and most of the gain was erased. Sales at the finish were 35@45c lower than a week ago. Prices fluctuated wildly during the week, but the general average at $10.80 was exactly the same as the previous week and compared with $10.85 a year ago. The five year average of corresponding weeks stands at $10.99. Two years ago hogs averaged $9.10.

There was a good demand for fresh pork, and loins at the close were 1@2c per pound higher than a week ago, and 10@3c above a year ago. Reports that fewer hogs were expected late in the week caused many to hold hogs off the market when prices broke early in the week. This gave the buying side practically all the advantage when fresh receipts exceeded all expectations. Receipts at leading markets during the last two days of the week were nearly 40 per cent larger than Friday and Saturday of the previous week. However, the sharp break in prices is expected to curtail the movement of hogs for early next week.

Cattle Drop Again.

The smallest cattle receipts of the year failed to strengthen the position of the market last week. Prices declined again, averaging within 5c of the lowest since February of last year. The general average for beef steers at $12.25 compares with $12.50 the previous week, with $12.30 a year ago, and with $13.15 two years ago.

Quality has been deteriorating for some time, which accounts for some of the price reduction. A small proportion of supplies have been good enough to bring more than $14.00. Chicago handled only 24,000 cattle during the last week, against 42,443 the previous week.

A year ago at this time there was an increase in receipts of cattle and a substantial rise in prices. Monthly averages moved up from $11.90 in February, 1929, to $12.70 in March and to $12.50 in April. By June the average was up to $14.29. Cattle for February this year averaged $12.30, lowest in a year's time, but second highest for February since 1920.

Lambs Average, $10.45.

Several weeks ago when lamb prices dropped below the $13.00 line, the market was referred to as ruinously low. Feeders handling approximately 5,490,000 lambs for this year's market were estimating their losses at $2.00@3.00 per head. Since then there has been a drop of fully $2.00 per hundred pounds.

Last week's general average price dropped to $10.45, being exactly $6.00 below the corresponding week in 1929. The corn belt feeders are still liquidating supplies at this immense loss, while many of the big feeders in the west have restricted their shipments in an effort to check the break. The movement from Colorado and Nebraska, where several million lambs are on feed, is only slightly larger than a year ago and smaller than two years ago. Yet, with the exception of three years, sheep receipts last month were largest for February since 1914.

The month's general average price of lambs at $10.95, is lowest since December, 1921. Barring the year of 1921, the average goes back to October, 1916 for a lower price. At the low point in 1912, the monthly average was down to $8.55 in October. Prices for the entire year of 1921 averaged $9.85.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 16,000 cattle, 52,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 14,202 cattle, 59,363 hogs, and 20,535 sheep a week ago, 15,245 cattle, 57,673 hogs, and 12,000 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. WHEAT TRADERS NOW CONVINCED OF U. S. INTENT

But Futures Sag Despite Persistent Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There is no longer the slightest doubt in the minds of wheat traders that the government intends to support the market on all setbacks, regardless of supply and demand conditions which would seem to justify a lower range. Purchases of around 3,000,000 bu futures were regarded as having been made during the day by the government, and the latter was also said to have taken in and paid for 3,000,000 bu cash grain delivered on March contracts.

Weakness in Liverpool where wheat prices dropped 1¾@2¼d on deliveries of 1,500,000 bu and a lack of demand caused a break of as much as 3c in the Chicago market at the start yesterday with May touching $1.14, but there was persistent buying by brokers who usually act for the government and also by commission house, and the nearby futures rallied 2¼@2⅝c from the inside figures, easing off toward the close and finished ⅛@¼c lower with March $1.11½@1.11⅝, and May, $1.15⅝@1.16.

Deferred wheat futures in which the government apparently is not operating, closed ⅜@1⅝c lower, with the July 1.14⅜@1.14½, and September $1.16@1.16⅛, with some selling of July and buying of May by brokers.

Above World's Parity.

While American farmers and congress continue to complain about the relatively low level of wheat values prevailing at the present time, prices in Chicago are about the highest of any market in the world, the May delivery here closing ½c over Winnipeg, going to a premium for the first time on the crop, due entirely to the government buying. Winnipeg was 1¾@⅞c lower for the day, while Buenos Aires was ½c higher to ½c lower.

No. 2 hard winter wheat at the seaboard and gulf was quoted within 3¼c of the close on the May delivery at Liverpool, while the price of Argentine grain was so low that it appeared possible to buy the latter and sell May in Liverpool at a profit, the cash being 14c under the future based on the Buenos Aires market.

There was some buying of wheat here based on expectations that the scheduled conference of government officials with the stabilization corporation might have a bullish effect on the market. No export business of consequence was reported during the day in either domestic or Manitoba wheat.

Wheat Higher for Week.

While a demoralized condition prevailed in the wheat market early in the week, the government buying caused an upturn sufficient to more than offset the loss, the finish yesterday being 1⅜@1⅝c higher on nearby months as compared with a week ago, while the new crop futures were 1½@2⅛c lower. Corn was ⅛@⅞c lower for the week and oats ⅞@1⅜c higher, while rye was off 2⅛@4¾c. Lard lost 15@25c and bellies 15@17½c for the week.

Trade in corn was not large, with an early break in sympathy with wheat followed by a good rally on local and commission house buying and the close was unchanged to ⅛c higher, March being 84⅛c, and May, 88⅜@88½c. Deliveries of 518,000 bu were made on March contracts. Country offerings were small, and eastern demand fair, the latter taking 58,000 bu.

Cash Houses Buy Oats.

Cash interests were on the buying side of oats, and the market developed a strong undertone, closing at net gains of ⅛@⅞c with March leading. The latter was 42¾@42⅞c, and May 44½c at the last. Deliveries on March contracts were 40,000 bu.

Scattered liquidation appeared on all upturns in rye, and the close was ⅛@⅞c lower with March 75¼c, and May 76c at the finish. Deliveries of 510,000 bu were made on March contracts.

COTTON BREAKS $1 A BALE

Cotton was off $1 a bale yesterday in the spot market and futures closed 17@20 points lower at Chicago, and 16@28 points off in other markets. Trading was not heavy but there appeared to be cotton on the market all day. Liverpool cables were higher than expected and closed with net gains of 3@4 points, with spot sales of 2,000 bales. Statistics were in the main bearish. The south was a fair buyer on the decline, and there was said to be a good number of buying orders under the market.

The Indian government has raised the import duty on cotton piece goods to 15 per cent,, against 11 per cent formerly, which is construed as making for a reduction in consumption of American cotton at Manchester for shipment to India. Advices from Fall River showed irregular conditions with sales below last year's.

Spot cotton in New York was 15.10c, with sales 750 bales; New Orleans, 14.95c, sales 738 bales; Houston, 15.25c, sales 1,448 bales; Galveston, 15.35c, sales 590 bales. Prices follow:

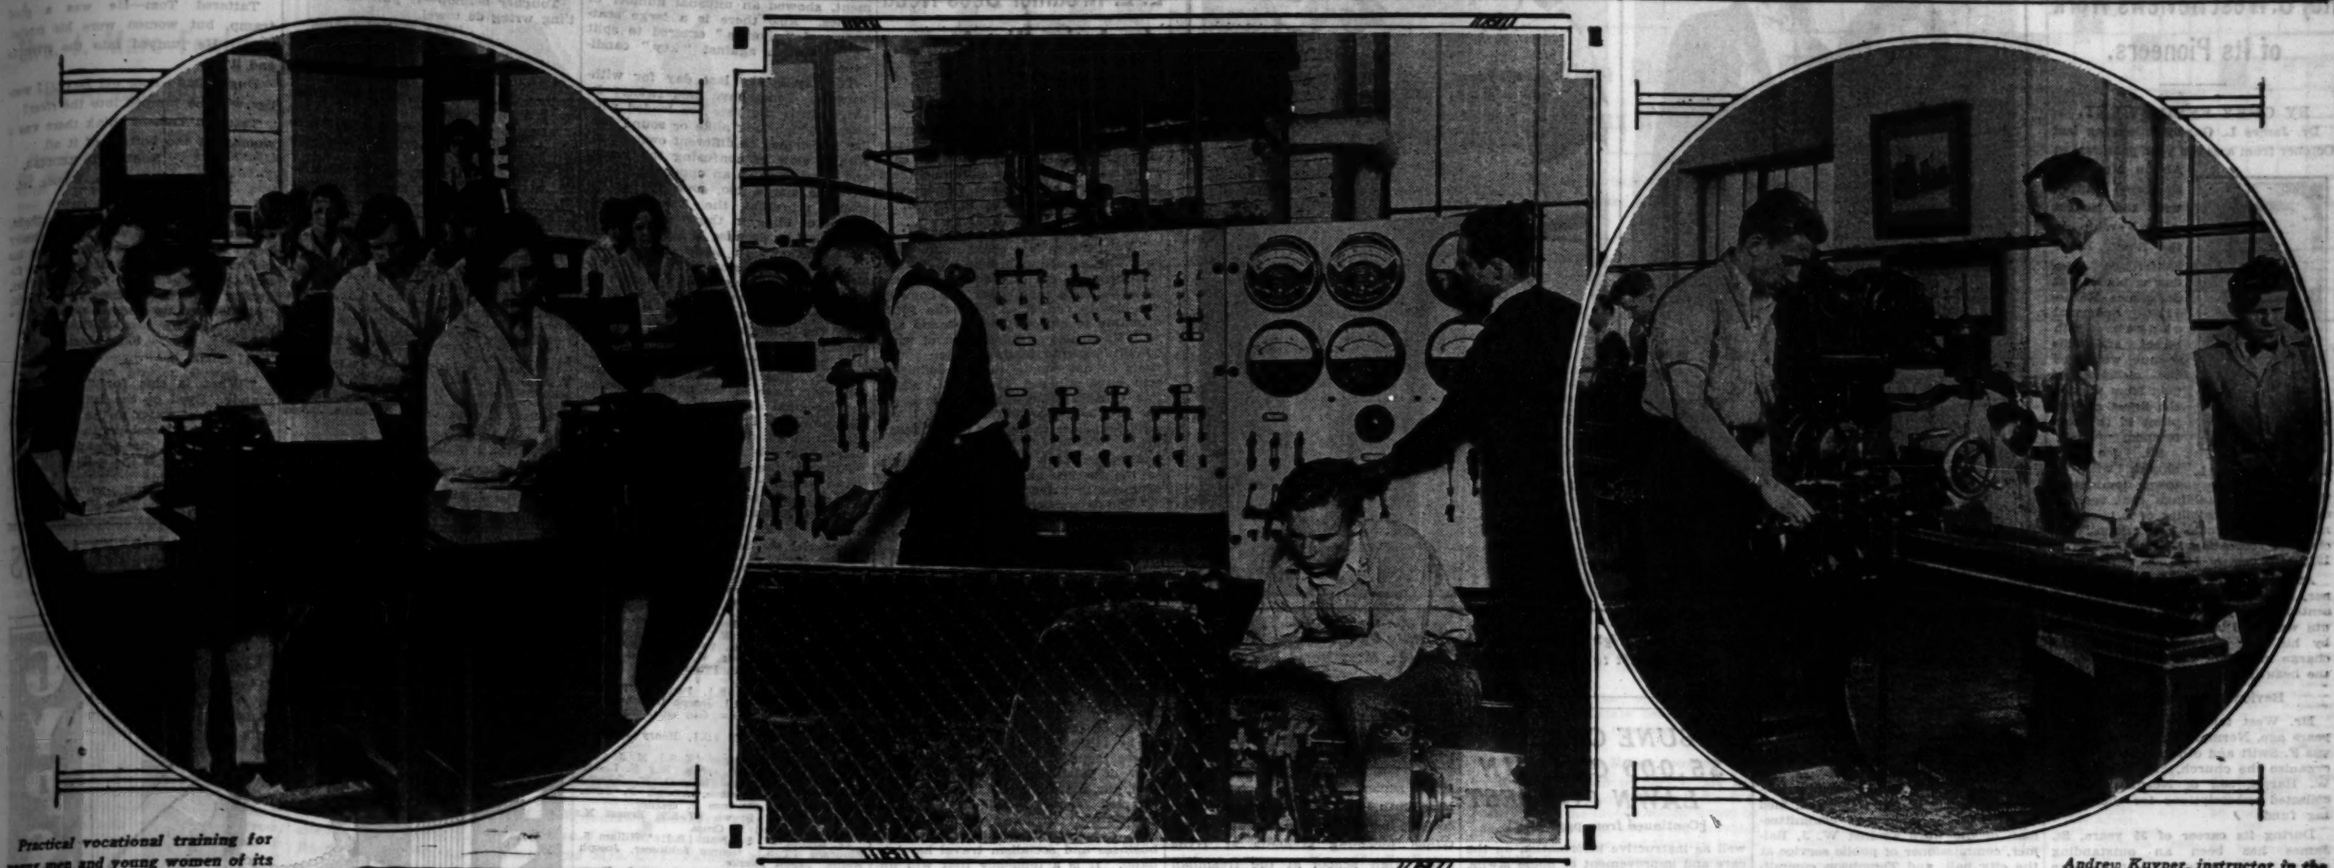
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

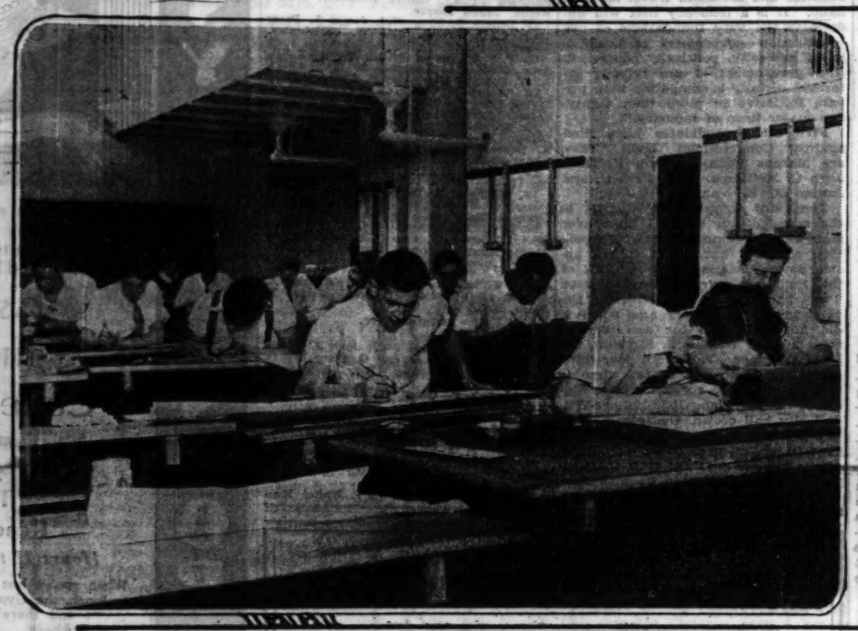
MARCH 2, 1930.

Neighborhood News. Public Service Office, 1101 East 63d Street.

TRAINING HANDS AND MINDS TO EARN DAILY BREAD



Practical vocational training for young men and young women of its territory is provided by the Pullman Free School of Manual Training, endowed by George M. Pullman. Courses in office work are offered for young women. In the foreground of this typewriting class are Miss Maibelle Lemieux (left) and Miss Nancy Gallotin. Behind Miss Gallotin is Miss Hermina van Eck.



Among the members of this class in commercial drawing are Sam Deloian, John Laverman, A. Rolla, Edward Haas, and Francis Gallay.

Andrew Kuyper, instructor in the machine shop, watches Norman Thompson as he learns to do by doing. At the right is Adam Schimanski.

TRIBUNE OFFERS $5,000 CASH IN LAWN CONTEST

Finest Plots to Win 195 Prizes.

THE TRIBUNE will give away $5,000 to make Chicago a city of beautiful lawns. Men, women and children who have the best home lawns in Chicago and its suburbs will share in the prizes, which range from $250 to $10. A total of 195 awards will be made to revive Chicago's reputation as the Garden City of America, as a city dotted with fresh green grass plots.

If you are handy with rake and trowel, if you believe that dandelions may make good wine but will not improve your quarter acre more or less; in other words, if you are a lawnmaker as well as a homemaker you can win one of the many prizes offered. And if you haven't been now is the time to start.

Little Plot Will Do.

It doesn't take a big lawn to enter this competition. No one will compete with an estate or lawn conducted on a commercial or professional basis. The minimum required is a little plot, 300 square feet. A lawn at least that large and any shape, style or size is eligible.

Elsewhere in the Metropolitan Section is printed an announcement of the list of cash prizes offered; also the rules, a map showing the contest area, and an entry coupon.

Any one in the territory within a radius of approximately 40 miles of THE TRIBUNE, stretching up and down Lake Michigan's shore, from Gary, Ind., north to Waukegan and inland to Aurora and Joliet, may enter the contest.

Entries by May 12.

Entries must be sent in by May 12, but it is not necessary to have had a lawn prior to sending in the entry. Both new and old lawns are eligible and will be given an equal chance to win a prize. The fact that a lawn is newly developed will be taken into consideration. Any person with the possibilities of having a lawn within the prescribed contest area is eligible to enter.

All the lawns entered in the contest will be judged by competent judges. Club women interested in lawn development will be on the judging committees. The exact dates when lawns will be judged are to be announced later. The only requirement at present is that the contestant clip out the coupon, fill in his full name and address and indicate the division—north, northwest, west, southwest and south—and mail to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Lawn Contest Editor, Box 1718.

Open to Amateurs Only.

The contest is open only to amateurs who design and maintain their plots or lawns with the aid of the family. No outside help is allowed other than unskilled labor used in doing such work as spading the soil and mowing the grass.

Watch THE TRIBUNE for news of the Lawn Contest developments as

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

SPEAKING of nicknames, how many of our readers know that William R. Reynolds, the insurance broker and 60th street commuter, was once known as Fuddles because he was wont to use it as a cuss word? We thought so. We're giving it top mention with four [4] stars . . . today the best nickname of the week. If you happen to have any, send them in. You might win one, two, three, or even four stars.

Andrew J. Kolar, vice president of the Drexel State bank and a director of our public library, and Mrs. Kolar are again greeting Merrill avenue folks after their sojourn in Palm Beach. Andy has a coat of tan that looks every bit as expensive as one of those you get from a stylish health lamp; also two fine new golf shots and a consignment of fish stories so big they had to use half of their two car garage to accommodate them.

C. E. KOCH of 335 Sheridan avenue, Whiting, is listening to the mocking birds and basking in the sunshine down in Texas. He left Tuesday for Kansas, Texas, Louisiana, and Alabama on one of his regular trips for the Johns-Manville company, and latest reports from him are that spring is here, or there, as the case may be. Anyhow, friend wife, Lucille, is busy at home making yards and yards of noodles for Charlie. He just dotes on home made noodles and always consumes 'em by the mile. He needs the old noodle when on those selling trips, and builds gray matter with Lucille's witching cookery.

Handsome Al Hancock held his first ceremonial of the year Friday at Medinah temple, and received an overwhelming ovation. We predict a big year for the new potentate. Al honored Chunk, as the home town neighbors call Zimmie, our Big Shot assistant, by elevating him to membership on the publicity committee of the Shrine. Zimmie is also an auxiliary member of George Chase's brass band, as well as an alternate flag bearer—tsk, tsk, what will the boy be up to next?

THE busy corner of 61st and Prairie avenue seems sad and lonely without buddy Doc McGinnis. Doc has moved his oral crockery division, bridge building department, and tooth repair shop, to the Maryland building at 341 East 63d. The new dental parlors are replete with the very latest doo-dads and equipment, designed to ease the patient's mind, and to comfort the aching tooth. The shiny cases and bright instruments engender a spirit of confidence, and Doc says that business is better than ever, in the new location.

With all this talk of folks goin' to Florida for the rest of the winter, it is indeed a pleasure to hear of one chap who will stay right here and help do the work that's to be done. Such a man, and what a man, is good John A. Isaacson, cashier of the Bryn Mawr State bank. Says John, "No, siree, no Florida for me. All I have is Paxton avenue. The coin will clank within our bank, but if I'd go, it might come slow, so, never fear, I'll stay right here."

JOE E. RYAN of 7411 Indiana avenue is the new and smiling paying teller at the Park Manor State bank. Joe is a graduate of the Stony Island Savings bank, and has won many friends for the new Park Manor institution, with his quick and friendly manner.

Hyde Park Presbyterians Plan All-Music-Service

An all-musical service will be given this evening at Hyde Park Presbyterian church, 53d and Blackstone avenue. Philip Manuel, harpsichord artist, and Miss Esther Muenstermann, singer, will give the program. Dr. George L. Robinson, professor of Biblical literature and the English Bible at Presbyterian Theological seminary, will deliver a sermon on "The Lord's Prayer; the Greatest Martyr on Earth," this morning. Miss Ellen Nicholson, a nurse at the Resht hospital, Persia, and Dr. Clarence Salisbury of Ganado mission and hospital, are to speak Wednesday evening before the Presbyterial society and the church.

CHILDREN SEE GRADUATION OF THEIR PARENTS

Night Schools Present Diplomas.

Six south side schools held graduation exercises Friday evening. Reversing the usual order, several children of graduates attended. It was the annual graduation of night school classes in the Chicago public schools.

These night schools closed two weeks earlier than last year, because of a smaller appropriation in the budget, and only one south side night school, Englewood Standard High, will continue open until June.

More Than 700 Finish.

"More than 700 night school students throughout the city have completed their elementary or high school special courses," said Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools.

Dr. Lunak further pointed out that the first night schools in Chicago were organized in 1876, and that the total students attending this year was nearly 35,000. About one-third of these attending night school are foreign born and, of course, many of these persons chose English to foreign and Americanization subjects, but all high school and elementary school courses, as well as some junior college subjects, are offered in the evening schools. More than 1,000 teachers are engaged in night school teaching. Of course, most of these teachers are in the school system days as well.

Those finishing the special high school courses are:

Pullman School to Observe 99th Birthday of Founder

The 99th anniversary of the birth of George Mortimer Pullman will be celebrated by a Founder's day open-house tomorrow night at the Pullman Free School of Manual Training, 111th street near South Park way. All departments will be in operation, and visitors and returning alumni may see classes conducted as they are in regular session.

During the course of the evening, the school band, under the direction of James R. H. French, will play. The alumni will hold a dance after the affair in the assembly hall. James Kleinhuizen is president of the alumni association.

A Vocational Guidance School.

Mr. Pullman's interest in the welfare of his employes and other residents of Pullman is testified to by his endowment of $1,200,000 for the founding and maintenance of the school. His purpose, as expressed in his will, was "to found, erect, and endow at Pullman a free school of manual training for the benefit of the children of persons living in or employed at Pullman."

In designating the school as a manual training institution, he stated that the school should place special emphasis on vocational guidance, and should also contribute to general education and other requirements for good citizenship.

Mr. Pullman did not live to see the school built, since he died in 1897 and work was first begun on the buildings in 1914.

Offers 4 Year Course.

The school offers a four year course. Resident pupils of Pullman, both boys and girls, may enroll upon completion of their elementary school course. The first year is devoted to a general study of the courses offered, and at the beginning of the second year, each student selects that vocation in which he wishes to specialize. Boys may choose from architectural drawing, automobile mechanics, electricity, machine shop work, and mechanical drawing, while girls may take courses giving instruction in home economics and office work. The remaining two years are spent in vocational study, together with related sciences.

The school was originally built to accommodate 300 pupils, but the enrollment now numbers more than 450. Evening classes are included on the schedule. Before the building of the new Fenger High school, the Pullman Free School offered courses which could be counted toward college entrance, but this practice has been discontinued and the school now is exclusively vocational in scope.

Urban Willis Is Principal.

Urban G. Willis, 1332 East 56th street, is principal of the school. William C. Brubaker is dean, and the following persons are heads of departments: Alexander Ritter, mathematics; Miss Caroline H. Mott, library; Miss Grace M. Sandall, English; Wynne L. McDougal, electricity; John L. Baer, science; Andrew Kuyper, machine shop; Miss Susan E. Skinner, home economics; Adolph A. Neff, drafting; Veril O. Wiley, automobile mechanics; Miss Wilma S. Garner, commercial; John C. Cummings, athletics, and James R. H. French, band.

Following are the board of directors: President, Frank O. Lowden; vice president, David A. Crawford, secretary, James E. Dickinson; treasurer, Stanley Field; Donald McLennon, George M. Reynolds, George M. Pullman Lowden, and Miss Florence Lowden.

$240,000 PAVING FOR BEVERLY AV. UP TO COUNCIL

Paving of Beverly avenue between 95th street and Vincennes avenue and of Ashland avenue between 95th street and Beverly avenue, an improvement costing approximately $240,000, was approved by the city council committee on judiciary and special assessments.

The ordinance for the improvement will be submitted to the city council at its next meeting, and if it is passed the board of local improvements will determine the assessment on property owners and submit the assessment roll for confirmation by the county court.

Property owners approved the project at a public hearing recently.

Postprandial to Dine.

The Hyde Park Postpandrial will meet for dinner tomorrow evening in the ballroom of the Hotel Windermere East. Spencer W. Castle and John B. Lawrie will be chairman.

SOUTH CHICAGO AVENUE PROJECT GAINS SUPPORT

Metzger Sees Victory in County Board.

Prediction that the county next year will develop a new and wide traffic route from 63d street to the Indiana line was made yesterday by Andrew C. Metzger, county commissioner. He expressed confidence that the board will adopt a recommendation for such a route made two weeks ago in a proposed five year highway program for the county. The program was prepared by a committee composed of representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Regional Planning commission, and the motor clubs.

The board is expected to act on the proposed route, most of which lies in South Chicago avenue, as soon as the committee's recommendation has been formally presented, Commissioner Metzger said.

40 Foot Width for Autos.

Plans call for a paving width of 40 feet, not including the 16 foot space taken up by street car tracks on South Park way, South Chicago avenue, and 95th street.

The proposed route to the Indiana line would begin at 63d street and South Park avenue, continuing south on South Park to the South Chicago avenue intersection. On South Chicago avenue it would turn and follow that street to 95th street, going east on 95th street to Avenue L, down Avenue L to 100th street. At 100th street it would cut a new driveway on a line parallel with Indianapolis boulevard across Ewing avenue to join Indianapolis boulevard.

"The proposed route is such a natural one that I am confident the board will approve it," Commissioner Metzger said. "The completion of this highway will make a new gateway to the east and break the bottle neck at Ewing avenue and Indianapolis boulevard."

South Side business and improvement associations indorsing the project are the South Woodlawn Chamber of Commerce, East Side Chamber of Commerce, Stony Island Business Men's association, South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Grand Crossing Improvement association, Parkside Improvement association, and the Triangle Improvement association.

BATTLES HULL OVER BRIDGES AND VOLSTEAD

E. L. Kreamer Seeks Congress Seat.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Volsteadism and bridge closings are being raised as issues in the Second congressional district, where a non-factional group has entered Ernest L. Kreamer as a candidate for the Republican nomination against Congressman Morton D. Hull.

It is styled a "Progressive Chicago" movement, and its spirit is "fewer laws but more action." Its sponsors say they are not making a personal attack upon Mr. Hull. But the slogan they are raising is to the general effect that Cook county and Illinois would progress faster if congressmen spent "less time in the amen corner and more time on the scrimmage line."

Mr. Kreamer is a lawyer, 47 years old, who has lived in Chicago since 1900, and never before has run for office. He is a member of the Union League and South Shore Country clubs and past president of Central Lions' club. His managers declare he was brought out by an element in the district which is in revolt at the factional entanglements which have made an unsavory mess of the local Republican party. They describe it as a "protest movement."

Hull a Political Veteran.

Congressman Hull himself has been in politics a quarter of a century. At Springfield, where he started as a leader in the "Band of Hope," a group of the younger progressives of that day, he served for sixteen years with such diligence and intelligence that the Legislative Voters' league adorned him with the appellation: "The most valuable man in the legislature."

He went to Washington in 1923 to succeed the late James R. Mann.

"A local issue in which Chicago is interested," says Mr. Kreamer, "is the bridge nuisance. Great streams of traffic are being held up because the bridges are being opened at hours which were well enough in the days of horses, but which inflict a vast amount of discomfort, inconvenience, and economic waste to the public in this automobile age. Readjustment of the bridge closing hours is a growing necessity to which Chicago is justly entitled, and Cook county congressmen ought to insist upon such a revision.

Favors Action on Waterway.

"I am an advocate of quick action on the Illinois waterway. The development of Chicago as a natural water transportation center between the great lakes and the Gulf of Mexico has been retarded too long by those in congress who are content to take an amen attitude.

"It's all right to applaud and acquiesce in proposals for progress, but what is more essential is real action. Other states seem to get what they ask for. Illinois has never before asked a cent for this waterway, but the state and city have spent $100,000,000 of Chicago and Illinois money on it already, and now all that is sought is 5 or 6 million dollars from congress to complete the work, because the state can't spend any more without a constitutional amendment, which takes time. Illinois congress-

Roy O. West Reviews Work of Its Pioneers.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Dr. James L. Gardiner, coming last October from a seven year pastorate at Austin Methodist Episcopal church, with the largest membership in the Rock River conference, has, during his stay at St. James Methodist Episcopal church, 46th street and Ellis avenue, witnessed the clearing of debt from what is the finest church plant in the conference.

THE REV. JAMES L. GARDINER.

St. James church, with its tower dominating the group of buildings that seek to meet the responsibility of a complete ministry—spiritual, educational, social and recreational—was finished in 1926 at a cost of $600,000.

At a recent church and family dinner, resolutions were adopted as presented by Roy O. West in which tribute was paid Albert W. Harris, who by his gift made possible the discharge in full of the indebtedness of the beautiful edifice.

Reviews Pioneers' Work.

Mr. West told how more than 35 years ago, Norman W. Harris, Gustavus F. Swift and others determined to organize the church, and how Albert W. Harris, son of Norman Harris, collected subscriptions for the building fund.

During its career of 35 years, St. James has been an outstanding church in Methodism due to the men of affairs who have supported it and because of its outstanding pastors.

Today, its trustees are Albert W. Harris, chairman; Albert H. Andrews, A. R. Fay, Frank W. Howes, James E. MacMurray, A. O. McLain, John W. O'Leary, Roy O. West and Harry A. Wheeler.

Among its pastors, Dr. Robert McIntyre, Dr. William A. Quayle, Dr. Theodore Henderson and Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell became bishops.

First Pastor from Nearby.

Dr. Gardiner is the first pastor at St. James to have been appointed from the Rock River conference, all his predecessors having been selected elsewhere.

Active throughout the history of St. James has been the Woman's guild, formed at the residence of Mrs. Norman W. Harris, with Mrs. E. Crane Wilson as its first president. The guild has contributed $20,000 towards the building fund during the last four years.

A greater St. James was accomplished with the union of St. James and Oakland Methodist Episcopal church in 1924.

Oakland Church Formed in 1867.

Oakland church was the outgrowth of a class meeting held at the Van Allen home on Langley avenue in 1867. Its first building was erected in 1871, and a later one, at Oakwood boulevard and Langley avenue, was built in 1887. Among the pastors, later to become a bishop, was Dr. William O. Shepard. The last pastor was the Rev. Austin L. Young.

St. James was organized in 1895 at the home of Norman W. Harris. The old building, dedicated on the present site in 1897, was destroyed by fire in 1924. From the first the church took a place in the front rank of Methodism.

Aside from the pastors hitherto referred to was Dr. Camden M. Cobern, who later became renowned for his research work in Egypt and Palestine. The fifth pastor was Dr. William Rhind Wedderspoon, known throughout Methodism, active in the plans for the new church edifice and the enlargement of its facilities. Dr. Wedderspoon was succeeded in 1926 by Dr. King D. Beach, who, in turn, was succeeded by Dr. Gardiner.

Members of Church Staff.

The Rev. Harold W. McIlnay is assistant pastor; Miss Lillian B. Watkins, pastoral worker; Miss Alice A. Russell, church secretary; Louis W. Cross, recreational director; Miss Tina Mae Haines, music director.

Balmer, commissioner of public service at the city hall, and Thompson committeeman. Sailor is supported by former Ald. Robert E. Barbee, Deneen candidate for assessor. Sailor is an architect and is a member of the Englewood Business Men's association and the Greater South Side chamber of commerce.

State Senator Harry W. Starr of the 13th district recently was a guest of the Gano Farmers' association, a south side German club, at a turkey dinner at the close of which he was indorsed for re-election.

Walter G. Davis, Deneen candidate for Republican committeeman of the 9th ward, has been indorsed by the Calumet Joint Labor council, an organization of south side workers.

Candidates for representative from the 13th district will appear before the meeting of the Woodlawn Business Men's association to declare their platform and to answer questions. Candidates expected to be present are Harry Fisher, Theodore G. King, Walter Bednarski, Charles J. Bock, Daniel H. Lewis, Elmer Schnackenberg, and John G. Garriott. The meeting will be held at Hotel Hayes, 64th street and University avenue.

Ralph Cozzi was a last minute entry in the race for Democratic committeeman of the 18th ward. Cozzi is an independent and is entered against Committeeman Andrew J. Leyden of the Regular Democratic organization and T. J. Craven. Cozzi has been a resident of the ward all his life and is in the expressing and moving business. He is a member of the local American Legion post.

The 17th Ward O'Connell Democratic club has moved into new quarters at 530 West 63d street, from which it will conduct the campaign of C. James O'Connell for ward committeeman. He is opposing Frank J. Walsh of the Regular Democratic organization.

Friends of State Representative John M. Lee of the 11th district are planning a banquet in his honor at the Stevens hotel March 15. Following the completion of his fourth term in the legislature last year he was commended by the Legislative Voters' league.

Maurice M. Renehan, independent candidate for state representative in the 11th district, has announced that if he is elected his fight in the general assembly will be for better highway facilities on the south side.

An entertainment to be given by the Deneen Republican club of the 15th ward Tuesday evening at 6343 South Western avenue will launch the campaign of R. H. Muehlhausen for ward committeemen.

The senior girls' society, headed by Miss Ruth Hight, and the senior boys' society, headed by Donald Paul, entertained incoming students at Hyde Park High school at the freshman frolic Feb. 21.

The girls' frolic, which was held in the gymnasium, was planned as an imitation of an athletic field day. Various athletic contests were burlesqued and prizes of lollipops were presented to the winners of each event.

The freshmen boys were welcomed in the assembly hall by Ralph R. Williams, dean of boys. Included on the boys' frolic program were popular piano numbers played by Jerry Mauntner and Norman Sider, vocal selections sung by Howard Howland, physics teacher, two fencing matches, and an address on school activities by Eugene Foster.

BATTLES HULL OVER BRIDGES AND VOLSTEAD

E. L. Kreamer Sees Need for Action, Not Amens.

men ought to be as active on a project like this as are Iowa and Indiana and Pennsylvania and Tennessee congressmen on matters affecting their localities. I am pledged to vigorous efforts on the waterway if elected.

Backs Change in Volstead Law.

"Volsteadism is a great national issue. The appalling breakdown in law enforcement and the so-called crime wave which is inundating our country are closely connected with the futile attempts to enforce the Volstead act, with its inadequate definition of what constitutes intoxicating liquor. Citizens do not concur in this definition and have rebelled against it, which has created a widespread disrespect for law and law enforcement. We need immdiate change of the Volstead act."

Another plank is one of opposition to the further encroachment of government in private business.

"The federal pay roll is in the neighborhood of $820,000," he declared, "and to support the many boards, commissions, and bureaus which they comprise, each one of us has to give 12½ per cent of his income on a national average basis. That means we are giving up one day's income each week, no matter what our income may be—$2 or $2,000 a day—52 weeks each year. The rising cost of government must be checked unless taxes are to become confiscatory.

Fights Government in Business.

"Much of that money is represented by taxes made necessary to cover losses incurred by government operation of business. Not only has it cost you money, but it has ruined or crippled some individual business. Government in business is paternalism, communism. Nationalization of business and socialism travel hand in hand. It is a tendency that will undermine the very foundations of our constitution—government in business is, of necessity, politically controlled. And government, I am reliably informed, already is competing with private initiative in more than eighty-five major lines of industry."

Five other candidates have filed against Congressman Hull. They are Marcus Denny, Joseph F. Mall, John C. McGinnis, F. G. Frazier, and James M. E. Vance.

The third congressional district is the scene of an unusual fight over state central committeeman. Old political alliances have been turned upside down. Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Supreme court, a Deneen man "way back when," split with the Deneen group two years ago when it did not back him for secretary of state against William J. Stratton, the Lundin winner. Vail ran a poor third in the primaries. Vail this time is running for state committeeman, aided by the Willams-Reid-Balmer-Withall city hall crowd. Godfrey E. Norbey is the Deneen pick, and Howard C. Wittlieb, member of an old Thornton family, is sunning with the support of the anti-Deneen liberals. Herbert Day Battles is a fourth candidate.

WARD COMMITTEE CANDIDATES

The battle over ward committeemen is one of the warmest phases of the primary campaign among the Republicans, involving, as it does, control of the elected Republican organization. The Democrats also have a few fights of interest. When filings were closed at midnight Thursday, the lists compiled by Dan A. Carey, chief clerk of the county clerk's election department, showed an unusual number of entries. Also there is a large scattering of "phonies" entered to split up opposition against "key" candidates.

Tuesday is the last day for withdrawals. Some have filed twice. In some wards the lists are loaded with names which look alikh or sound similar but belong to different owners, all with a view of confusing the voters and carving down an opponent's vote. In some wards, too, some of the entrants represent the time honored racket of filing in the hope of being bought off by promise of a job or other consideration. In some sections the market price is reported low, and politicians say about "five bucks a throw" is about the basic rate on ordinary, mine run "phonies."

In the following table an asterisk (*) before a candidate's name shows that he is the present ward committeeman. The initials in parenthesis following some of the names indicate the factional alliances. Republican—(S) Snow, (T) Thompson, (D) Deneen, (B) Brundage, (L) Lundin, (C) Crowe. Democrats—(R) Regular.

Here are the Republican and Democratic lists for the south side wards, as furnished by the county clerk at midnight Thursday:

KIRBACH HEADS SO. WOODLAWN OWNERS' GROUP

Association Plans Fight on Tax Rolls.

Adolph G. Kirbach, 1229 East 75th street, was elected president of the South Woodlawn Property Owners association organized Wednesday evening at Carpenter's hall, 7427 South Chicago avenue.

Other officers chosen were vice presidents, Eugene J. Mooney, Edward L. Ruesnow, and Lawrence Ter Maat; secretary, P. J. Bassett, and treasurer, Adam Geringer. An advisory committee of 25 will be appointed this week. Offices of the organization will be located at 1229 East 75th street.

To Make Fight on Taxes.

The purpose of the new organization is to make a united fight against tax inequalities and injustices and to affiliate with the Owners Real Estate board, a countrywide organization of owners of realty whose purposes are mutual protection and mutual benefit. They were called together for organization by a committee chosen from their ranks which included Eugene J. Mooney, president of the South Woodlawn chamber of commerce; Adolph G. Kirbach, director of the chamber of commerce; Edward L. Ruesnow, P. J. Bassett, Adam Geringer, and Lawrence Ter Maat.

Philip R. Kellar, secretary of the Owners Real Estate board, spoke at the organization meeting on "Taxes for Two Years."

Permanent Relief Sought.

Mr. Kellar said in part: "We ask that the 1928 and 1929 taxes be cancelled; that the money which would be derived from this source be provided for by bond issues; and that the bonds be paid from a special assessment against real estate to be paid in 20 years. For permanent relief, we want a law compelling other forms of wealth to share the tax burden with real estate. And more than this, we want proper safeguards for the future so that the taxpayers' money will not be wasted by careless politicians. The law covering this, for which we ask, is one creating a nonparison commission to supervise the tax spending bodies and to audit their books, as bank books are audited by the state banking department."

Another meeting of the association will be held Friday night. In the meantime, a campaign for additional members will be waged.

VETERANS OF '61 WILL BE GUESTS AT LEGION PARTY

Woodlawn Band Plays at Maine Memorial.

Woodlawn post, No. 175, of the American Legion, will be host tomorrow night to veterans of the G. A. R. The program will be held at the post club rooms, 1208 East 63d street, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. An evening of surprises has been arranged, including music and entertainment. Commander Hamlet C. Ridgway will preside.

Through the courtesy of Commander Ridgway, the post band furnished music for the "Remember the Maine" program recently held at Calvary Methodist Episcopal church at which members of Maj. L. M. Ennis camp, No. 79, United Spanish War Veterans, were special guests. The camp and auxiliary will hold a card party and special dance Tuesday night at the Community house, 1518 West 102d place. All Spanish war veterans are invited. W. D. Rosser is camp commander. Maj. Ridgway of Woodlawn post, and Maj. Carlos Ames, Spanish war vets, are among the invited guests.

Stanley F. Sullivan post No. 746 has just terminated the most successful membership drive since its organization. It now has approximately 600 members, and 87 of these are new. The post draws from a district bounded on the north by 55th street, on the south by 79th street, on the east by Damen avenue, and on the west by Central Park avenue.

Sullivan post is also congratulating its neighbor, Paul Schmitt post No. 322, for its progress from a few members to a membership now exceeding sixty. Emmett J. Grady, an organizer and first commander of the post, and A. P. Boyle, past commander, were among the leaders in the membership drive. Mr. Grady was recently chosen assistant secretary to the state athletic commission.

The legion auxiliary, department of Illinois, of which Mrs. George M. Kellogg Jr. of Chicago is president, will be hostess to members of the legion and auxiliary who attend the area D child welfare conference to be held Friday and Saturday at the Stevens hotel. Area D comprises thirteen states.

Thomas McConnell [Indiana], legion chairman, and Mrs. Jerome Duggan [Missouri], auxiliary chairman, will be in charge of the conference. Mrs. Donald Macrae, national president of the auxiliary, will be among the speakers. The auxiliary gave a dinner dance for Mrs. Macrae at the Stevens hotel on Saturday.

Miss Emma Pushner, legion child welfare chairman, of the Hoover child welfare commission, will have a display at the conference. Those interested in the care of children are invited to attend all the sessions. A pilgrimage to the Illinois Soldiers' Orphans' home at Normal will be made next Sunday.

The regular meeting of the Cook County council, American Legion auxiliaries, has been postponed from March 7 to March 14 because of the conference.

The American Legion is trying to find the heirs of Edward J. McGovern, deceased ex-service man, a former member of supply company, 344th infantry. This boy's mother died in November, 1922, and there are supposed to be three brothers and a nephew of the ex-service man residing some place in Chicago.

There is a small estate due the soldier, to be divided among the heirs. Any information with reference to John, Thomas Terrence McGovern, and the nephew, James Donnelly, a son of Edward McGovern's sister, Mary Donnelly, should be forwarded to the American Legion office at 160 North La Salle street [Central 2183].

At last night's meeting of Chicago Federal post, No. 1525, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder and his staff made a presentation of colors to the post. Van Buren post drum and bugle corps assisted in the ceremony.

NO BUSINESS IS TOO SMALL TO CASH IN ON Sunday Tribune Advertising

THREE years ago the Metropolitan section of the Sunday Tribune was launched in an effort to provide a real "home-town newspaper" for the people of Chicago and its thriving suburbs. During these three years, Tribune readers have watched this section grow and progress with the communities it serves. Today in scores of thousands of homes people turn first to the Metropolitan Section to read the news about the things that come closest to their daily lives.

Not only do Tribune readers find the intimate news and reviews of neighborhood activities, but they also find the selling messages of their own neighborhood merchants and retailers. Right in the same newspaper with the advertisements of the great firms of the city and of the nation are to be found the business-getting offers of smaller concerns—neighborhood merchants and retailers—who have been enabled, through low-cost Metropolitan section advertising, to take advantage of modern business methods to spur their sales.

No business today is too small to cash in on the sales power of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. The size of your store, the volume of your sales, the nature of your business—none of these need keep you from building greater sales and profits with Metropolitan section advertising.

Scores of merchants and retailers in the past three years have demonstrated this outstanding fact. There is no arbitrary minimum cost to bar you from the benefits of this modern business-building method. You can start right now on your present capital. For a few dollars—whatever you feel that you can invest to go after new customers and greater profits—you can take advantage of this great sales-producing force.

Why don't you decide to get the complete facts about Metropolitan section advertising? The Tribune will be glad to explain the details to you at your convenience. Call Superior 0100—Metropolitan Section—tomorrow, and take the step which can easily be a new starting point in your greater success.

Next Sunday a summary of this hand will appear exclusively in this paper. It is suggested that the readers clip these summaries and thus keep a permanent record of the hands as broadcast. These cannot be secured other than through The Chicago Tribune.

It would have to be a very keen bridge player, indeed, who could not learn something from the bidding and play in the fifteenth radio bridge game broadcast from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

The players were: John C. Gardner, Brooklyn, N. Y., dealer, south; Mrs. Anne Wesson, Kansas City, Mo., west; Mrs. A. R. Coffin, Indianapolis, Ind., north, and William J. Wall, Ottawa, Can., east, and they held the following cards:

Mrs. Coffin.

Mr. Gardner opened the auction with one spade. He was strong enough to bid four, but there is no need to preëmpt when strong in three suits. Mrs. Wesson, west, bid two clubs. Mrs. Coffin, north, and Mr. Wall, east, passed. Mr. Gardner, of course, said two spades. Mrs. Wesson, west, with a hand which should take at least six tricks unassisted, felt justified in showing her partner that she had more than a following bid, so she called three clubs. North again passed. She had four spades, but no suit she could ruff, so she had no justification for raising her partner even after his rebid.

South Says Four Spades.

Mr. Wall, east, passed. On the third round of bidding Mr. Gardner, south, bid three spades. West and north passed, but after the strength shown by west, east felt that he had at least one raise, so he bid four clubs. Although surprised that the enemy dared to bid four, Mr. Gardner, south, while believing that he could defeat the club contract, considered it better, especially in view of his honor score, to play four spades. West and north passed, but east had a close question to determine.

West's bidding had indicated that with clubs the trump she was sure of six tricks unassisted, and hoped to take seven. East was willing to go down one or two tricks to save game, but would a bid of five entail a greater loss? From east's viewpoint, his four clubs probably solidified west's holding in that suit; but his singleton in the adverse spade suit, ordinarily a great asset, might not be worth anything, as south's confident bidding suggested long spades and the possibility that north and south had all the spades and that west had none, or (as actually was the case) a singleton. East's king of diamonds would be of value if west held the ace, otherwise it was liable to be captured by south. The bidding plainly indicated that all the adverse strength was held by south. After considering all these points, east feared that a five bid would produce a penalty of $00 for the adversaries, too much to risk on the first game of a rubber. So east passed.

Ruffs with Jack.

Mrs. Wesson, west, opened the play with the king of clubs. She thought it probable that declarer would ruff, but that would force the strong hand and be a better plan of procedure than opening either of her red suits or leading her trump. From the north hand, which became dummy, declarer played the deuce of clubs; east played the 5, and declarer, appreciating that his three small trumps might be needed for putting the dummy hand in the lead, ruffed with the jack of spades.

To trick two declarer led the 3 of spades from his own hand; west played the 9; dummy the 10; east the 4. Delighted that both the adverse spades fell on the first trump trick, declarer led dummy's jack of diamonds to trick three. East, hoping to make his 9 good (his partner might have the 10), played the king; declarer the ace; west the deuce. Declarer then led his queen of diamonds; west played the 5; dummy the 4; east the trey. Declarer continued with the 10 of diamonds; west played the 7, dummy the 6, and east the 8.

To trick six declarer led the 4 of spades; west played the trey of clubs; dummy the 5 of spades; and east the 8 of clubs. Dummy then led the 7 of clubs, to which east played the 4. South ruffed with the queen of spades and west played the 6 of clubs.

Puts West in Quandary.

Declarer again entered dummy by leading the deuce of spades and overtaking with dummy's trey. West discarded the 3 of clubs and east the 4 of hearts. Dummy then led the queen of clubs, east played the jack, declarer discarded the 6 of hearts, and west won with the ace of clubs.

Declarer's failure to ruff this ninth trick placed west in a quandary as to her lead to trick ten. Her choice lay between her thirteenth club and her king-jack-9 of hearts. She was loath to lead from the heart suit, but with no clubs in dummy and a trump left in that hand, to have led a club would have given closed hand a discard. Therefore the heart lead had to be chanced, although west appreciated that the best explanation of declarer's failure to ruff the preceding trick was that he had the ace-queen of hearts which he wished west to lead up to. West led the 9 of hearts; dummy played the deuce; east the 7, and declarer won with the queen.

Declarer then exposed his remaining cards—the ace and king of trumps and the ace of hearts—claiming the remaining tricks, which, of course, were conceded. He scored 54 for tricks; 90 for four honors in one hand with fifth in partner's, and 50 for a small slam.

Mr. Work's Comments.

Mr. Work, commenting on the hand, praised declarer's play, saying it took rare ability to appreciate from the first the possibilities that the cards contained if the king of diamonds happened to be in the east hand, and the two adverse trumps evenly divided. Mr. Gardner also showed himself an expert by keeping all possible entries in both hands, when he ruffed the first trick with an honor. But the most brilliant play of the hand was declarer's refusal to ruff dummy's queen of clubs, thereby throwing the lead to west, who had either to lead up to declarer's ace-queen of hearts, making both of them good, or else to lead a club which declarer could ruff in dummy, permitting him to discard the queen of hearts from the closed hand. Thus declarer's discard of the small heart on the ninth trick clinched his small slam. The result would have been the same had west had a diamond to lead. The hand is an interesting illustration of the elimination play.

At contract, Mr. Work gave as his opinion that south should open with four spades. He can expect to take seven spade tricks and probably, though not surely, will get three more with his two side ace-queens. North may hold the jack either of hearts or of diamonds, and if south should bid only three spades, north would not feel that such a card would justify his jumping the bid to four; yet south needs no more help than that to insure a game for his spade bid.

After south's four-spade bid there would be nothing for the three other players to do but pass. The contract play would net twelve tricks just as in auction; it would be the type of small slam that often is made but cannot soundly be bid.

MARCHES STIR, JAZZ SUBDUES HEART'S ACTION

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

Science is still wonderful—or is it? A supersensitive multiple stethoscope applied to the heart of Guy Lombardo, jazz bandsman, caught his heart beat decreasing as he lent ear to the broadcast of a "hot" ballad. It isn't the foxtrot that makes the heart go through extra antics—it's marches or devotional music. Thus Columbia Broadcasting company announces after conducting a test in conjunction with an electric research company.

A typical audience of professional people was chosen for the test. They included William Rankin, advertising executive; Dr. Henry Hadley, associate director of the New York Philharmonic society; K. P. Royce, research engineer; Miss Maxine Brown, stage star; Lombardo, Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist, and the Rev. Dr. T. H. Whelpley, pastor of Chelsea Presbyterian church.

Stirring marches increased heart action an average of 13.6 beats per minute, but devotional music pressed Sousa hard, with a gain of 13.2 per minute. "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" decreased the normal heart beat 1.3 per minute, and the current number, "Have a Little Faith in Me," slowed up the action even more.

The public may now look forward to an announcement of the most powerful sedatives coming out of the loud speaker. And politicians might give all other performers a handicap.

Crooning the ballads that made him famous, Rudy Vallee appeared before the first lady of the land last Tuesday afternoon in a broadcast program. Mrs. Hoover was the special guest of the Congressional club at its annual breakfast to the wife of the President. Among others invited were Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President, and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the new chief justice of the Supreme court.

"Peace is worth months — and months of the dullest conferences,' Lady Astor, announced as the first woman to speak from Europe over the radio, declared in her speech last Sunday morning. The broadcast was excellently heard in Chicago. Lady Astor's speech retains First-Family-of-Virginia peculiarities such as clipping her final g's; for example, 'lookin', inspirin', reducin', and discussin', but also reveals the effects of many years living in England. This daughter of Dixie says "abaout" for "about;" something like "pob'ly" for "probably;" "awdin'y" for ordinary;" "facks" ror "facts."

After Lady Astor's address Frederic William Wile introduced Martha Dalrymple of 1310 Howard street, former Chicago newspaper woman, now with the Associated Press in London.

Andres Segovia, the Andalusian guitarist, will play at 8:15 tonight over W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel and an NBC chain. Segovia's playing is no collegiate strumming.

After hearing him here recently "Harpo" Marx announced his intention of throwing his harp away.

He also sings two modern ballads on the program with the Regal Musicmakers this afternoon. It's a fast program, featuring another artist, Julian Davidson, playing an Octofone solo. SYMPHONY BY BRAHMS CONDUCTED BY DR. STOCK

The Second Symphony in D Major, by Johann Brahms, will be played in its entirety on the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) program by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. This was the first symphony to be written after Brahms was hailed to be the successor of Beethoven, and the third of the "three great B's," Bach, Beethoven and Brahms. The Symphony Orchestra plays Nicolai's Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" to complete the program. The Symphony Orchestra plays a radio concert each Sunday at 2:00.

PAT and OLD TIMER HARK TO PREVIOUS BROADCASTS

Listeners have begged Pat Barnes and Old Timer to repeat some of their radio discussions. Tonight they recall a few of the poems they have read; they repeat a few of their opinions. Both Pat and the Old Timer are well posted on all the ancient and modern philosophies. They discuss matters of ethics, and human relationships. Pat takes the viewpoint of the "younger generation," while Old Timer advances the teachings of most seasoned thinkers. Thousands of listeners tune in each Sunday night for these entertaining discussions as sponsored by The Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons. 7:00.

SHORT REQUEST SHOW BY TOM, DICK AND HARRY

One of radio's favorite harmony trios, Tom, Dick and Harry, step up to the microphone this afternoon at 5:30 for a select request program. Their startling arrangements show that they possess a new comprehension of harmony. Their new arrangement of "Song of the Bayou" is thrilling. Their only accompaniment is a subtle thread of music on the guitar. In the Sunday twilight program they comply with as many of the requests as possible.

Remember, YOUR LAWN WILL BE COMPETING ONLY WITH OTHER LAWNS IN YOUR OWN TERRITORY. The Chicago area has been divided into five main divisions, as shown on the accompanying map. Thirty-nine prizes will be awarded to prize-winning lawns in each of five main divisions.

Decide now to have a better lawn this summer! In addition to the enjoyment and satisfaction of having a beautiful lawn, you may win a cash award.

Fill in and mail the entry coupon today! Then read the helpful suggestions which the Tribune will publish every Sunday.

Just follow these simple RULES

1 For the 195 home lawns in the Chicago area adjudged best in accordance with these rules, the Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000 in cash prizes.

2 To be eligible for prizes, lawns must be located on land on which contestants live at the time of judging and in the territory within a radius of approximately 40 (forty) miles from Tribune Tower.

3 A lawn may be of any size, shape, style, or type, provided only that each contains an area of at least 200 square feet or the equivalent of a plot measuring 20 by 10 feet.

4 The contest area is divided into five main divisions. Thirty-nine prizes will be awarded to lawns in each division. First prize, $250; second prize, $150; third prize, $100; fourth prize, $75; fifth prize, $50; sixth prize, $35; seventh prize, $20; next thirty-two prizes, $10 each. Total prizes for each division, $1,000.00. Total for the five divisions, $5,000.00.

5 Estate lawns, commercial lawns, and all others cared for or maintained by persons who earn their livings in whole or in part as caretakers, gardeners, or landscape architects, are barred. The competition is open only to amateur home lawns maintained by the entrants themselves, without paid assistance from anyone other than unskilled labor.

6 This competition is open to all, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families, and others automatically excluded by the contest requirements.

7 All entries must be received in the Tribune office bearing a postmark not later than Monday, May 12, 1930.

8 A committee of competent judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune and their decisions will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid. The exact judging dates will be announced later and will be governed, of course, by the nature of the season.

10 Each lawn will be judged upon its merits as a whole. Points to be taken into consideration include design, neatness, freedom from weeds, ragged edges, etc.; improvements made to lawn during the season, and general harmony of surroundings.

11 The only requirement to enter the contest is to fill out the coupon properly and mail it to the "LAWN CONTEST EDITOR," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Ill. Coupon must bear contestant's name in full, address, and division—North, Northwest, West, Southwest, or South, of the city or suburb in which he or she lives. DON'T FORGET TO INDICATE THE DIVISION. Judges will inspect your lawn at the proper time. The publishers of the Tribune will not be responsible for the loss, delay, or non-delivery of entry coupons.

35 INDUSTRIES JOIN Y. M. C. A. IN SOCIAL PROGRAM

Recreation, Training for Roseland Youths.

Guided recreation and happier relations between employer and employé is the goal which prompted thirty-five industries in Pullman and Roseland to coöperate with the 111th street Y. M. C. A. to provide social and athletic activities for young men in industry. Alfred J. Swango, industrial secretary of the "Y," in charge, and working with him is one representative of each of the thirty-five firms coöperating.

Three member of this committee were appointed chairmen of three subcommittees which will outline the program for the three phases of activity to be followed—young men's clubs, athletics, and foremanship training.

S. G. Green Heads Committee

S. G. Green, chief clerk of the Calumet shops of the Pullman company, heads the young men's club work committee. This committee will work on a program which is intended to keep youths out of hoodlum gangs by directing their play, athletics, discussions, and other recreation. It will also seek to train them to become leaders. One of these clubs, the Ovals, of the Illinois Central shops, has been active for three years under the leadership of Mr. Swango. A similar club has been organized at the Great Lakes Forge company, and other industries will be encouraged to sponsor group activity among their young men.

B. R. Brown, superintendent of Columbia Mills company, heads the athletic committee. Two basketball leagues have already been organized. One is composed entirely of I. C. employés, who meet Monday evenings at Hyde Park High school gymnasium. The other league is for men in industries of the Roseland district. This group meets Wednesday evenings at the 11th street "Y." The following activities are directed by the athletic committee, playground ball, outside volleyball, horseshoes, track and field, basketball, and bowling.

Edward J. Wallman, Chairman.

Edward J. Wallman, superintendent of the Great Lakes Forge company, is chairman of the committee on foremanship training. This committee will seek to train business executives how to handle their men in the best social and professional way. Harry N. Clark of the Business Men's Clinic of Cleveland will meet with the committee to guide the work.

The Y. M. C. A. is also planning to extend a similar program to Harvey. N. W. Wiersema, general chairman of the committee of management of the "Y," met Thursday evening to discuss the program intended for that district.

Leads Church Group

LONSDALE N. WEST.

Lonsdale N. West, active in young people's work at St. Paul's Episcopal church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, has been elected president of the Episcopal Young People's association of Chicago. He succeeds David E. Evans of the Church of the Advent.

Mr. West will have supervision during the coming year of the general activities of Episcopal young people of the city. Last year Mr. West was treasurer of the association and chairman of the cathedral ball committee.

Other officers just elected are: First vice president, John D. Emory, Church of the Atonement, Edgewater; second vice president, Miss Edith Anne Cortis, Grace church, Hinsdale; corresponding secretary, Miss Frances Maguire, St. Stephen's church; recording secretary, J. W. Tasker, Waukegan; treasurer, Roger A. Davis, Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue. The Very Rev. Duncan H. Browne, dean of St. James' cathedral, is counsellor of the association.

Kenwood Named for Pioneer's Home by General McClellan

This is the 35th of a series of articles on names of districts, streets, and suburbs of the south side.

When in the spring of 1856 Dr. John A. Kennicott christened his new frame house six miles south of the city Kenwood he unwittingly founded what is now one of the oldest communities on the south side.

To the north his nearest neighbors were the Langleys and Ellises at 35th street and the students of old Chicago university, located on ground given by Stephen A. Douglas. Several blocks southward straggled the few houses of the village of Hyde Park. "There were no houses near him," comments the historian.

Hardships attendant on such isolation meant little to Dr. Kennicott, who had pioneered his way to Chicago in 1832, and was one of the early graduates of Rush Medical college. He moved out of town because Chicago was becoming too "citified." That year the first sewers were laid, the first pavement, a plank walk on Wells street, constructed, the first high school opened, and the first steam tugs operated on the Chicago river.

Named for Mother's Home.

Dr. Kennicott named his sylvan retreat Kenwood, after his mother's birthplace near Edinburgh, Scotland. Then, in June, perhaps the most significant "first" of the year, the Illinois Central opened its train service to Hyde Park, instituting Chicago's first suburban railroad transportation. Three years later, when Gen. George B. McClellan, then vice president of the railroad, opened the 47th street station, he called it Kenwood, extending the name to the entire vicinity.

The name later was adopted for Kenwood avenue, extending intermittently from 47th to 89th street at 1400 east.

With the coming of the Illinois Central Kennicott's country place rapidly grew into a community. All through the 1860's new families streamed in. By 1875 an authority on record at the Chicago Historical society said: "If it were not invidious to draw a distinction between the many prosperous suburban towns of Hyde Park, it might perhaps be in order to say that the suburb known as Kenwood was decidedly the most aristocratic of all—Kenwood is the Lake Forest of the south side."

A few years later Andreas calls it "this creme de la creme of hamlets," and adds: "The aristocratic denizen of that aristocratic suburb esteems it as the Faubourg St. Germain was considered by the old régime of Parisian aristocracy.

Likened to Knickerbockers.

"It certainly is an undeniable proposition that in this region can be found as exclusive talented coteries of society as those existing in the old Quaker circles of Philadelphia, in the Knickerbockers of New York, or the refrigerative haut ton of Boston—with this distinction: that in Kenwood or Hyde Park there is not one special clique admission into which may be attained with wealth as the sole open sesame. The inhabitants are too thoroughly gentlemen and ladies to be very amenable to the dogmas of snobbery."

By 1880 there was a brick schoolhouse in Kenwood and a female seminary run by Dr. Kennicott's wife. Leading churches were St. Paul's Episcopal church, at 4945 Dorchester avenue, and a Congregational church on 47th street. Property was worth from $100 to $150 a foot, and $200 west near Potter Palmer's home.

Among prominent residents of Kenwood who came there as early as the '60s were W. K. Akermann, treasurer of the Illinois Central; Charles H. Hitchcock, Judge Van H. Higgens, Col. George R. Clarke, C. B. Dupee, Leonard Swett, C. M. Cady, mayor of the town of Hyde Park; Rand of Rand, McNally & Co., and P. L. Sherman, first settler after Dr. Kennicott.

Attributes Chicago's Location to Convergence of Indian Trails

The stalk of Indian moccasins accounts for the location of Chicago and the loop, according to conclusions by Miss Dena E. Shapiro, a graduate student in anthropology at the University of Chicago, following a study of old records and missionary accounts.

Ten of the city's busiest thoroughfares were established as trails by the Indians long before white men visited the region. Miss Shapiro points out that the present routes of Milwaukee, Clybourn, Elston, 5th, Cottage Grove, Vincennes, Archer, and Ogden avenues, and of Clark and Lake streets coincide almost exactly with trails of the Aborigines.

White explorers, traders, and settlers used the trails, and Fort Dearborn was constructed at the convergence of these old paths in 1803. This path which later became known as the Lake trail and still later as Lake street was "The Great Trail," Miss Shapiro said. The first known white settler along its route was Jean Baptiste Point de Sable in 1779. Mark Beaubien later opened a tavern at Pine street.

Milwaukee and Elston Trails.

The Milwaukee trail, entering at Devon and Austin avenues, covered the route followed in 1849 by the Northwest plank road and still later by Milwaukee avenue. The Elston trail, which became a crooked wagon track, branched off from the Milwaukee trail between Devon and Peterson avenues.

The Clybourn trail had its inception in an Indian village and ended at Fort Dearborn, entering the city at Foster and California avenues. The most important artery of Indian traffic from the northern regions was the Green Bay trail, which entered at Damen avenue and Howard street and became what is known as Clark street. The Barry Point trail came into the city at Roosevelt road and Cicero avenue and continued along 5th avenue to a junction with the Lake trail.

From the south, the Vincennes and Cottage Grove trails led toward Fort Dearborn, which was located at the river near Michigan avenue. The former entered at 119th street and Damen avenue, ran north on Vincennes and South Park avenues, joining the Cottage Grove trail at Pershing road and then continuing along State street to the fort. Used earliest by the Pottawatomie Indians, this trail was first known as Hubbard's trail, and by 1834 had become the established arterial route from Wabash county, Indiana. The Hoosiers wagoners, using the plot of open, dry ground between State street and the lake for camping gave Wabash avenue its name.

Southward Trail Near Lake.

The Cottage Grove trail entered at 138th street and Ewing avenue, ran northwest to the Calumet river at 123d street, and then wandered through Jackson park and out on to State street. It was the most easterly path around the swampy lake front.

The Archer trail, one of the oldest, was a continuation of the Des Plaines River Canoe trail, entering the city at 53d street and Cicero avenue, to become Archer avenue. Paralleling what is now Ogden avenue was the old Portage trail, which Miss Shapiro describes as "part of the Chicago-Illinois river route, one of the natural thoroughfares leading from the St. Lawrence river to the Mississippi, and one of 'the five great keys to the continent.'"

"Today Chicago is considered one of the world's most progressive cities," reads the report, "a fact often ascribed to its favorable location. But viewed on the map it is hard to see why this site was more favorable than that of St. Joseph, Mich., Calumet, Michigan City, or Milwaukee. In fact, the great amount of waste lands in its immediate vicinity tended to direct white settlers in search of farm lands elsewhere in the region. It is only when we sketch the Indian trails and settlements that we understand why the traders and adventurers from the east found here a choice location. Chicago today has grown far beyond the meeting place of the Indian trails, but had these same trails met at some other equally favorable spot, Chicago might be a tributary to Michigan City or Milwaukee today."

SOUTH PARK COP SUES TO REGAIN SERGEANT'S RANK

Frank A. Countryman, south park policeman, has filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the Superior court to force the south park board to reinstate him in the rank of sergeant. The petition holds that the board is without power to demote a civil service employé, and can punish him only through fine or discharge.

The petition also stated the action of the board to be unjust. Countryman was demoted in December, 1928, after a former landlord complained to the board that he had broken a lease and had failed to pay rental of $105. Countryman declares that he left the apartment because it was infested with rats and mice. He is a veteran of the American and Canadian expeditionary forces and was once commended for bravery in a battle with two gunmen. He has been a member of the force for nine years.

All events were planned by the boys in their club meetings, and the numbers were presented without assistance from instructors. The exhibition opened with a grand march at the conclusion of which the boys grouped themselves in a "Y" formation and were led in a cheer by John Pritchard and Jack Bernhardt.

Friday evening the boys attended the Y. M. C. A. college gymnite exhibition.

Mr. Hoffman indicated that the site would probably be near 73d street, east of Wabash avenue.

Other business that will be considered will be the work of the street and alleys committee, traffic conditions at the State street market between 70th and 72d streets, condition of the street car tracks, and the proposal to make 71st street a through street from the lake west to the city limits.

Easter is coming! And so we have the Bunny Family Easter Party Cut-Outs. Can you cut out and dress the Bunny Family?

Just follow these simple instructions: Every Sunday for eight Sundays, starting today, the Chicago Tribune will print a colored Cut-Out of a member of the Bunny Family. Each Cut-Out will contain several dresses or costumes. Take scissors, cut out the Bunny and the costumes. Then dress the Bunny in the costume which you believe looks best. The small extensions marked "FOLD BACK" are to fasten the dress to the Bunny and should not be visible in front when the figure is complete.

Each of the costumes printed above fits the Bunny. Try them. Which do you like best? Hold the one you like best.

Then get Cut-Out No. 2 with next Sunday's Tribune. This will be another member of the Bunny Family. Another will appear in Cut-Out No. 3 the following Sunday, etc. There will be a Mamma Bunny, a Papa Bunny, and little Bunnies.

Save them all until you have the complete set of 8. Then mail them to "Bunnies," The Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1720, Chicago, Illinois.

CAUTION! Don't send them in one at a time. Wait until you have the complete set of 8. All entries, to win a prize, must consist of all the eight Bunnies. Each Bunny must be dressed in ONE of the printed costumes —the one you like best.

You may paste or pin the costume on the Bunnies. You may paste them on paper, on cardboard, in scrap books, or any other form to send them in.

The Chicago Tribune will pay $2,500 in Cash Prizes to the children who send in the neatest and best entries. See the prize list opposite.

You can use the prize money to buy anything you want. Or you can start or add to a Savings Account at the Bank. This offer is open to every girl and boy except children of Tribune employes. You pay nothing. All entries must be in within 15 days after Cut-Out No. 8 is published.

You do not have to buy The Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the Cut-Outs and send in your copies. The Tribune may be examined at our Offices or Public Libraries free of charge. In case of ties duplicate prizes will be paid.

Start today with Cut-Out No. 1 printed above. Then get Cut-Out No. 2 with next Sunday's Tribune. It's great fun and you may win a big cash prize!

"Yeast is used constantly in my clinic . . its results are Astonishing"

. . says world authority on nutrition, Professor Dr. Carl von Noorden, Geheimrat

A MAGICAL NAME in medicine —Dr. Carl von Noorden . . . founder of Europe's most exclusive clinic, at Frankfort, Germany . . . bearer of titles from all the governments of Europe! Each year hundreds of Americans go thousands of miles for his advice. He says:

"Yeast is used constantly in my clinic. Its results are astonishing. Its regular use can in a short time bring about normal functioning of the bowels. It increases secretion of the digestive juices, improves appetite. For over thirty years it has been used, with surprising results, to cure certain diseases of the skin.

"No other food—and yeast is a food —is richer in vitamin B. When 'irradiated,' it contains great quantities of the 'sunshine' vitamin D.

"Vitamin D strengthens endurance, fortifies against colds and disease. In those of growing age it builds strong bones and teeth. In expectant and nursing mothers it aids in preventing the softening of bones and teeth so common at these periods and protects the unborn or nursing child against rickets.

"Yeast has an extraordinary tonic effect on the whole system."

Learn for yourself the joy of new energy, health, life! Eat 3 cakes daily of Fleischmann's Yeast. Each cake is rich in two precious vitamins—B and D. At grocers', restaurants, soda fountains. Directions on label.

(Left) "How I dreaded those terrible colds and winter sicknesses!" writes Mrs. R. F. Finneran of Columbus, Ohio. "I felt sluggish, listless—due perhaps to staying indoors too much . . . After eating yeast, my sluggishness disappeared. I had worlds of new pep. And I found I could go through a whole winter without a cold."

(Right) "I am a commercial artist and sometimes have to work late into the night to get my drawings out," writes John C. Pellew of New York. "A year ago I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Fleischmann's Yeast was what pulled me through. It worked wonders in my run down condition."

Famous Specialists Give Simple Health Rule—

Europe's greatest stomach specialist, Dr. Maurice Delort, says: "Yeast stimulates secretion of digestive juices and encourages the working of stomach and intestines."

Dean of Stockholm's skin specialists, Professor Dr. Johan Almkvist, says: "For 25 years I have used yeast for skin troubles."

Austria's great internal specialist, Hofrat Professor Dr. Gustav Singer, declares: "Yeast is the best intestinal purifier known."

"Some time ago, when my system was run down, I ate Fleischmann's Yeast with most gratifying results," writes Mrs. Katherine G. Eaton of St. Petersburg, Fla. "My husband also ate it, and was amazed at the results. It gave us both a robust appetite and plenty of energy."

WHERE AT LEAST ELEVEN PERSONS WERE HURLED TO DEATH and more than one hundred others were injured in the terrific crash last Sunday night at Kenosha. Working in the rain, rescuers quickly mobilized to remove the bodies from the wrecked cars of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric train. (Photograph from Associated Press.)

PILED UP IN THE DITCH—Speeding Chicago-ward at fifty miles an hour, the North Shore electric in the Kenosha tragedy struck a small coupe, rocked violently, left the rails, ploughed into a northbound electric freight train, and then hurtled over an eight foot embankment. There the five steel coaches folded up alongside one another in fantastic array. (Photograph from Associated Press.)

CHICAGO ATTORNEY JOINS ARRAIGNERS OF VOLSTEAD LAW — Ralph M. Shaw (at the right) made a deep impression on the house judiciary committee with testimony against prohibition at the Washington hearings on pending wet legislation. With him is Benedict Crowell, former assistant secretary of war, another of the liberal witnesses. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

ALL THAT WAS LEFT OF THE COACHES—A Milwaukee motorist's error in crossing the North Shore electric's tracks caused the most disastrous wreck that ever occurred on that line. The automobile was wedged in between two trains, whipping both of them off the tracks and plunging week-end vacationists into a scene of panic and horror. (Tribune photograph.)

VISUALIZING INTERESTING LETTERS — Castel Peles, Rumanian royal palace, is situated at Sinaia, in the heart of the Carpathian mountains. Today's winner in The Tribune's Interesting Letters contest was sent from Castel Peles by Queen Marie shortly after the death of King Ferdinand. (Photograph from Associated Press.)

WHEN CHICAGO POLICE MOPPED UP A REDDISH TINGE—Scene at the city hall as loop workers congregated to watch patrolmen's sticks disperse a thousand young demonstrators who denominated themselves radicals. Parading with the slogan of "We Want Work and Wages," the marchers tied up traffic until the police intervened. (Tribune photograph.)

"my customers all come back for more"

writes M. M. Somers—a restaurant proprietor

Corn Products Refining Co.
New York City

Gentlemen:

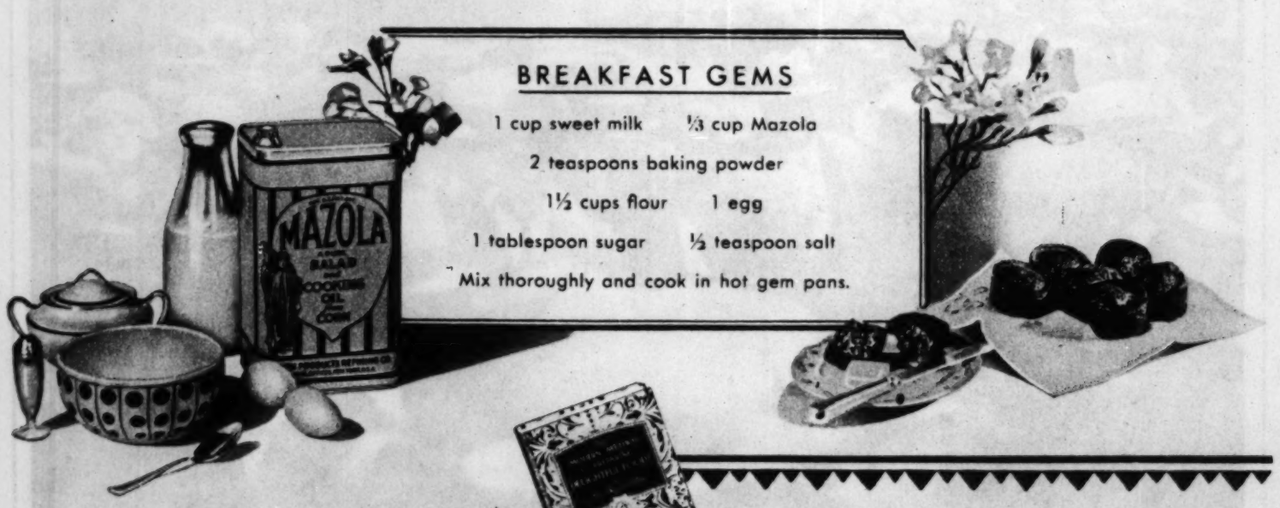
I am a proprietor of a restaurant and find it necessary to give my patrons good food, well cooked. I obtain the good food, and after trying several oils, have decided Mazola is the easiest, best and most economical. It blends so well with vinegar that my salads are always delicious. I use it for all frying—it gives food that "tasty" taste so much desired.

I have a great call in the morning for "Breakfast Gems" which I make according to my recipe below, cutting down, of course, on all ingredients, as the housewife does not require my large amount of ingredients.

Mazola really is a perfect oil. They often say you can get indigestion from eating in restaurants—but my customers all come back to me for more—so I must be giving them good things to eat. I really and truly believe a great part of my success comes from using Mazola.

Sincerely,

M. M. Somers, New Haven, Conn.



BREAKFAST GEMS

1 cup sweet milk ⅓ cup Mazola
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ cups flour 1 egg
1 tablespoon sugar ½ teaspoon salt
Mix thoroughly and cook in hot gem pans.

This letter expresses the confidence thoughtful people everywhere have in the purity, quality and wholesome goodness of Mazola. As an excellent oil for all salad dressings—a cooking oil that makes good food taste better—and a perfect shortening—Mazola enjoys the preference of millions of America's progressive housewives.

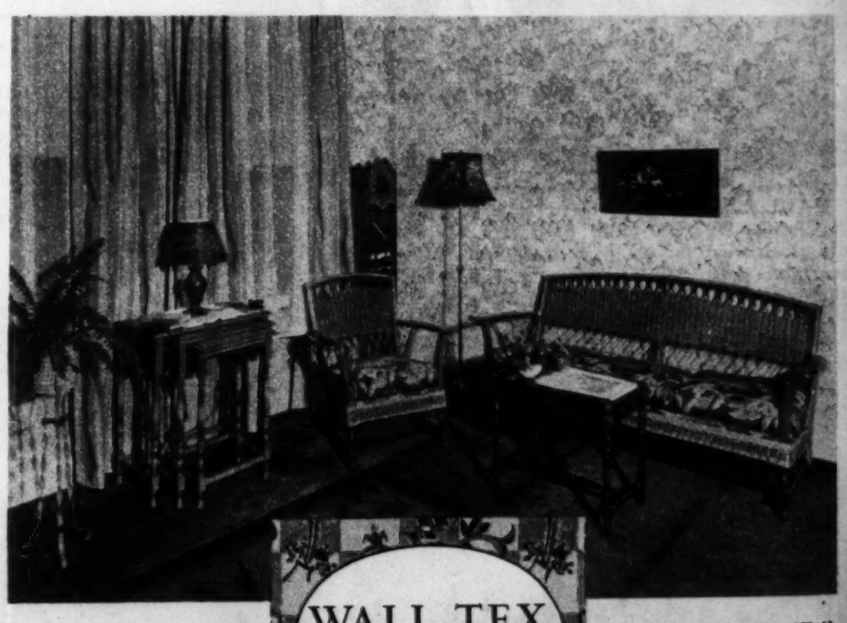
With Wall-Tex, even the most ordinary home can glow with beauty!



WALL-TEX
Durable Wall Covering

Of course, there are many ways to beautify the home . . . if you wish to spend a fortune. But here's a way to have the home you've longed for without a great expense!

Walls hold the secret . . . any decorator will tell you that walls are the most important of all interior problems. Walls can make or mar the whole interior scheme. Cover walls with Wall-Tex and see how bright and beautiful the home becomes! Note the added cheerfulness of this sun-room—a Wall-Tex pattern of Egyptian motif was selected as the perfect background.

The beauty that Wall-Tex imparts remains for years. Dirt and dust may be sponged away. For Wall-Tex is a durable fabric permeated with quality oils. Ordinary plaster cracks are permanently hidden. New ones are prevented. Years of service prove the economy of Wall-Tex. And should you wish, you may use Wall-Tex as a base for plaster, paint and lacquer treatments.

There are many new Wall-Tex patterns for the modest income. Write name and address on margin of page and send for booklet, "The Modern Trend in Wall Coverings."

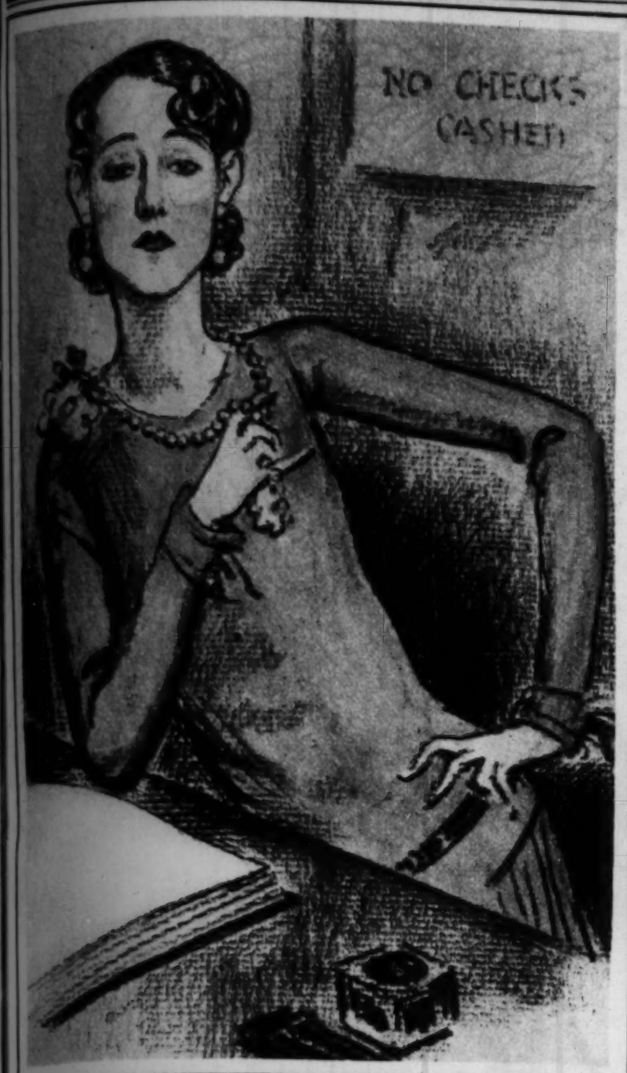
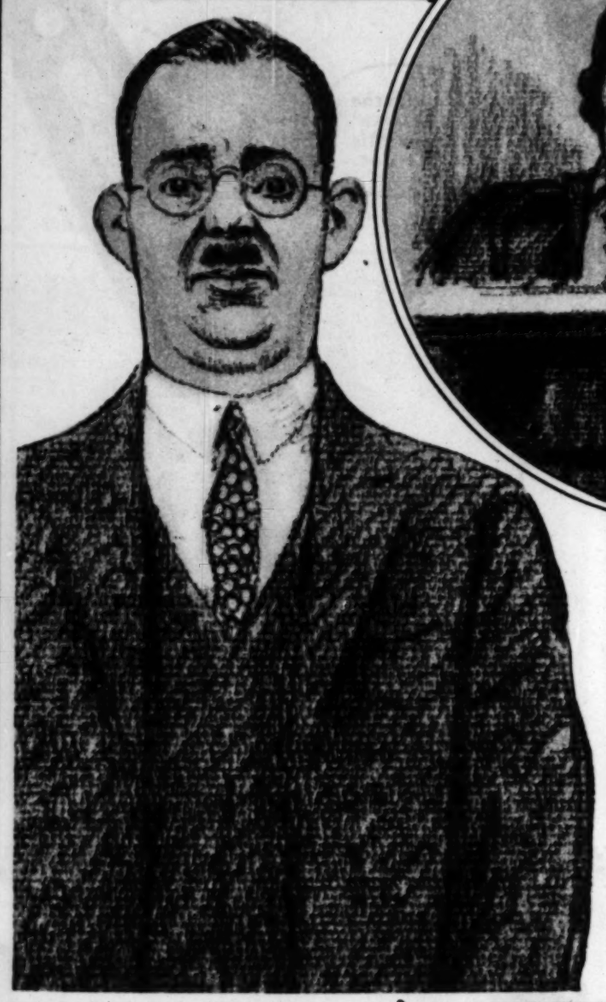
The Room Clerk

By W. E. Hill

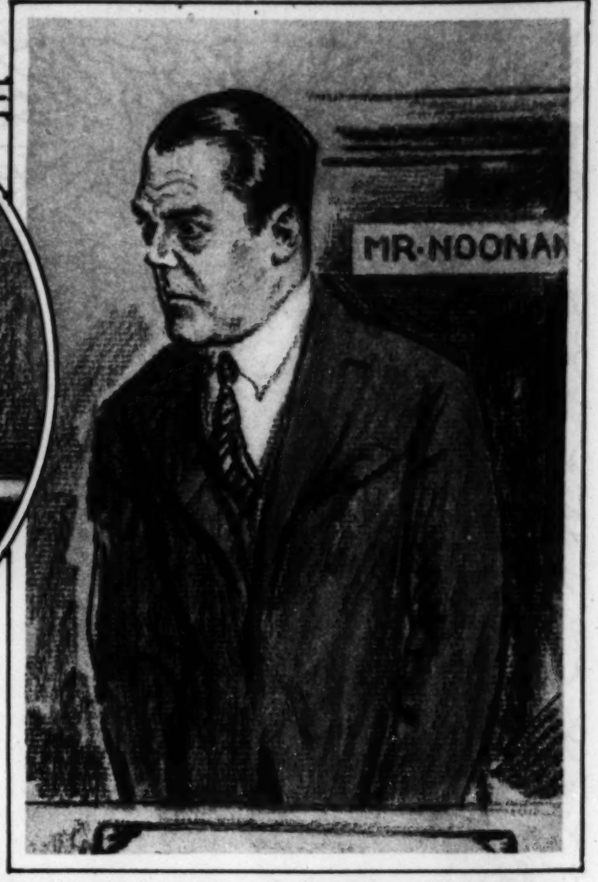
[Copyright: 1930; By The Chicago Tribune.]



The country hotel. This is Sevilla, lovely daughter of Proprietor Brophy of the Hotel Brophy-Ritz. She is minding the hotel register this a. m., and with what an air of hauteur and dolce-far-niente, which is Italian for "I don't have to work if I don't want to." A drummer from a hardware concern allowed it was a nice day today on his way to breakfast, and Sevilla murmured coldly, "I seen better." From which it is easy to see that Sevilla Brophy is a girl not to be trifled with.



Meet Miss McGuffy, floor clerk of the fifth floor at Hotel Swatt, one of those places where they have to be so careful. Miss McGuffy is at the moment looking very much askance at something getting out of the elevator.



Night room clerk. Night clerks are born, not made. Most of them can't sleep in the daytime except by fits and starts, and get practically no beauty sleep at all. A night clerk's bedroom is usually just over a school playground, or next door to a lot of riveting, or directly under a player piano that does "Kiss Me Again."

Family hotel. "There's an enormous roach frisking around my bathtub and I ask you as a favor, Mr. Porous, to please do something right away. And don't send Joe, the porter, up, because he was very rude to me yesterday!" (Just a sample of what a room clerk in a family hotel has to battle with during working hours.)

The commercial house. Mr. Ed Sitz, the genial room clerk of the Hotel La Villa, a hostelry (see folder) catering especially to traveling salesmen and theatrical folk who appreciate, respectively, commodious sample rooms and a good home table. Ed is gazing coldly upon the world right now, due to the fact that a girl dancing unit playing the vaudeville split week has but this instant wheedled a terrible rate out of him.

A room clerk has almost no time for introspection or meditation. There's always something. If it isn't a new arrival, or some one wanting to know if the Cleopatra club meets in the Rose ballroom or the Italian lounge, it's Miss Nusbaum, the assistant cashier, wanting the date of his graduation from high school and the size of his neckband, which, added to the current year and divided by four, will give his age. Assistant cashiers dearly love mathematical puzzles!

The winter resort. A room clerk who works in a resort hotel has to be a swell looker and be able to register refined sex appeal while on duty. Now and then he must be able to say, "Stamps at the newsstand" or "You must see the head porter about that," and maybe fuss around with the sorted mail, the idea being that bored lady guests hanging around the lobby can look over and get an eyeful of boyish charm.

The assistant room clerk. While the regular room clerk is pretending to look up a reservation and generally stalling till the occupant of 308 is checked out, Miss Timkins' job is to step forward and smile a devastating smile, showing all of her uppers and most of her lowers, thereby disarming the newly arrived guest, so that he will accept a court room without protest.

The personality boy. Donald is learning the hotel business from the ground up, so to speak. He is room clerk now, and a very personable one. He's a great kidder, is Donald, and should a guest come forward with a check to be cashed, Donald will make believe drown and cry "Help" as he sinks out of sight behind the desk. Should said guest still ask to have the check cashed, Donald will counter with "Hey! Would you kick a defenseless woman in the face?" Smart boy, Donald!

RESTLESS SAMOA

STRIFE IN A SOUTH SEA EDEN—Eastern Samoa has been an American possession since 1900. Western Samoa, a former German colony, was mandated to New Zealand by the league of nations following the war. Nine Samoans and one white policeman were killed and forty-nine Samoans wounded on Dec. 28 at Apia, Western Samoa, during a riot which climaxed agitation against New Zealand rule. Western Samoan chieftains wish to cede their territory to America.

LOOKING UPWARDS, these three are Frank Richardson, Lola Lane, and Joseph Wagstaff. They will be seen in the coming Fox production, "Let's Go Places."

BERNICE CLAIRE, formerly of the San Carlos Opera company, is declared by technicolor experts to be "a perfect type of beauty" for color photography. You can see her in "No, No, Nanette."

CORINNE GRIFFITH looks smart here, doesn't she? She's wearing a white flannel beret (she has thirty-five berets, says the press agent) and a Patou coat of white leather. The latter slips over the head and has a zipper fastening. "Back Pay," from the Fannie Hurst story, is Miss Griffith's latest picture for First National.

LORETTA YOUNG (now Mrs. Grant Withers) is seen posing with Shemseh. Shemseh is a pure blooded Arabian stallion imported from England in 1926. He will be introduced in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles.

CLARA BOW herself. She's well again after her long illness. Following her brief vacation in New York she'll go back to work at the Paramount studios in Hollywood.

Bottled Sunshine builds them!

To most people, it is an interesting scientific discovery. To mothers of babies, it is vital news . . . this story of a strange factor in sunshine which babies must have to build strong straight bones and sound teeth.

This factor is known as Vitamin D. Without it, your baby cannot utilize the milk and vegetables that you so painstakingly prepare for him, to build good bones and teeth.

Of course sunshine is the greatest natural source of Vitamin D.

But under modern living conditions, it is hardly possible for your baby to get enough sunshine directly on his bare skin, to supply the Vitamin D he needs.

Clouds, fog, smoke and clothing shut out the precious rays that protect— the ultra-violet rays. These rays cannot even go through ordinary window glass.

You cannot depend upon sunshine as a day-in, day-out source of supply. But there is something you can depend upon. Good cod-liver oil —Bottled Sunshine!

In good cod-liver oil there is an ever abundant, constant supply of Vitamin D. This is why cod-liver oil has come to be as regular a part of infant feeding as milk and orange juice.

Baby specialists are always insistent on the use of good cod-liver oil, because they know that different oils vary in their content of Vitamin D.

Squibb's is a favorite with physicians because it is guaranteed to be very rich not only in Vitamin D, the bone-and-tooth building vitamin, but also in Vitamin A, which promotes growth and increases resistance to certain infections.

Be sure that your baby gets a cod-liver oil that has been tested and proved to be the highest quality. Your physician will tell you that there is none better than Squibb's.

A New Mint-flavored Cod-liver Oil

Expectant mothers also need Bottled Sunshine to protect their own teeth from decay, as well as help build good teeth and bones for the coming child. Squibb's new Mint-flavored Cod-Liver Oil is so easy to take — try it. You can get it at all drug stores.

Lovers of BEER

There is now a Malt-and-Hop brew better than the best of old . . .

THE best malt-and-hop brew we ever created is at your command today. It is called Atlas Special Brew.

Brewed from the finest barley malt and Bohemian hops. Sterilized by hours of boiling. Cooled in filtered air. Aged for months, as in the old days. Pasteurized after bottling.

Most of the alcohol is removed by evaporation. But the esters and aldehydes remain—the prime invigorating factors.

The zest is there, the sparkle and foam, the flavor and aroma. The digestive helps are in it, and the aids to sleep. The tonic qualities, the soothing factors, the delights are there.

Not a Makeshift

Atlas Special Brew is not a "near-beer," not an imitation. Never was a malt-and-hop brew made with more care and skill.

There was never a purer brew. Even the water we use is specially treated to match the brews of Europe. Each bottle is certified.

Less alcohol, of course, but that you will not miss. Were you told that this was an old reserve, you could not discover the difference.

A Night-Cap—A Tonic

Atlas Special Brew has the old soothing effects. Drink it at bedtime as an aid to sleep.

It has the diastase and peptase. Drink it at mealtime as a help to digestion. It has the esters and aldehydes—invigorators. It has the hops. Drink it as a tonic. It has all you loved of flavor and sparkle in the old-time brews.

Don't go without it. Above all, don't substitute with something wretched and impure.

Taste this Atlas Special Brew. It is supplied by over 15,000 neighborhood stores in Chicago and surrounding states. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles. If you should have any trouble getting it, write or telephone us for the name of your nearest dealer. Atlas Brewing Company, 2107 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago, Ill. the
that does not heat

Here is a secret in choosing a perfect face powder: The most exquisite powder will not stay on if it heats!

Boyer has compounded a face powder unaffected by the chemistry of your skin. The very feel of this powder is different . . . and it is different! It puts an immediate end to shiny skin and the powdered effect lasts for hours. It contains no rice to heat and produce a blotchy appearance . . . no greasy cream to clog the pores.

Don't envy a well-groomed appearance

Perhaps you, too, have envied the well-groomed appearance of those who use Boyer's Flowers of Beauty Face Powder . . . have envied their smooth, cool, freshly powdered appearance . . . so sure . . . so sophisticated. You, too, may always look your best with a face powder that does not wilt, a face powder unaffected by bodily heat. No other powder duplicates Boyer's cool, clinging, beautifying effect.

Boyer's Flowers of Beauty Face Powder is perfumed with a rare and subtle odor that awakens desire and accentuates charm and allure. The shades are ready-blended and matchless in their simple perfection. Your druggist can give you exactly the right shade.

Surely you will want to use Boyer's. A large box with puff, only $1.00 . . . a glass tube for the purse, only 25 cents.

"But it's so easy to have a skin as lovely as mine . . if you'll just use Du Barry every day!

These new Du Barry Beauty Preparations and the new Du Barry Hand Principle bring the Beauty Salon to your own home!

It's their simplicity of use . . . and their quickly effective results . . . that are making women advise their friends to use Richard Hudnut's new Du Barry Beauty Preparations every day.

For these exquisite new creams and lotions and oils are the result of the most scientific research in the Richard Hudnut laboratories both here and in Paris . . . a quest which led to the discovery of several rare, unusual ingredients which make these preparations at one time pure, safe and effective for daily use in the home.

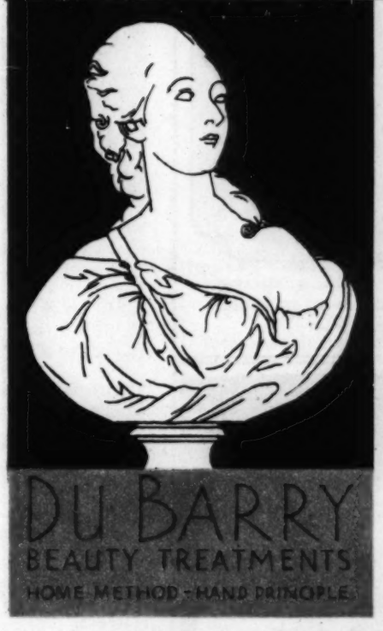
And it is daily care that counts in retaining . . . or regaining . . . your beauty. That's why Richard Hudnut devised these Du Barry Beauty Treatments for home use . . . a complete series to correct the marks that age leaves on your skin. Using the new Du Barry Hand Principle and Beauty Preparations, each day you can give yourself the selfsame sort of treatment you would receive at the Beauty Salon. And at less cost, too!

First, a thorough cleansing with a soft cream that liquefies the moment it touches the skin, penetrating the pores and bringing the dust and grime to the surface. Then an application of a tonic lotion that removes excess cream and cools and closes the pores. Finally . . . depending on your skin's needs . . . gentle massage with creams and oils at the spots where lines appear . . . or rhythmic smoothing and slapping motions with the palms to stimulate sluggish circulation, strengthen sagging muscles or refine the skin's texture.

You'll see the results so quickly. And soon your friends will be saying to you, "I wish my skin were as lovely as yours!"

And . . . just to show you how easy it all is . . .

THIS IS THE DU BARRY WAY TO IMPROVE THE APPEARANCE OF THE CHEEKS • First thoroughly cleanse the face with Du Barry Cleansing Cream and Du Barry Skin Tonic and Freshener. Then lubricate the cheek area well with Tissue Cream or Skin Food. (Tissue Cream is best for normal or oily skins; Skin Food best for overdry skins.) Rub the palmar muscles thoroughly with Muscle Oil. Begin a rhythmical slapping of the cheeks with the open palm, just hard enough to arouse the circulation. . . Note the suction that the palm and Muscle Oil create against the cheek. This is a marvelous treatment, too, for bringing up the natural flow of color to sallow, tired faces.



Du Barry Special Cleansing Cream. Frees skin of dust and impurities. ═══ $1.50, $2.50, $4

Du Barry Skin Tonic and Freshener. A mild astringent which dissolves all traces of cleansing cream. $1.00, $1.75

Du Barry Tissue Cream. For normal or oily skins. Has special softening qualities. $1.50, $2.5

Du Barry Special Skin Food. Lubricates dry skins. ═══ $1.50, $2.5

Du Barry Special Astringent. Subdues oiliness of the skin. ═══ $1.50, $2.5

Du Barry Muscle Oil. Slightly astringent. Stimulates the tissues. ═══ $1.5

Du Barry Eye Lotion. Refreshes and soothes the eyes. ═══ $1.5

Du Barry Pore Cream. Refines enlarged pores. ═══ $1.5

Du Barry Beauty Lotion. An effective astringent lotion. Also an excellent powder base. $1.5

Du Barry Hand Beauty Cream. A softening, whitening cream. ═══ $1.5

Du Barry Face Powder. A fine-textured powder in skin tones. ═══ $2.5

Du Barry Foundation Cream. A finishing, protective powder base. ═══ $1.5

THIS IS THE DU BARRY WAY TO HAVE A LOVELY NECK AND THROA

"First a thorough cleansing with Du Barry Cleansing Cream and Skin Tonic and Freshener. Then smooth Tissue Cream or Skin Food generously over the neck, working with both hands from the upper chest to the chin (Tissue Cream is best for normal or oily skins; Skin Food is a special lubricant for skins that are dry and rough). Your hands should circle the neck, pressing, smoothing gently upward along the throat column. When the cream is worked in, oil the inner surface of the hand, palm and fingers with Muscle Oil, and repeat the upward smoothing motion with alternate hands . . . Then saturate cotton with Special Astringent and smooth from the base of the neck upward, using the cushion tips of the fingers."

Wedding Bells Ring In Shining, Lustrous Satin and Ring Out Sadder Flat Crepes; Soft Pinks, Blues and Mauves of Bridesmaids' Gowns Will Be Popular This Spring.

Navy blue velvet printed in bright circles of all colors made this frock worn to the wedding by the Princesse Jean-Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge. A belt of the velvet fastened with a jeweled buckle outlined the natural waist. A little circular peplum gave Lelong's favorite outline.

The Princess Aymone de Faucigny-Lucinge wore a Lelong gown of white crepe satin for her marriage with the Comte de Brantes. Her long veil was of white tulle and she carried a sheaf of white lilies.

The Marquise de Brantes was the personification of grace in this flower printed frock of mousseline. Two long full panels, attached at the shoulders and trailing toward the heels, added height to the silhouette.

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—The Paris note has come back home. For a while the capricious damsel fancied herself as a paper doll; then she took a garconne turn at dressing up as a boy; now, tired of make-believe she has decided to take the bridal veil.

Peace is beginning to penetrate the European consciousness as a fact. Everything is being stabilized, from francs to hemlines. Everyone is getting married, from princesses to pauperines. Sweet bachelor girls and coy benedicts are following the royal example and founding families. Marriage is much smarter than divorce, nowadays. Wives and mothers put it all over sirens in the style Blue Book; even sirens outrate garconnes; but the queen of Paris chic is the 1930 bride. Her textures govern the surfaces of our evening frocks, her bridesmaid's pastel colors tint our afternoons, her favorite flowers set the decorative fashion for our most brilliant functions.

Parisian social life is retiring from the cafe and restaurant into the home. You know, of course, that notwithstanding the naughty legends of Gay Paree, the French are pre-eminently a home loving people. And the mode, which reacts like a little sensitive plant to every fluctuation of the tides of society, naturally follows suit.

The Paris winter weddings offer many valuable style hints, not only to prospective brides and bridesmaids, but to all girls who are candidates for the position—that is to say, girls in general. "O, happy bridesmaid, be a happy bride!" don't you know.

Nineteen hundred and thirty trousseaus are costly, without ostentation. They are feminine, but not fussy. Wedding bells ring in shining satins and ring out sadder flat crepes. It is natural that brides should drape themselves in satin robes, for satin is the most feminine of all materials, because its lustrous surface accentuates curves, while flat crepes minimize them. This hint, dropped in passing, may be wisely picked up by brides' mothers, to whom the years have perhaps added a slight tendency to rotundity.

The vaporous tulle of the bridal veil is liked by Paris creators for filmy skirts. Chanel and Augustabernard, to name only two, have both wrought miracles with this ethereal stuff. The soft pinks, blues, mauves and water greens which turn the bridesmaids into a living rainbow, promise to be popular colors for youthful, spring evening frocks. Molyneux featured them in his southern collection and they are already leading that bright fashion battalion which dances up and down the Riviera coast from Antibes to Monte Carlo and back to Cannes again.

Every girl wants to look her best on her wedding day, so late winter weddings may well set the tone for formal secular gatherings, later on. Wedding clothes must be, first of all, ladylike. Marriage in France, at any rate, is a solemn as well as a festive occasion. Two ceremonies are usually undergone by smart couples. First, there is the legal marriage at the Mairie; then the whole cortege proceeds to the church where the union is blessed in the religious ceremeny, and the bride and groom exchange rings, so the burning question: "Where did I put it?" is justly shared by both parties.

Paris brides carry their bouquet to the Mairie, but they replace it by an antique ivory missal, preferably an heirloom, for the church ceremony. The smartest brides, this winter, preferred a sheaf of lilies to the traditional roses, and this lent them the angelic air of Rossetti's Blessed Damosel.

This dual character of the French marriage ceremony has inspired the Paris couturier to prodigies of delicacy in the creation of wedding clothes. They make gowns that are innocent and dignified, gay, restrained and graceful. Satin is prime favorite, of course. Some smart brides preferred ivory, oyster white, or palest water green to the classic pure white. Others evoked snow queens in supple white velvet. Still others wore white faille.

Simple, flowing lines are best for wedding gowns. They may be cut princess as to bodice, ample as to skirt and with long, tight sleeves. Melisande might have worn some of the freer interpretations of the leading line, with trailing sleeves echoing trailing skirts. All have long, regal trains. Plain tulle veils predominated in the 1930 winter weddings. Worn falling over the face to below the waist in front and to the hem in back, they are ravishingly becoming. Little jeweled caps to hold the veil in place strike a smartly medieval note in keeping with the long Juliette wedding dresses.

Later, when the veil has been laid away in the old chest carved with the family arms, the bridal cap makes an utterly charming evening coiffure. Of course, if you're lucky enough to inherit one of those ancestral veils of fabulous lace you'll wear that, or you may wear a tulle veil edged all round with Point de Venise. Slippers are best made of the same material as the dress.

A great deal of fantasy may preside over the bridesmaid's costumes. Jean Patou likes to dress them in delicately tinted satins. Worth proposes flounces of fairly flowered marquesette. Lanvin decks them in crisp faille or taffeta.

One of the most brilliant of the winter weddings from the sartorial as well as the social point of view was that of the Princess Aymone de Faucigny-Lucinge and the Comte de Brantes. It united two of the first families of France, whose names are synonymous with chivalry and chic. Lucien Lelong, the creator par excellence of ladylike clothes, was chosen to dress the bride and her cortege, whose costumes illustrate this article.

The bride wore white crêpe satin, with simple semi-fitted bodice, moderate rounded decollete, higher in the back, and long, tight sleeves. Fullness was given to the skirt by means of petal godets in front which curved at the top into a tightly fitted yoke round the hips. At each side, a series of four petal godets mounted in a staircase curve echoing the yoke, descended to meet in the back and billow into a long, voluminous train. The white tulle veil fastened to a jewel embroidered cap trailed after the train. The bride carried a sheaf of white lilies.

This trailing gown of blue velvet was worn by the Princesse Guy de Faucigny-Lucinge at the Faucigny-Lucinge-Brantes wedding. A double paneled train echoes the double paneled drapery on the back of the corsage.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

Evening gowns of lace, worn over satin slips of contrasting color, are appearing along the Riviera.

Many a smart bride this spring is wearing a lace or jeweled cap instead of a veil.

Gray and navy blue are two of the most popular evening colors seen along the Azure Coast.

Pale blue for the bride's dress and ivory white for the bridesmaids is a recent Paris color scheme.

Hand carved ebony handcuffs make the newest sports bracelets, which are especially recommended for the bride.

The Princesse Guy de Faucigny-Lucinge wore velvet in that wonderful Lelong blue. The bodice followed a slender bolero line. Two narrow, slightly flaring panels fastened just under the neckline and caught under the upper section of the double yoke tightly moulding the hips, added a grace to the back. Flaring petal panels lent length to the skirt at the sides, while in back two flat petal panels trailed into a double train.

Velvet was also chosen by the Princess Jean-Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge in navy blue printed with bright circles of all colors. Extreme simplicity characterized this frock with its round neckline, long, tight sleeves and circular ankle length skirt. A little circular peplum relieved the tight moulding of the skirt over the hips.

The Marquise de Brantes wore a cloudy frock of mousseline printed all over in a delicate tracery of lacy flowers. The long, loose sleeves continued in raglan points to meet the pointed decollette on the shoulders. A cunningly cut hip yoke extended into longer rounded panels at each side of the skirt. Two loose, rounded panels attached at the shoulders and trailing to the ankles in back floated gracefully after the marquise when she walked.

In France where aristocracy spells army, the bridegroom is apt to be a gilded officer. When this is the case, his brother officers turn out to do him honor on his wedding day and the ceremony is embellished by pretty and picturesque touches. The newly married couple walk toward happiness under a canopy of crossed swords instead of a flower decked arch. Now that peace times have begun to seem permanent, one can give oneself up to whole hearted admiration of this martial spectacle, without that undertone of sadness which wartime and just after wartime weddings could not fail to inspire.

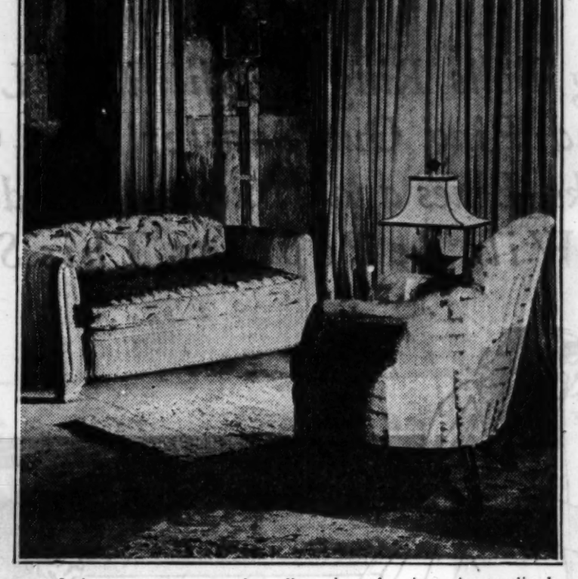
HOME FURNISHING AND DECORATING

Interesting Interiors

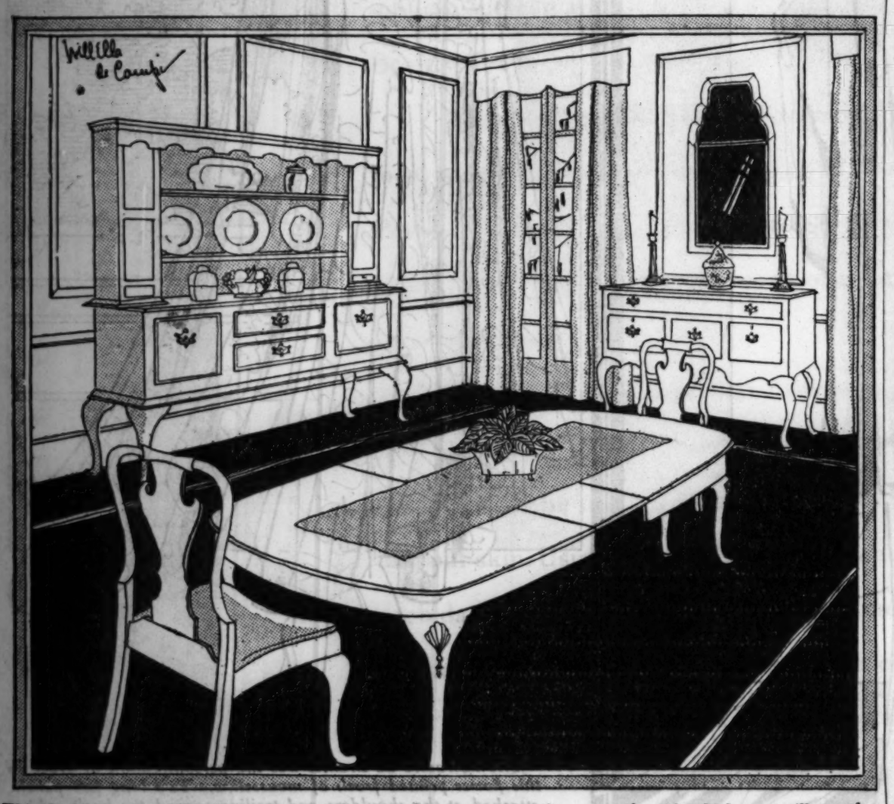
By Edith Weigle

This living room shows the use of conventional furniture against a modern background. The only contemporary article is the little black coffee table before the couch. The Chippendale wing chair stands next a revolving book table, across the hearth from a lovely English couch of dark brown mohair velvet with antique brass nail head trimming. The rug is decidedly modern, as are the andirons in cactus design, the fireplace and the decorative deer on the mantel. Wall paper in pastel horizontal bands of chartreuse against a soft yellow is imported and is washable. Calla lilies adapt themselves marvelously to modern decoration and yellow ones are here placed in a stunning black porcelain fluted vase.



It is not true to say that all modern furniture is startlingly different in line. The contemporary group of love seat, chair, table, and lamp would fit into the most conservative room without calling attention to itself by its newness. It follows the popular trend of combining two or more fabrics in its upholstery. The love seat uses frieze in pastel shades of rose, blue, and gray with a plain frieze that has been decorated in a leaf design, by hand. Th chair has a mahogany inset in the side and is covered with a fine damask.

The Queen Anne Period



This dining room typifies the dignity and grace of Queen Anne styles, examples of which are still popular.

Cabriole Leg, the Omission of the Stretcher, the Fiddle-Back Chair and the Increasing Use of Curves Rather than Straight Lines

QUEEN ANNE'S reign in England, 1702 to 1714, was ever so strongly marked in spite of its brevity. Though fundamentally based on the foreign elements and Dutch lines which had prevailed during the preceding reign of William and Mary, a genuine English style was developed during this early part of the eighteenth century. One of the notable qualities of the Queen Anne period was that of real comfort incorporated in sitting furniture. The stiff perpendicular lines of early days had been somewhat modified during the previous period, but it was during Queen Anne's reign that furniture was first made to conform to the lines of the human body.

Attention began to be paid more to form than to ornamentation. Carving was still employed to some extent, but in a more simple manner. Details of carving included the shell, mascaron, cartouche, swags of flowers, acanthus leaves, and a few classical designs. Straight lines were replaced by graceful curves. Underbracings disappeared, and the turned leg was superseded by the cabriole, which was everywhere apparent. The cabriole was occasionally given a shell ornament at the knee, and the foot was usually round, Dutch or splay.

Walnut continued to be the most favored wood, though other woods, chiefly oak, beech, holly, birch and yew, were used, as well. Veneering, lacquering and some marquetry were still among the popular types of decoration.

Most noteworthy among the productions of the day were chairs, tables, highboys, and cabinets. Among the chairs the most popular was the broad seated, cabriole legged fiddle-back. These were usually of walnut, plain or decorated, and may be considered direct forerunners of the Chippendale style. Front legs were almost invariably cabriole, and back legs sometimes straight or simply curved. Backs were high, with outlines formed by a continuous curve, and were shaped to fit the body. In the center of the back there was generally a solid splat in vase, fiddle or lyre shape. Broad, flat upholstered seats had curved front and sides and rounded corners. It might be stated that there was scarcely ever a single straight line in any Queen Anne chair.

Another type of chair which became popular at this time was the corner chair. These were square with rounded corners and with semi-circular back and arms running around two sides, and with the fourth corner and leg in front. Legs were cabriole and there were solid splats in the backs. Seats were rush, plain wood, or upholstered.

Windsor chairs and straight slat-back and banister back chairs were also introduced during Queen Anne's reign, but were used only in cottages and country districts.

Settees of the Queen Anne period differed from those of William and Mary's day in that they usually had a straight, slightly arched line across the back instead of the double hood, and the back was usually lower. Legs, of course, were cabriole, and the arms were generally rolled over and stuffed. They were sometimes carried up at the back to form wings. Velvets, needlepoint, and brocades were used for upholstery, and the trend toward great simplicity was evidenced by the disuse of elaborate fringes and tasseled trimmings. Two chair back settees, which are clearly described by their name, were also products of Queen Anne's day.

Gate legged tables continued to be popular, as they are to the present day. Among other types used for dining purposes at the time were cabriole legged drop leaf tables with club or claw and ball feet. These were usually four or five feet long and had one extra leg at each end which could be pulled out to support the leaves when they were lifted.

Small tables were made in many different styles. Card tables and tea tables usually had four cabriole legs. Card tables with turn-over hinged tops made their appearance, and tea tables with central supports and short, curved tripod legs were introduced for the first time. Tripod candle-stands too, were an innovation.

Buffets and dressers were made with characteristic cabriole legs, club feet and shaped "aprons" with drawers in the lower part. These were sometimes fitted with upper sections containing open shallow shelves to hold platters and plate.

Highboys increased in popularity and were made in great numbers. The six turned legs of the William and Mary style gave way to four short cabriole legs without underbracings. Tops were straight at first but gradually came to be made with broken-arch pediments. In many instances the upper parts of the highboys were detachable from the lower so that the lower sections might be used for lowboys. Lowboys, of course, were made separately, too, and were often used as dressing tables.

Bedsteads made at this time were a negligible feature, except in residences of great importance, in which instances they were exceedingly impressive. These stately bedsteads had tall, slender posts, either round, square, or octagonal, supporting high testers. Posts, testers, head and foot boards were usually upholstered or "strained" with fine velvet or silk material, showing little or no woodwork. There were few examples of these extravagant and magnificent creations, however.

Mirrors, as a rule, had broad, ovolo moulded frames with a double cyma motif at the top and were sometimes surmounted by a carved shell. In the taller mirrors the glass was usually in two sections with beveled edges, the upper piece overlapping the lower, with no wooden moulding to mark the division. Small mirrors of similar shape supported by uprights on little stands of drawers were often set on top of dressing tables or low chests of drawers.

Walls were usually paneled, either in oak or deal, and were frequently painted or decorated with landscapes. The upper part of the wall was divided into long panels, with shorter ones below.

The lovely dining room shown in the accompanying illustration is furnished with authentic Queen Anne pieces. Excellent reproductions of furniture of this type may be had at the better decorators' and furniture stores.

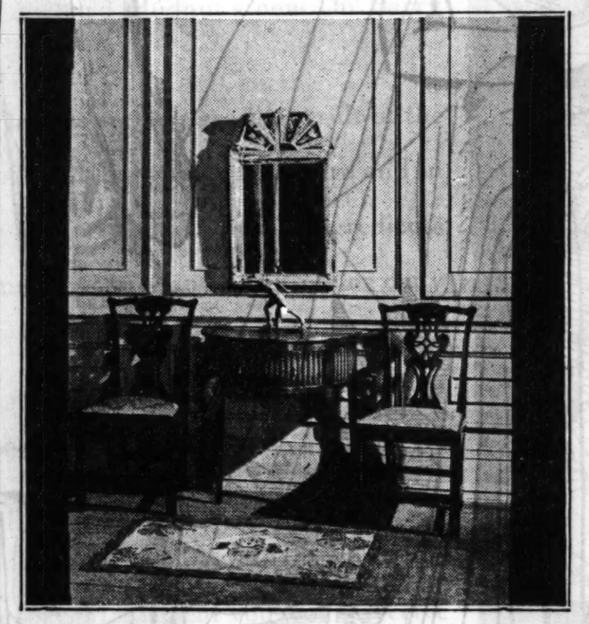
H. C.: In your living room with its many southern exposure windows you could have glass curtains of soft blue theatrical gauze. These should be quite full and should reach only to the sill. Over draperies of rust colored rep would be attractive.

G. R.: Brass beds can be painted or enameled successfully. With ivory and blue furniture in the west bedroom you could have light mauve walls, mauve organdy glass curtains, and draperies of flowered glazed chintz on a blue ground.

J. T. C.: Flowered cretonne curtains (they are washable, you know) would brighten up your kitchen.



Here is a charming group for a small entrance hall or for one side of a living or drawing room. The 18th century Dutch console is mahogany and its simple, undecorated legs are in harmony with those of the Chippendale chairs which also have plain stretchers and pierced slats. The unusual mirror is of Russian design and is framed in glass set at various angles, achieving a beautiful effect.

A Chippendale piecrust table is delightful for tea things or for a low lamp and a few books. Made of Cuban mahogany, hand carving adds to its beauty and enhances its value. This piece comes from the colony of Scotch and English craftsmen who turn out such masterly things.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Systematize the Child's Morning

Let Him Participate in the Responsibility of Getting to School on Time.

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A YOUNG mother who has a very congenial companionship with her children finds this one difficulty:

"My only trouble is with my little girl who has to be in school by 7:50, so must leave the house at 7:30. She gets up at 6:30. I have her breakfast and clothes all ready but she is so slow in dressing and eating that she is often late. I am all at sea as what to say to make her realize that it is important to be on time. I wish you would help me out. Is my method wrong or should I punish her for it in some way?"

Who hasn't groaned over getting the child to school on time? One would have to be a perfect mother with perfect children never to have experienced any morning off-to-school troubles—or else to be such a martinet as to get action through fear. This mother says, "Should I punish her?" We shall have to find some other way out. Let's see what we can do.

One of the first obstacles to remove from the morning routine is fatigue. The child who has to be awakened out of sleep can't get herself together as well and go through the motions of getting off in the morning as well as the rested child.

So one thing is to get the children to bed early enough. In the case of this little girl who has to make such an early start, a short rest in the afternoon when she comes home from school would be advisable. Then she will later get the most good from her afternoon play outdoors.

But that isn't enough. Being rested doesn't prevent children from lingering in the mornings.

There are three things in regard to time and children that we have to consider. First, children have a slow or deliberate tempo as a rule. Second, they are usually quite lacking in a sense of time. In a natural state, life is eternity to them. And third, they not only lack a sense of time but they lack that urge to keep moving uniformly or pushing steadily until they've gone through all their "stunts." They'll wash all right enough then stop, or dawdle, as we grownups call it. They'll eat—and stop to dream or do something quite unbusiness like for this time of day, which we call lingering. They don't keep plugging, unless they're trained to it. This has been my experience, especially when children are quite young.

So because of these three tendencies children have to be stage managed, at least for a while, in order to smooth the early part of school days. One very good way to do this is to apportion their time. For instance, suppose they must leave for school by 8:40. They may wake up much earlier than they need to, and perhaps in warm slippers and bathrobe frisk or feel around the house. Often children after they are out of bed take ten minutes to awaken. But when seven-thirty comes, you say, "Time to start dressing."

If you see things are going too slowly, give them a warning. "It's five minutes to eight. Breakfast soon." Because they know that sitting down at eight is a fixed plan they learn to speed up. If on the other hand, they finish dressing ahead of time, let them dawdle or talk until eight, then sit down to eat.

By 8:25 at the latest you consider that they must be through breakfast. Stop conversation if it threatens to get so interesting that the meal does not go forward. Hard hearted though it makes you seem, it is better than rushing and indigestion.

Finished eating at 8:25, they then have fifteen minutes in which to get their coats, handkerchiefs, and books together, to go to the bathroom, and depart. This is merely a suggestive schedule with technique, as we might say if we want to sound "swell." An entirely different system may fit your case if you are having morning struggles, this system does help.

Some such mapping out of the children's time yourself and keeping to it is of practical value in getting away from the nagging and scolding method, and even an unmethodical person can do this much systematizing. Mapping out their morning time with the children, if they are old enough, is much more impressive to them—and soon they get to the point of watching the time themselves.

The important thing is to instill enough sense of time to get them off in the morning without rushing, friction and nagging. You can explain it to them since it is not in the least beyond their comprehension.

You might say, "It's not pleasant for me to have to talk and talk and push and prod you in the morning so you'll be on time. I don't like it and you don't like it. Let's get along without so much conversation. We'll plan the morning in sections. We'll allow plenty of time for you to do everything in and to have some time left over for the unexpected. Sometimes you break a shoelace, or lose your cap, or forget where you put your homework, or cut your finger and have to have it bandaged. Well, we'll allow time for little emergencies like that. Then if you get through early, you may do what you like with that time." The children can understand this, and appreciate the difference it will make in the morning atmosphere.

So divide the morning into three or four parts, to avoid prodding and expecting the children to "step on it" all along the line without a breathing space. Also see that they get up in the morning with all the "wim, wigor, and witality" and good nature that a long night of peaceful sleep should mean to any healthy child.

If you have a better scheme, good luck to you. This one is only offered to those mothers who have written me in desperation of their complete failure to manage with efficiency and cheerfulness these school morning preparations and departures.

A Few "Asides" on Reducing

by Antoinette Donnelly

In Which Some Fallacies of Weight Control Are Dispelled and Some Theories Discussed.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There are a few "asides" on the subject of weight control that may add appreciably to the sum total in pounds lost and gained.

Most reducers when they think reducing think only of diet in calorie proportions. So many calories a day will add so much. So many fewer calories a day deduced from the meals will take away that much. Or, if it is not a calorie program, it is, "This is fattening," "This is not fattening," and so on.

Let us take these food habits from another angle. One authority is quoted as saying that fat people whose fat is the result of food indiscretions are rarely other than "constipated bipeds." The cure for constipation four times out of five follows automatically in the wake of general weight reduction. This because all good diets have a well balanced supply of roughage foods—vegetables, greens, fruits, etc.—whose function is to stimulate better bowel action.

One of the "asides" in weight control covers this important matter of regular bowel movement to prevent fat. The use of pills and purgatives must be strictly censored, resorting only to nonhabit forming emergencies. Bran, psyllium seeds, agar-agar or mineral oil are good. The mineral oil may be used in salad dressings, following the usual recipe.

Water Is Not Fattening.

It is highly desirable while you are reducing to drink water. Drink all you can comfortably. Water is not fattening. Its reputation for being fattening is unfairly earned by persons who take it to wash down food. It is the excess food thus consumed that is fattening, not the water. Water is needed in reducing programs to activate the kidneys and flush the colon, thus carrying away large amounts of waste product. If the temptation to wash food down has to be cured, take only a sip at a time at the table. Or, drink a glass when you first sit down. Get in your six glasses a day.

Irrigations, properly given, may claim a legitimate place in obesity treatments, but the trouble is they are too often attended by haphazard methods and poorly trained technicians. Also, women are wont to overdo on them through the false hope they inspire. The old-fashioned enema, if properly taken, has value. Salt, one teaspoonful to a quart of water, is best to use. The enema should be taken in two stages. A pint or a quart at body temperature to empty the rectum first. Then, after a couple of minutes' rest, a two quart enema may be taken slowly. Bacteria and food materials are thus expelled.

By simply chewing your food more slowly you can add appreciably to your silhouette's glory. You will not eat so much. So, get the slower eating habit while you are on your diet and keep it up ever after. Make it a rule never to drink water while there remains a particle of food in your mouth.

Avoid Oversleeping.

About sleeping: While no one would deny the rejuvenating virtues of the regular eight or nine hours a day, it is only for the excessively lean or nervous or physically disabled that an excess of this allowance is granted. If one's ailment is only fat, do not sleep too much. Sleep your eight or nine hours—but no more. The reason for the obese person's tendency to oversleep is not need of the great restorative but is due to a physical and mental lethargy brought on more often than not by the intestinal toxemia suggested before in conditions of constipation. Either this, or just the natural gravity of the inactive person toward anything that promises protracted periods of ease. There should be no daytime napping. With lighter food intake there will be less and less nap provoking drowsiness after meals.

Don't go to bed too soon after eating. This is a fattening habit.

Eating between meals is taboo, unless one suffers an all-gone feeling from the minimized diet, in which event relief may be had from an apple, an orange, or fruit juice. Water often will suffice to tide one over to the next meal. Of great importance, however, in food abstinence between meals is refusal to join in on the midnight "snack" which usually is no snack at all, considering the quality of the food indulged. Retire with the stomach fairly empty. If sleep eludes you at first, drink a half glass of hot milk or the juice of an orange.

Salt encourages overeating. Reducing the salt intake to the very smallest amount is most advisable in weight reduction.

Calories in Cocktails.

Another one of our "asides" has to do with a growing custom since prohibition. It is the alcoholic addition to the day's food. You have to reckon in your cocktails, for alcohol has been proved to have more calories, weight for weight, than any of the three food elements—protein, carbohydrates, and fat. Aside from this fact, "drinks" sharpen the appetite and heartier eating results.

About steaming and sweating get-thin-quick baths: After a profuse perspiration, there will be a weight loss of a few pounds. But the trouble with this loss is that it is due to the removal of a certain amount of fluid, which is quickly restored by the ordinary diet of the body. Were this not the case, the constant loss of water from the body without restoration might easily result in serious damage, which is why too frequent recourse to steaming and sweating baths is not desirable. If carried to extremes, the tissues sag and make a person look aged, besides being most weakening. People with weak hearts or those not in the best physical condition should never go in for such treatment.

Need for Daily Exercise.

Next to eating more than the body needs, or perhaps stalking right alongside it in offense against the young and graceful silhouette, is the habit common to every class—riding on every provocation and giving the leg muscles no daily workout. Whether we belong in the high-priced, or medium motor class, the taxi, the subway, elevated, or street car, we are alike guilty of sparing the pedal extremities a daily walk.

And what happens is that this leg-pampering provokes other muscular laziness. How many women would run up a flight of stairs in the vicinity of an elevator? Or run round the corner for the forgotten grocery item while there is a phone in the house? Or even get up and walk around the room just to stretch? All this disinclination to exert oneself takes its toll in weight accumulation.

If You Own Another Woman Is a Dangerous Rival, You're Admitting Your Own Inferiority, and That's Hardly Wise, Says Doris.

CONFRONTED with the problem of another woman in your husband's life, what would your plan of action be?

Let us assume that the provocative interest in said husband's life has not yet assumed a serious stage; that it is jealousy rather than a break in your matrimonial relations that is your problem. You are aware that the man whose name you bear likes a certain girl or woman what seems to you, at least, "dangerously" well.

It is fair enough to assume, under the circumstances, that a pang or two, or a whole riot of them, would be felt, jealousy being the fundamentally primitive instinct that it is, and so few of us having managed that culture which eliminates the consuming emotion.

Suppose you attend a dinner party or a dance and the other woman is present. Your husband makes it obvious to you and, you suspect, to the group present that this problematical third person is too charming for him to be long absented from her side.

Several Avenues Open.

Now, while you and husband travel home together, what would be your course of action? In the cab, or whatever conveyance you happen to take, would you be steeling yourself for the certain speech to be delivered the moment your front door closes behind you? Or could you hold your resentment in leash that long? Would you sulk all the way home? Arriving there would you rush to your room, slam the door and let silence do your reprimanding for you?

Or would you put on an hysterical scene? Or possibly from advice on how to exhibit good sportsmanship under such circumstances, would you feel impelled to laugh at the man about his weakness for women?

Or, still another possibility, would you give vent to a few biting comments on what fools men are, noticeably in their taste in women?

As you see, there are numerous ways of meeting the problem, numerous ways it is being met and handled and, for the most part, none too wisely.

Never Show Jealousy.

There is only one really clever way of acting. Acting is the right word to use, for it may call for considerable acting skill. It is never to show jealousy, no matter how it may be gnawing at your soul. Clever wives, clever sweethearts and clever women in business, for that matter, though they may suffer a perfect fury of passion privately will never show their jealousy. Why? Because jealousy is an admission of weakness. Once you show the jealous hand you are admitting a rival's greater power. At the same time you confess an uncertainty of self. That's why it is good business, if you cannot reason jealousy away, to keep it entirely to yourself.

There is some quirk in male nature, not to be identified exactly as chivalry, but rather as personal pride, that comes to the surface when a person, an object or a pursuit that he finds interesting is attacked. It puts him on the defensive and, the more the attack is pursued, the more defensive the male becomes. There is no doubt that numbers of wives have driven husbands straight into the arms of other women by continued jealous outbursts. And younger women have contributed to their rival's power over their sweethearts by the same procedure.

Jealousy is the meanest of all the emotions that may beset us. Left to run any course at all in our systems, it gains complete mastery, warping our judgment menacingly. There is nothing good to be seen in or said about an individual who may have inspired our souls with the green encrusted hate.

Not content to let people judge for themselves, the temptation is to color other people's opinions with one's own warped views. Naturally, others not suffering any jealous emotion can see virtues and good in the one attacked and so jealousy simply becomes a boomerang, so far as one's own reputation is concerned.

In fact, the thing is so venomous that not a good word can be said for it, which is reason enough for trying to argue it out of the system.

Reasoning Is Needed.

It does take arguing, too! To face a situation calmly, with the usual human susceptibility to underestimate one's own true worth fairly, good strong moral courage is needed. It does not come all of a second. It may take considerable practice. But one can practice by ordering jealousy out of the small problems of life, such as jealousy of a neighbor's house or car, luck or success in whatever form it may be manifest.

One can refuse to be drawn into any of the petty bickerings of one's social group. Jealousy invariably is behind the scene, doing the prompting. One can get a healthy appraisal of one's own possessions and good fortune if jealous rivalry can be eliminated.

Then, when the problem of human values has to be confronted, one is in a more balanced state of mind to meet them. When the other woman situation has to be faced and one has achieved a sureness of self, it simply is no problem at all. Countless numbers of women go through life without ever meeting a rival, simply because they never admit their inferiority. For jealousy, boiled down, is nothing but inferiority. One cannot be jealous of another in her husband's life, or in her fiancé's or in her sweetheart's life unless she feels that the other one is superior in some way. It is resentment of the superior gifts, charms or whatever you ascribe to the other, that creates jealousy.

If you are willing to admit inferiority aloud, which is done if you nag about, sneer at or even laugh at another person whom your mate may think interesting, then you deserve to be taken at your own appraisal. If you admit inferiority, you are inferior and should be treated as inferior.

Anyway, that is the best turn of mind to take in case that third person should happen to turn your corner. Don't attack her. Don't sneer at her. Don't laugh at her. Simply don't pay any attention to her. Don't recognize her as a shadow on your horizon. Don't invest her with any of the superiority your jealous rage or sulks or sarcasm will further subscribe to in the eyes of the one you want to retain for yourself.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

HERE is a Paris model that is unusually smart in every detail and just such a dress as can be worn for afternoons, dinner, or the theater. Pattern No. 543 is really a slip-on jacket costume, consisting of a sleeveless waist, an attached two piece flaring skirt, and a jacket—this last having dart fitted, set-in sleeves.

The two piece skirt is decidedly circular, flaring gracefully when in motion, and this flaring is cleverly cut so as to start well below the smooth fitting hips. The dress also gives the idea of exaggerated length of line from waist to hem—a style detail that is important.

Contrasting color or material makes the sleeveless waist, and the neck and armholes may be bound with a narrow bias binding. Cut this one inch wide, and after it is basted and stitched to the dress, cut the seam off evenly, roll the binding over to the wrong side and hem down by hand.

After the side seams are finished the skirt is sewed to this waist and then it should be allowed to hang for several days so as to give it a chance to stretch. Even off carefully and bind.

The fronts and bottom of the jacket have scalloped edges, and a narrow collar having a scalloped edge finishes the neck. If you like, instead of binding these scalloped edges face them and seam the facing to the jacket in a wrong side seam. Clip the seam at the point where each scallop ends so that the facing may be turned to the wrong side without puckering. Baste carefully along the edges and press well. Trimming bands of a contrasting color finish the dress prettily over the snug fitting hips. The dress at the bottom for size 36, measures about 3¼ yards.

Two surfaces of crêpe satin, navy blue Canton crêpe with beige, dull black silk crêpe with eggshell, bottle green crêpe marocain, tomato red crêpe de chine, and chartreuse green chiffon are chic suggestions.

A smart little outfit for girls who like to be well dressed as well as comfortable is shown in pattern No. 658. It is for a coat and dress that will be right for sports activities, and girls can wear it with the knowledge that they are correctly attired in clothes that will withstand a little hard wear.

The dress is cut in two pieces, slashed at the neck at the front, and the slashed edges are bound and finished for closing. The neck is finished with a Peter Pan collar, which is one of the smartest necklines for school and sports wear. A smart little bow finishes the neck. The close fitting sleeves are finished with cuffs, and a narrow belt, fastened with a small decorative buckle, finishes the dress at the waist.

The coat is cut with raglan sleeves and a straight collar is rolled with the revers facing. The loose fitting sleeves are finished with turned back cuffs and the coat may be worn open or closed at the neck. Patch pockets lend a sportive air to the coat and besides are useful.

Tweed woolen in heather brown tones for the coat, with the dress of wool jersey in harmonizing shade, will be smart and practical. Of course, an ensemble of this kind can be made at home at a great saving and the coat may be worn with different dresses—in this way affording variety to a girl's wardrobe.

Pattern No. 502 is for a one piece dress with the front draped in plaits at either side, creating a swathed effect. A trimming band is placed at the left side, and finished with a bow having loose hanging ends that give the soft, feminine touch which is so becoming.

Two circular tiers make the skirt, the lower one being stitched to the edge of the dress, while the upper one is stitched along perforated lines. These circular tiers are generally becoming, and sway gracefully in motion. The deep V neck is finished with a narrow bias binding, and the sleeves may be finished to match, or with a wrong side facing. A bow placed at the right shoulder finishes the dress perfectly. Bind in picot the ruffle edges, and if you decide on the latter finish, baste the top of each ruffle to a piece of tape before having them picoted, so no stretching will be done.

Black crêpe satin would make up beautifully for the mature figure in this design. Also bottle green flat silk crêpe, midnight blue wool crêpe, or orange-red silk crêpe would be most attractive.

543—Woman's or miss' dress. Sizes 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material, with 1 yard of 40 inch contrasting and 3¼ yards of ribbon.

658—Junior girl's ensemble. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material for the coat, with 2 yards of 39 inch material for the dress, 1⅞ yards of 55 inch lining, and ⅝ yard of ribbon.

502—Woman's or miss' dress. Sizes 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material, with 1 yard of 40 inch contrasting and 3¼ yards of ribbon.

Predicted Basketball Injury.

We were preparing for the biggest basketball game of the season. The rival town is close and a friendly enmity exists between us. Our school was excited over the coming contest and every one was predicting victory.

I went to bed that night wishing the day would come. The excitement worked on my mind and I had a very realistic dream about it. I was in the gymnasium watching the game and shouting with excitement. Then one of our team fell with several opponents on him. When the boys got up he lay there white and still, his leg twisted under him. Before I could see who it was I awoke.

I related my dream to some of my schoolmates after breakfast. They all laughed and called me a pessimist. That night as I sat watching the game I was nervous as well as excited. Our team was ahead by a slight margin and every one was shouting like mad. Then, just as in my dream, one of our team fell. They carried him off with a broken leg. He was our best player and his injury disheartened the team so that the rest of the game was a walkaway for our rivals.

A Worth While Dream.

Two years ago my father died quite suddenly. His business affairs were in a muddled condition with a most important paper missing which it was necessary to have in order to straighten up affairs.

One night I dreamed that I opened up an old discarded book and there was the paper. The next morning I hurried downstairs before any one else was awake and hunted up this old book. I opened it and found the long lost paper. Now we all believe in dreams.

Change of Position.

I dreamed that a girl who works at the same place I do quit and secured another position. This was rather unusual, as she had worked for our firm several years and seemed almost a permanent asset.

I told her of my dream and she took it as a joke, but, to my surprise and hers, within that week circumstances compelled her to look for another job, and within two weeks she was working for another local concern.

She said afterwards that she had no idea at the time I told her of the dream that she was going to quit.

Oracular Geese.

It was wartime, 1917, when I dreamed I saw a flock of geese going over our house. Suddenly one acted queerly, as though in distress, and finally turned back and the rest went on.

A few days later we received a letter from my brother in which he said the transport on which he had sailed for France had developed engine trouble and they were forced to return to port.

The number of ships in the convoy corresponded exactly with the number of geese in my dream. M. W.

Aided in Examination.

I was studying for an examination on American literature at college, and the night before I completed my review. That night I dreamed that one of the questions was to quote ten lines of "Thanatopsis." We had been told to memorize this some time before, but had never been called upon to give it.

I spent an hour the next morning polishing up on the quotation, which I had forgotten. When I received the examination questions, there at the end of the list was, "Quote ten lines from 'Thanatopsis.'"

Practical and Fancy Needle Work by Clotilde

There's a Particular Joy in Having Your Linens and Lingerie Initialed, and Here Are Some Attractive Letters.

EMBROIDERING initials on household linens, lingerie, and on sports clothes has never been seen more than now, and it is a delightful fashion.

There never was a more fascinating form of needlework than embroidering, and it is well worth while, if you aren't an adept at the work, to practice carefully on some piece of material until you are satisfied with the eveness and perfection of your stitches.

To copy the letters shown in this article use some transfer paper. This can be bought at any artist's supply store, or the work can be done without it. Lay a smooth piece of tissue paper over the letter and go over every part of it accurately, using a soft, well sharpened pencil. Then lay the penciled side of this paper down on another piece of paper, writing paper is good, and then go over each part again.

Lay this second tracing on your material, traced side down, and go over the letter for the third time. This last work will transfer the marking to the material. The reason for doing the second tracing is that the letter would be reversed if the first tracing were transferred to the cloth.

The paper should be carefully pinned to the material before tracing so it will not slip.

Outline the letter with a single strand of darning cotton. These letters are entirely done in the raised satin stitch, and of all the different stitches this is the loveliest.

In the first work of outlining a letter use a small running stitch. These stitches must be accurately taken so as to follow perfectly the shape of the letter. The next step is the padding. This is done by taking a couple of strands of the floss and taking running or chain stitches, keeping the stitches short on the under side. The filling should always be heavier in the center of a space, thinning down as the outlines are reached.

In the satin stitch the stitches are always at right angles to the edge. It is an even over and over stitch, and this work must always be done in a frame. It must be done slowly so as to be even. Where there are curves the stitches are taken unusually close together on the inside, and on the outer edge there must be no space, but try and have them just meet. Never let them overlap.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work, and when one is inexperienced time will be well spent in practicing first on an ordinary piece of cloth as was suggested at the beginning of this article.

It is one of the most fascinating forms of needlework, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it.

The last installment of this alphabet will be shown next Sunday.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Varies Pattern.

An old economical habit of mine is to buy a pattern which is quite simple and vary it in different ways to make several dresses. I need only one pattern, in this way, to make a complete outfit for the season for my little girl, and only one for all my house dresses.

Use for Christmas Cards.

I have a friend who never throws away her Christmas cards. At leisure times during the year she takes these saved cards and with the aid of scissors and paste makes the most beautiful and original cards. These she attaches to Christmas gifts. I've never seen prettier packages done up anywhere, and the material costs only a little time and originality. W. A. C.

Gumdrops in Fruit Cakes.

My pet economy in making holiday plum puddings and fruit cakes is to use red and green gum drops cut in small pieces in place of expensive candied cherries and pineapple.

They look attractive, taste as well, and keep the cake exceptionally moist.

Time has built cathedrals.
Refuge

Tall and still

HELP WANTED.

Miss Hickey's shorthand diary hints that when the worm turns she will probably fire a sales manager. . . .

Now wanted—a boss—an experienced chap
Whose work is ahead, not behind half a lap;
Who dictates at ten without stalling or wait,
Who signs all his letters some time before eight. . . .
Now wanted—a boss—one hell-bent for success;
No dude lady-killer, no tea-drinking mess,
No grouch and no kidder, no cut-up, no shirk;
Prefer one who does not wear plus-fours to work.
He need not be handsome, nor clever, nor kind,
If only he knows what folks call his own mind.

This is Wanda Perry, a young Broadway star. She is learning that proper care makes hair more attractive, even for a girl of twelve!

Now You Can Protect Her Lovely Hair!

NATURE is gradually lowering our ability to grow hair. Baldness is becoming the rule among men; authorities predict the day of feminine baldness is coming.

Now, more than ever before, it is necessary for the whole family to practice proper care of the hair.

Millions of men and women know how Danderine helps stop falling hair; dissolves the worst crust of dandruff. It changes dull, lustreless, brittle hair into hair that is soft, sparkling, vigorous. Its consistent use encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. With Danderine it is so easy to "train" a child's hair; to keep it orderly, sparkling, clean. Danderine accentuates the natural curl of a child's hair. A girl's waves look more natural when "set" with it. They stay in longer.

Use Danderine with children to overcome the evils of frequent washing. It puts back into hair and scalp the natural oils removed by soap and water. Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It is no trouble to use. Just put a little on the brush each time the hair is arranged. That will keep the scalp healthy and the hair always vigorous, soft, lustrous, easily managed.

Strong's Inhibition

By Elizabeth Jordan

David's Lifelong Reserve—the Result of His Confusion of Sentiment with Sentimentality—Nearly Lost Him His Modern Young Wife.

DAVID STRONG had always felt a horror of expressed sentiment. Whatever form it took he regarded it as sentimentality; and sternly repressing any manifestation of it in himself he turned upon its exhibition by others a look of mingled pity and contempt. Some of the exhibitors were fine men and women—men and women he admired. It was a pity, from his viewpoint, that they had this weakness in their natures—this mushy side, like a soft spot on a good apple.

As a small boy he had wriggled uneasily out of the hands of too affectionate aunts and sisters. He had even wriggled out of his mother's hands when she had caught him with the avowed purpose of "stealing a kiss." But there was nothing unusual in this. The other boys he knew had the same healthy distaste of affectionate demonstration. When he was ten he was sent away to school, and on the station platform, as he was about to take the train with his father, he suddenly amazed his waiting mother and two older sisters by bursting into tears. Fortunately the train left at an early hour and in addition to his family there were only a few stragglers on the platform to see this unmanly exhibition which young David Strong immediately explained.

"I don't want to leave my dog," he sniffed, and saw to it that his words were loud enough to reach the ears of the stragglers. The family accepted the explanation. Doubtless the stragglers did so, too. But when David was safely on the train and his father was lost in a newspaper the boy looked out of the car window, pictured his mother and sisters on their way home in the family sedan, and faced the truth. He had not been crying because he was leaving his dog—he had cried because he was leaving his mother. But she hadn't known it, and she would never know it. His lips set tight. He had bidden her good-by with a manly shake of the hand. He was no mollycoddle to kiss and spoon.

As David grew older this outer reserve persisted and deepened. He was devoted to his father, his mother, his sister. He was the most considerate son and brother in his native town—thoughtful, generous, ready for escort duty, held up as a model to other sons and brothers. But it never occurred to him to give his mother a filial hug or to leave a casual fraternal kiss on the cheek of a sister. He simply didn't do that sort of thing. Nor did he tell them he was fond of them. He couldn't. Aunt Mollie, his mother's spinster sister, who went in for what she called "solid reading and the new movements," said he had an inhibition and advised him to struggle against it. David, who was not without a sense of humor, grinned at her cheerfully, and his mother, who could not endure the slightest criticism of her beloved only son, remarked coldly that if an inhibition was a fault David was entitled to it. So far as she knew, she added, he hadn't any others. David grinned again. He'd have been glad to say something nice to his mother in return for this—something nice that he could carry off as a sort of a joke—but nothing occurred to him. He was as sparing of affectionate words as he was of demonstration.

He went through college and a law course and was admitted to the bar. Then to the intense relief and delight of his father, who was by that time a judge and much looked up to, he accepted a partnership in the judge's offices and settled down in his home town instead of beginning his career in Chicago, as his family had feared he would do. David was so silent, so saving in the little matter of words, that the family had known nothing about his plans. He was amazed by their general relief and the sudden lifting of an atmosphere of tension that had hung over the Strong home for months. If he had known that they were worried about his possible departure he'd have tried to set their minds at rest by telling them he wouldn't exchange his home and family for any job anywhere. Or could he have told them? Probably not. Now that he came to think of it he couldn't picture himself telling them anything of the kind.

HE made as fine and hustling and successful young partner as his father had expected, and that is saying a good deal. The judge bragged of him shamelessly—couldn't help it. Judge Strong had not such inhibitions as his son's. If the judge wanted to say something pleasant he said it. He said it a dozen times a day if he felt like it. He told David again and again what a comfort he was to him, what a rod to his declining years, or words to that effect, and David listened with his lovable grin. He'd have liked to say something nice in return, but of course he couldn't. The damned inhibition—sometimes he thought of it as that—wouldn't let him.

When he had been in his father's office two years and was earning a really excellent income he proceeded to do the next thing that was expected of him. It was quite amazing how invariably he did the right thing, except in the little matter of the damned inhibition. Thus far the exception had not disturbed him or any one else, because no one else expected him to be other than he was. But when he fell in love with Penelope Case, the most charming girl in town, and did it with characteristic thoroughness, Penelope almost immediately revealed that she expected more of him than others had done.

"Do you really love me, David?" she asked wistfully the night she had promised to marry him and when the ring with which he had thoughtfully provided himself was safely on her finger. The question embarrassed David, but did not surprise him. His courtship of Penelope had been wordless, but full of action. Every day he had sent her flowers or music or books or candy. Every evening he was in her home, ready to take her to the theater or to a picture or for a drive, or merely to sit and look at her worshipingly and talk to her. He talked very well on every subject save his emotions. He was never tongue tied except on that topic, and that, of course, was the one Penelope could hardly bring up herself. But the creature was bringing it up now, and his heart sank.

"Do you really love me, David?" she repeated.

Her lover moistened lips that had suddenly gone dry.

"Haven't I told you so?" he muttered.

"I suppose you have," Penelope admitted, "by asking me to marry you; and even that sounded exactly as if some one had put a phonograph record into you and set it off. When the time came you wheezed out, 'Penelope, will you marry me?' and I fell into your arms on the spot, for I'd been waiting for that six months. But I should have waited longer—I really should. I ought to have made you make love to me, I suppose," she added thoughtfully. "It's too late now."

"Penelope!" David cried in acute embarrassment. "What do you mean?"

"Exactly what I said. I suppose it's too late to expect you to make love to me. Why should you, now that you've got me? It's clear enough that you don't know how to make love. And I have a dark suspicion," she went on slowly, "that since I didn't put you through a course of training when the time was ripe you'll never learn."

DAVID was at her feet—but only in spirit, of course.

"I'm an awful chump," he confessed wretchedly. "I've always been that way. I—I never can say what I feel. But I—I feel it all right, Penelope."

Penelope studied him with interest.

"Do you really?"

"Yes, I do—you bet I do. And I listen to other fellows spouting cascades of words about their emotions, and I envy them. But any time I try I find myself crawling down into myself and drawing myself after me—if you know what I mean."

"It sounds rather involved," Penelope admitted. "But I think I know."

She was still studying him. David felt a chill breath over his happiness, like a frost over a garden.

"You can't doubt me," he muttered.

"No, I can't doubt you. I'm simply wondering if I can always remember to take your love for granted."

"Penelope!" David had cried out in agony. "I—I can't talk about it—but I can show it in a thousand other ways!"

"I know. Right there—dependable—ready to die for me any time in a showy, spectacular manner—just as you've been with your mother and sisters. It satisfied them. I'm wondering if it will satisfy me all my life!"

"You're a queer girl." David spoke with a wan grin. He was not surprised. Penelope, a college graduate, was the most modern as well as the most charming girl in town.

"I suppose I am. I'm affectionate, too. Awfully. And I'm wondering how I'm gonna to feel when I come up against that—well, that inhibition of yours, all the time."

"For God's sake, Penelope, don't make a mountain out of a mole hill!" But David knew this was a crisis. Penelope knew it, too, and had meant to follow it up. Something in his eyes checked her. She saw that he was really suffering, and the maternal instinct awoke in her.

"All right, Davy," she said tenderly. "I'll take you as you are—and be darned glad to get you," she added in a different tone. And they both burst into rather unsteady laughter.

Judge Strong, who could well afford to do so, bought them a charming old house with a fine garden, near the Strong home, and remodeled it according to Penelope's taste. He adored Penelope, who was his idea of what a daughter-in-law should be. Every time he saw her he told her what a peach of a girl she was and how proud and fond of her he was, and every time he did it Penelope said, "I wish you had taught David to say that sort of thing." Once or twice David overheard her say it and felt a passing pang. But it was only passing, for he and Penelope were very happy.

He took Penelope to Chicago and let her select all the furniture and rugs and wall papers for the new home while he looked on admiringly. It was an enchanting home when they settled down in it after their honeymoon. Then David, realizing with compunction that he had neglected his profession for several months, and greatly ashamed of the extra burdens he had thus put upon his father, proceeded to make up for lost time. He worked like a whirlwind and was exhausted when the day was done; and Penelope, realizing this, limited their going out to dinners and dances to several evenings a week. That worked nicely the first year, and the remaining evenings were Darby and Joan affairs in which they sat side by side before the open fire in their library, and David read while Penelope read or sewed.

During the second year of their marriage Judge Strong went to a hospital for a serious operation which kept him there for several months. During his absence, of course, David took on the judge's work. Here was his chance to make up in earnest for that dalliance before his marriage. In the evenings he went to see his father at the hospital. Dinner and dances became impossible. The judge recovered and went to Europe for a rest while David still "carried on" at home, not only looking after the entire practice of the firm but after his father's personal affairs as well, and giving some time to his sisters, who had been left behind while their father and mother went abroad.

In short, David was very much occupied and he unconsciously fell into the habits of the tired business man. He ate his dinner, read and dozed by the fire an hour or two every evening and then dropped into bed and slept exhaustedly. He looked for Penelope the instant he entered the house at night, and if he did not see her he experienced a sense of disappointment and loneliness which lifted promptly when she appeared. On leaving in the morning he absent-mindedly kissed her cheek or the top of her head, his mind usually being full of his case in court that day.

AT the end of another four months Judge Strong came home, improved in health, but not the man he had been, and resumed what he could carry of the firm's growing practice. A promising youngster who had just been admitted to the bar was taken into the office to save David and his secretary a lot of detail work. But David had formed habits. He liked his evenings at home. He looked forward to them. Penelope, he judged, had been gadding all afternoon. He assumed, if he thought of it at all, that she found their quiet evenings as agreeably restful as he did.

He was aroused from this delusion six months after the judge's return from Europe. David was very deep in a book of extremely interesting legal cases one evening when he suddenly heard the overturning of a chair, the flop of a heavy book on the floor, and, startled, looked up to find Penelope standing facing him with furiously resentful eyes.

"David," she said abruptly, "I'm through. I'm not going to stand this sort of life any more."

"This—sort—of—life?" David stared at her uncomprehendingly, and his expression added the last touch to her sense of injury.

"Yes, this sort of life," she raged. "This sitting around night after night and watching you doze and read while all my friends are having a good time and I'm eating my heart out! I'm through with it, I tell you. You've neglected me ever since our marriage. You're the kind of man I've read about and always dreaded—the kind that takes everything for granted. I suppose my dread was a sort of premonition that I was going to get one of them. You never plan anything pleasant for me. You never say an affectionate word to me. O, don't talk!" She checked the words on his lips. "I know you love me, in your damnably selfish way. But I'm fed up with the life we're living. I wasn't made for it, and I can't endure it. I did endure it while your father was sick and away; but to keep it up all my life, as you seem to expect——"

"My dear," he said gently, "don't get so excited. You're perfectly right. I've been a selfish beast. I admit it—but of course you know that I wasn't conscious of it. Now that you've opened my eyes we'll have a new deal. Where would you like to go tonight?"

His capitulation was so complete and evidently so unexpected that Penelope gaped at him almost as stupidly as he had gaped at her when she fired the opening gun of their encounter.

"Where would you like to go?" he repeated, drawing her arm through his and walking her toward the door of the library. "It's too late for the theater, I suppose, but there ought to be a good picture at the Academy. Or shall we drive and drop in on some of your friends?"

Penelope stopped short, so that he had to stop, too. She gave him a long look—an odd look—and nodded.

"You mean it," she said, "and, of course, I'm ashamed of myself for going off at half cock that way. We won't go anywhere tonight, but I'd like to have a few friends to dinner tomorrow night and take them to the theater afterward. There's a play in town that's really good. Now, go and finish your book."

"Fine," he said heartily. "We'll do it. Make your arrangements and get your tickets tomorrow."

His relief over the respite was so obvious that she laughed. But she walked upstairs with him arm in arm and they had a pleasant chat before the fire in her upstairs sitting room, during which he told her about some of his new cases.

They had the party the next night and several parties in brisk succession. They went out a good deal the rest of the winter. The trouble was—and it was a trouble of which David was wholly unconscious—he had been out of such things so long that they bored him. He thought he was successfully concealing this, and indeed he made an heroic effort to do so. But he was not concealing it. He was polite but distrait; he was present in body but spiritually absent from the little gatherings. At last Penelope recognized the situation.

"You're doing your best, old boy," she said gratefully, "but I know you hate it all, and I hate to make you a martyr. Of course we'll have to go out together sometimes, but I don't see why I can't go alone occasionally, or with some of my old pals. Would you mind if Jim Sands or Harry Keefe took me out once in a while? They both suggested it when they realized how busy you were."

David hesitated. Far down in some deep recess of him an alarm bell sounded shrilly. But he ignored it. Sands and Keefe were human Newfoundlands—big, good natured, harmless chaps he and Penelope had known all their lives. They were as innocuous as infants. They bored David acutely, but if Pen wanted to go out with them—

"My dear," he said (he little dreamed how that continual middle aged sounding "my dear" was getting on his young wife's nerves!) "I hope you don't really think you need to ask me whether you can go out with any friends you choose. I'd hate to have you think so badly of me as to imagine I'd question anything you do."

That sounded a little stilted so he added to it "I needn't tell you that my confidence in you is perfect," he said, and felt that it sounded still more stilted—rather as if he were addressing a jury. Penelope sometimes accused him of talking like that. However, Pen wasn't in a critical mood today.

"You are a dear, David," she said gratefully, and hurried on. "All right then. It's understood that when I think you're tired and need relief from squiring me I can call on some lad I know."

IT was left that way and as the months passed David found himself returning to the good old evenings of rest and reading by the fire. Pen—he knew—was enjoying herself. So was he. She was out several evenings a week and when she was home they usually had dinner guests. Dinner was followed by bridge, and at first David thought he had to stick it out to the bitter end. But after a few evenings he discovered that Pen usually had an extra guest to make a four or an eight, and he took this to mean that he could unostentatiously fade away and sneak upstairs to Pen's sitting room, where there was always an open fire and a good reading light. His bridge was bad and he knew his friends disliked to play with him. Pen, he decided, was managing things very tactfully.

Some of the extra lads who came in were strangers to David—newcomers to the town, which was rapidly growing in size and prosperity. David didn't know these newcomers but he knew about them and their business or professional connections. Most of them belonged to the country club set, which was Pen's set and his sister's and would have been his set if he had ever had one. They seemed to be having some good times out there—winter sports and such. David was glad to know that Pen was enjoying herself.

Sometimes, stimulated by a sudden memory of her one revolt, he bestirred himself and went with her to a function. Pen always seemed glad to have him, but it was clear that she was no longer dependent on him for escort duty. She went about not only with Sands and Keefe but with the extra men, the newcomers to town. Most of them seemed decent chaps but mentally negligible. Then one day David was abruptly awakened from his sense of a smooth running and ideal domestic life.

ILLUSTRATION BY Y. E. SODERBERG.

"Something has happened," she said. "I saw you going upstairs with Jack Hastings a few minutes ago. David! What is it?"

The man who woke him was his boyhood pal and classmate at college—Joe Osborne, now Dr. Joseph Osborne and already one of the most distinguished psychiatrists in the state. David and Osborne were admittedly the two rising young men of the big and growing town and each was inwardly somewhat surprised by the success of the other; but they kept up their old time friendship and Osborne, who was a bachelor, sometimes shared David's quiet evenings when Penelope was away.

"Dave," Osborne said one night soon after the Christmas holidays, "I'm going to break a lifelong resolution by butting into another man's private affairs."

He was sitting in the library of the Strong home with David after a tête-à-tête dinner, Penelope having gone with a gay crowd to a dinner and dance at the club.

"I suppose I'm the only man who could speak to you about this matter except your father, and I fancy he doesn't know any more about it than you do," Osborne went on. "It's a damned nasty job, but here goes, old man: Aren't you neglecting Pen a good deal?"

David, who was in his usual after dinner condition of half drowsy well-being, sat up and stared at his best friend. He was not angry—he was merely amazed and incredulous. Joe, of course, couldn't have meant the remark to mean what it seemed to imply.

"There's a lot of talk about Pen." Osborne went on quietly, with thoughtful eyes on the burning end of the cigar he held in his right hand. "There's nothing in it, really, and everybody knows there isn't. But you know how folks love to gossip their heads off."

"Gossip? Pen?"

It was clear that Strong could not associate the two. His slowness on the uptake irritated his friend.

"Yes—gossip and Pen," Osborne repeated incisively. "And what I want to say is that it isn't Pen's fault. It's yours, Dave, and if you think it over a minute you'll admit it."

David Strong threw his half smoked cigar into the fire and turned to face his friend.

"Osborne," he said, "would you mind saying exactly what you want to say and getting it over?"

Osborne looked at him and there was something in the glance that made his host's heart sink. But Osborne answered almost casually.

"I won't mind, but I'm afraid you will. Just the same—I want to say," he continued with sudden energy, "that this infernal town is gossiping its head off about your wife and Jack Hastings. Your sisters know it, and so does your mother. But none of the three has the nerve to tell you or your father what's going on."

"Do you mean to say——"

"You bet your life I mean to say it. And I hope you'll forget your law cases and your dinner and your comfortable fire and your books long enough to take it in. The whole damned mess is up to you. You've neglected Penelope ever since you married her—and the whole town knows that, too."

"My God!" David was awake at last. Or was he in a nightmare? He inclined to the nightmare theory. Surely, this scene simply could not be happening.

"I suppose it was easier for you to let her gad around, first with Sands and Keefe and lately with every whippersnapper in town, than it was to take her out yourself, so you've let it be that way. Well, if that's how you want it, there's every chance that Pen will be off your hands in another year. God, man, what an incredible ass you've been! When I think of it——"

OSBORNE pulled himself up, but Strong knew what more he would have said. There were other men in town, including Osborne, who had wanted Pen and who would have taken better care of her. Osborne had been in love with her ever since she was sixteen. He had been best man at David's wedding and then had gone off on a long hunting trip. Possibly all this justified him in what he was saying. David was trying to think, but his brain wouldn't function easily.

"I suppose you mean all this well," he began.

"I don't know whether I do or not. I'm too disgusted with you to know just what my motives are, so far as you're concerned. But I know what they are where Pen is concerned. I want her pulled out of this mess and you're the only man who can do it—so I'm going to make you realize the situation if I have to put it over with a pile driver."

He leaned forward and checked his points on his fingers as he continued.

"Another man is making love to your wife. He's mad about her. He wants her to get a divorce and marry him. I don't know how Pen feels about him. But at least she must be fascinated, for she's giving him a lot of rope. And, as I've said in the beginning, people are talking their heads off."

David met his friend's eyes and the two exchanged a long, steady look.

"All right," David said at last. "You've told me. Let it go at that."

"Not till I've finished," Osborne retorted. "I'm going to tell you a few more things. I'm going to tell you the effect a chap like you is bound to have on a girl like Pen. I was worried when she married you, for I suspected how it would be, and it's worked out pretty much as I thought. You've starved that girl, Dave, and I think you're going to get exactly what's coming to you for doing it. I'm not sure she will marry Hastings, but I'm just about certain that she won't stay with you much longer." He returned to his first prediction. "I think you'll lose her within a year. But I want you to check this present scandal and let her get out with dignity."

David Strong addressed the fire.

"Starved her," he muttered and followed the words with a choking little laugh. The sound steadied Osborne, who had got up and was prowling uneasily about the room. He shot a quick look at the other's face and returned to the fire and his chair. Bending forward he continued his arraignment in a different tone.

"By starving her, I don't mean the usual sex stuff. I suppose you're normal enough as far as that goes——"

David rose to his feet.

"Damn you," he said with quiet intensity. "How far do you think you can go with this?"

"Sit down again and I'll show you."

Osborne was in dead earnest. There was nothing to do but kick him out or listen to him. David sat down and listened, his unseeing eyes on the fire.

"How many times have you told your wife you loved her since you married her?" Osborne asked resolutely. "You're feeling terribly abused, David, but listen. Have you given her the tenderness, the praise, the little day by day demonstrations that every woman expects from the man she loves? Did I say 'expects?' Good Lord, you incredible ass, don't you realize that women simply must have that sort of thing? They must be petted, made much of, flattered, cajoled, told they're wonderful, told that their husbands can't possibly get along without them. If they're not, they can't be happy. They can hardly live on at all."

"Wait a minute!"

"I've waited too long already. Now I'm telling you all this as a doctor and a scientist, not merely as a man and a friend. When I've seen you sitting here as you are tonight, smug and comfortable like a gorged python, while Penelope gads about with a rotter like Hastings——"

"All right. Now get out!" Strong was up again, his hand on the shoulder of his friend in a compelling grip, but the look in his eyes was not resentment. It was merely tragic. "Get out now, old man," he repeated urgently. "There's no use in saying anything more. I want to think."

"A damned good idea, too," Osborne applauded as he rose. "All right, I'm off. But don't think too long, my lad. If I'm any judge it's a time for action."

WHEN he was gone David looked at his watch. It was nearly ten o'clock. The dance at the club would hardly have begun. He was not in evening dress, but in half an hour he could be dressed and out at the clubhouse, which was only three miles from town. He methodically put the screen in place before the open fire, turned out the library lights, and hurried up to his room. Fifteen minutes later he was on his way.

He saw Penelope almost as soon as he entered the ballroom. She was dancing with Keefe, and in the relief of seeing her in that safe and brotherly embrace he unconsciously exhaled a shaken breath. Then he glanced around the room, failed to find the other person he sought, and worked toward the card room. At the door he came face to face with Hastings, who was obviously about to rejoin the dancers. David greeted him cheerfully.

"Just the man I want to see," he said. "Any place around here where we can have an uninterrupted chat?"

"Not unless we go upstairs," Hastings said uneasily. "Besides, I'm engaged for the next dance. A little later—if you don't mind——"

"Sorry, but I do mind. I'm one of these impulsive chaps you read about." Still smiling, David slipped his arm through Hastings' and firmly led the young man toward the staircase. There was something about the grasp that made Hastings accompany him without protest. They mounted the steps and turned into a small unoccupied card room off the upper hall. David stepped back, let the other precede him into the room and, following, closed the door and stood with his back to it.

"Sit down," he ordered. But Hastings did not sit down. He stood, tense, suspicious, and very watchful, facing the other man.

"What the devil is all this——" he began.

"Hastings," said David slowly and quietly, "I've just learned tonight that your attentions to my wife are making her talked about. I've brought you up here to tell you not to go near her again, not to approach her or speak to her, or write her, or send her messages, or come to her home. Do I make myself quite clear?"

Hastings tried to laugh.

"You're making an awful ass of yourself, old man," he said rather huskily. "You'll be sorry in the morning."

"What I'll be sorry for in the morning, I suppose," David told him, "is that I didn't shoot you tonight like the rattlesnake you are." He took from his pocket the small revolver he had brought with him and looked at it thoughtfully.

"There are some of us left who do this sort of thing," he mused. "I wonder if I'm justified in letting a fellow like you go on living."

"O, come now, you can't bluff me. Somebody's been stuffing you and

The Etiquette of Second Marriages

The Divorcee, Widow and Middle Aged Woman Will Decide on the Conservative Wedding

By Helen Bartlett.

PERSONS of all ages are Cupid's victims. Mature, middle aged, and elderly alliances are taking place daily everywhere, and those brides of varying ages have problems with which the young miss, on her first jaunt to the altar, is not faced.

The divorcée and the widow, in particular, must observe those conventions which call for a conservative wedding. They do not wear veils or have an elaborate wedding party.

In most cases the bride of 30 or more, who has not been married before, is permitted something more of a spectacle than the middle aged woman, either single or widowed.

The bride of 30 would probably not wear a veil. She could wear a gown of pastel shade, becoming in cut and color, and a hat suitable to the rest of her costume. She could have two attendants, if she wished, and they, too, would be dressed rather quietly. To a wedding of this sort, one could invite as many guests as one wished and in most other respects it would be greatly like a wedding for a younger girl. Invitations and announcements would follow the usual form, of course.

If the young woman wishes her wedding to be as elaborate as is fitting under the circumstances she could wear a gown of silver cloth and a turban of the same material.

The marriage of the divorcée should not be as pretentious. If she is married in church (some churches permit it) she will wear traveling clothes, or a quiet, simple and unostentatious afternoon costume. She may have a large number of guests present, but the breakfast, luncheon, or dinner afterwards is attended only by the immediate families. Announcements are sent out by her parents, if they are living, if not, by a brother or old family friend; and if no close relative is available, the woman who is no longer young may send out her own. The title "Mrs." does not appear on invitations or announcements of a woman's second marriage when issued by a relative. Her full name is used, however.

If her parents issue the announcement it is worded thus:

Mr. and Mrs. James Fenton announce the marriage of their daughter
Jane Fenton Smith to etc., etc., etc.,
If the couple must issue their own announcement, it can convey the intelligence in this form:

The marriage is announced of Mrs. Howard Smith and
Mr. James Hunter
on Saturday, April the first in Chicago, Illinois.

A divorcée under no circumstances wears a veil or has a large pageant type of wedding party. We have never heard of its being done in fashionable circles but have heard an amusing story of a movie actress who had all the trimmings for her second marriage.

Invariably, such weddings should be dignified and happy occasions, but not splashy. The bride does not carry an enormous bouquet, nor does she ever have more than one attendant.

For some strange reason the number of times a man has been married has absolutely no bearing on the sort of wedding his bride-to-be may have.

Answers to Etiquette Queries.

"I am having a church wedding at 8 o'clock in the evening. There will be about 200 guests. Would you please help me with the following problems? 1. Are tuxedos permissible? 2. Can the bride wear a sleeveless dress and no gloves? 3. Is it necessary for the ushers to head the bridal procession? 4. I am having two matrons of honor. How will they march out of the church? 5. Where is the best man's place in the recessional? 6. Do guests stand or sit during the ceremony? 7. Where does the father go after taking the bride to the altar?" A. G."

1. No. Full dress is worn by the men of the party. 2. It is in better taste to wear a dress with long sleeves, or to wear shoulder length gloves. 3. Yes. The ushers, two by two, lead the processional. 4. It is most unusual to have two matrons of honor. However, they walk up the aisle singly, after the bridesmaids and just preceding the bride and her father. Coming down they walk, again singly, immediately after the bride and the bridegroom. 5. The best man does not appear in the recessional. He goes out the vestry, through which he entered. 6. Guests stand during the ceremony. 7. After taking his daughter to the altar the father steps back and takes his place beside his wife in the first pew on the left of the church.

If you will send a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you a leaflet outlining the correct order of wedding procedure.

"How many cards should a woman having husband and son leave for new neighbors, husband and wife? At a tea or reception so large as to make introductions to every one almost out of the question, should one speak to other guests even though not introduced?" B. K."

1. The card rule is simplified thus: A woman leaves cards only for women, while a man leaves cards for both men and women. Therefore in the case you mention the woman leaves a card of her own for the wife and two of her husband's and son's. 2. Yes.

"What is the purpose of service plates? How long do they remain on the table? Are they ever used to eat from?" D. P."

Their purpose is principally protection. If the first course is fruit cup, canapé, or something of the sort, the dish containing it is placed on the service plate. The plate remains on the table until after soup, which is placed upon it, is removed. Then the plate for the main course is put in place. Food is not put directly on the service plate.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I want to be the medium through which the friends in need and the friends in deed may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Family in Great Need.

"I am the mother of two children, a boy, 6, and a baby, 3 months old. The elder child has tuberculosis and I have had to send him west. A few weeks ago my husband broke his hand and will be unable to do anything with it for some time. With no money coming in, it is impossible for us to get along and I wonder if you can help me.

"I have been promised work to do at home if I had a typewriter and I am sure I could make almost enough to support us. As it is now, we owe four months' rent, electric light and gas bills, and a large amount to the grocer. We need blankets and clothing for the children and myself. I wear size 40 or 42, and shoes, size 7½ or 8 B. We also need a baby bed. But more than anything else I want the typewriter. Mrs. E. S."

The typewriter you recently discarded, renovated and restored to working condition probably would provide a source of income for this unfortunate family. And perhaps some one will have the clothing so badly needed, too, especially for the little 6 year old.

Baby Carriage Badly Needed.

"I am writing for a neighbor of mine, an old woman past 70, who has had the care of her three grandchildren for some time. Their father is out of work and the mother is in a tuberculosis sanitarium. The youngest of the children is only two months old and they have no baby carriage for him. Do you think one of your readers has an old one to give? Mrs. M. S."

During the warm spring days soon to come, it would be a pity if this child could not be out enjoying the fresh air and sunshine so necessary in the life of a baby. Have you a buggy which will make daily excursions to the park possible?

Wants Knitting Materials.

"I am a widow, 67, alone, and earning my own living. I have rheumatism and must wear warm garments, some of which I could knit myself if I had the yarn. Would you ask your readers for wool or any old knitted pieces which I could rip out and knit again? I don't care what the color may be. E. S."

You needle workers who devote part of your time to knitting are sure to have remnants of wool and perhaps unfinished pieces of knitted materials for which you'll have no more use. Won't you resurrect them from your work bag for this self-supporting widow?

Widow's Letter.

"I am a widow and until a short time ago supported myself and my small family. I am not well now, and am no longer able to work, so I am appealing to you for help. I have a daughter who wears size 16, and a granddaughter, 5, whose parents died several years ago, and I have been caring for her. I wear size 48. If you can get me the clothing we need so badly I shall be most grateful. "Mrs. E. F."

The task of caring for a family when you are not well is a discouraging one and the situation, to this mother, is becoming alarming. Can you offer them some assistance? If you can supply the clothing they need it will help a great deal.

Weighing the Spinach.

While working in a grocery store, though quite a novice, I was allowed to wait on trade. A customer came in and asked for a peck of spinach and I, not knowing a peck of spinach is only 3 pounds, proceeded to weigh up the customary peck. I took a 16 pound bag and filled it. It weighed only about 4 pounds, so I took another 16 pound bag and filled it and still I didn't have enough.

Fortunately, one of the other clerks noticed my error and explained what was wrong. The crowd in the store roared and I couldn't get to the back room fast enough. H. L.

Absent-Minded Boss.

One evening my husband announced that the boss and two other men from the office and he were to play bridge at our home the coming Saturday night. At 7:15 Saturday night I was getting ready to take the children to the movies and leave the men to themselves when in walked the boss with his wife, whom I knew slightly, both in evening clothes.

The boss, who is rather absent minded, had mistaken the invitation for a bridge dinner, and neither he nor his wife had eaten. I blamed friend husband for being indefinite in his invitation, but as the other men appeared in business clothes without their wives, I had to admit he was not wrong.

How I ever got through the evening I do not know—the only saving thing was that they were just as embarrassed as I. P. W.

Using the Cigar Lighter.

I spent last winter in California. Some friends of mine were visiting out there and of course I felt obliged to entertain them by taking them to dinner. Wishing to look prosperous, I decided to rent a limousine with a chauffeur instead of using our old car.

While riding along, almost feeling as if it really belonged to us, I started to give the chauffeur directions, presumably through the phone, but to my terrible embarrassment I was trying to talk through the cigar lighter. Needless to say I did not eat any dinner that night and I nursed a sore lip for a few days. M. T. P.

RINGS

By Eleanor Jewett.

There are rings and rings,
And Mother's is gold,
And thin and shining,
And precious and old.

And she has others,
All shining and bright,
But I love the rings
Dad makes at night.

He gets his pipe
And sits deep in a chair,
And he blows smoke rings
For me to wear.

They are round and soft
And pretty and gray,
But when I catch them
They melt away.

Dad laughs as he smokes
In his old arm-chair
And blows me some more
I pretend to wear.

$5 for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for every childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

I have a baby girl and this morning Dick, who is 4, was standing looking out the window at a woman coming down the street with triplets in a buggy. He ran to me and cried: "O, mama! Lock all the doors and don't answer the bell because here comes a woman selling babies." T. E.

While walking in the loop the other evening, my attention was directed to a youngster who was evidently trying to make some suggestion to her mother as to what show she wanted to see. Her eyes caught sight of a banner hanging across the street that caused her to shout:

"O, look, Mom, 77 stars; Mae Tinee certainly must have liked that picture." G. H.

My little daughter, 4, and I are expecting to leave for Florida soon. After reading the funnies in THE TRIBUNE this morning, she cried:

"Mother, will I meet Skeezix and Corky in Florida?" L. P.

Patricia Ann, 4, had been told many times that if she didn't eat her cereal she wouldn't grow to be a big lady. One day her mother said she didn't care to eat her spinach.

Patricia Ann, answered, "How do you ever expect to be a grandma?" I. T. C.

Your Doctor will tell you:
"Eat more BROILED foods"

The new patented Universal In-a-Drawer moves on roller bearings. One hand—one motion—and entire broiler rolls into view. Both hands free to turn or remove broiled food . . . . . .

Long ago, doctors discovered that fried foods were hard to digest and lacking in nutritive value. That is why people who eat too much fried food often are troubled with indigestion, headaches and sallow complexions.

Broiling, on the other hand, makes the food easy to digest. This method retains all the nourishing, invigorating values in the food as well as its juicy, natural savoriness. Hospitals know this. So they always serve broiled—never fried—foods.

Until now broiling in the home has been difficult and sometimes a painful task. Women have been justified in not cooking this healthful way, because of the inconvenience and danger of burns it entailed.

But now a marvelous new improvement by Universal has eliminated all hazards. The patented Universal In-a-Drawer Broiler makes broiling easier and safer. It pulls in and out like a drawer—one hand—one motion. It moves on roller bearings. At a touch of the finger, the entire broiler rolls into view.

Steaks and chops are in full view and are easily turned for searing. Twelve pieces of toast are made in a jiffy. There is no bending or stooping.

Never before has a cast iron, porcelain enameled Universal In-a-Drawer Broiler Gas Range been offered at such a low price. Volume production has resulted in amazing savings—enabling us to give you added features at lower prices.

Also you can have this beautiful range with an insulated oven at a small extra cost. This marvelous new feature saves half the oven gas and keeps the kitchen cool in summer.

Liberal Terms

A small payment down and then a little each month will put this Universal Range with its health-building features and conveniences in your home immediately. Inspect it today at the store of the Universal dealer in your community. Compare its labor-saving features—its safety—its beauty with those of any other range. See it and you will have an entirely new conception of broiling. If you do not know the name of your local Universal dealer, write us now for full information.

Dear Public:

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for the glorious way in which you have responded to our call for help! I know you all want to thank us for our Bargains! But we both must be thankful to each other!

Our situation now is nothing short of desperate! The terrific price smashing campaign and frantic efforts to unload have seemingly gotten us nowhere, due to the fact that manufacturers, seeing the tremendous business we were doing, unrelentingly forced all back orders on us!

A hurried inventory reveals more than $3,000,000 worth of merchandise . . . about the same as we started with, except that a lot of it is spring goods. No time to waste now! Every day! Every minute counts! We must sell like never before I've taken the store personally in hand! I've guaranteed to close out everything in the next 30 days.

Nothing will stop me! You cannot fail me! If you think we've had low prices before, let me say "YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET." I've been given absolute and complete authority to make prices! Come and see what I've done! If anyone, man, woman or child, thinks there is any price on merchandise that should be lower, write and tell me about it. The BACKSTAGE MYSTERY

by OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

The Story in Brief:

TERRY MOONEY, young reporter, "makes the front page" of the Evening Record with the story that Wylie Thornton, matinee idol, is to leave the local stock company and to take a train that night for New York and a Broadway engagement. Terry is engaged to Anice Garet, ingenue of the company. Unknown to the adoring public, Thornton is a drunkard and a wastrel. In one of his most recent escapades, when disgracefully intoxicated, he has knocked down John Norris, real estate operator, on being ordered from the Norris home. He has, however, superficial attractions which have dazzled Doris Manning, an amateur member of the stock company, who is the daughter of Maj. Manning, influential banker. He has persuaded Doris to elope with him, promising to marry her after divorcing his wife. Mrs. Thornton threatens to kill him to prevent the elopement. Norris and Maj. Manning go to the theater separately, the former to exact an apology, the latter with the hope of frightening Thornton off. Visiting the actor's dressing room with her fiance, Carey Weldon, Doris finds Thornton shot to death and her father standing by. Manning enlists the aid of Jim Hanvey, detective. Chief Marty Gallagher is in charge of the investigation. The Record assigns Ken Johnston and Terry Mooney to cover the case. Hanvey and Gallagher carry their inquiry to the Norris home. Anice Garet pleads with Hanvey to give Mooney a "break" on the story.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

Two Pieces of Paper.

THE killing of Wylie Thornton would have been a nine days' wonder in the community even without surrounding circumstances of drama, suspicion, and romance.

A popular leading man of an exceedingly popular theatrical organization, resident in the city for five months, had been found slain in his dressing room on the very eve of his departure for great theatrical triumphs in New York. That in itself was sufficient to excite the populace; but when in addition to that two of the most influential and wealthy men in the city were known to be in the hands of the police as suspects, when the daughter of one of those men and the former fiancé of the other was known probably to have been the cause of the killing, when the head of one of the largest building and loan associations of the state and a vital figure in the social and business life of the city was known also to be not entirely free from suspicion . . . then indeed the community gossiped.

The city editors of the three local newspapers did what was technically described as "playing the story for all it was worth." Ken Johnston was in active reportorial charge, but Terry Mooney's name appeared every day over a feature story in th Evening Record.

Mooney's five months association with the Edwin Booth Resident Players, his intimate knowlege of backstage details and his natural flair for graphic writing served to bring him seriously to the attention of the public and his city editor.

And Mooney had put out another anchor to windward. With the passing of the days when it seemed that the crime was never to be solved, a great friendship developed between the likeable kid reporter and the mammoth detective whose sleepy personality dominated the case despite Hanvey's eagerness to avoid the calcium glare and shift all credit to the police department.

There was no detail concerning the crime or the company which was too insignificant to catch the interest of the newspaper reading public. The actual news value was soon exhausted; but the story kept its place on the first page throughout daily features. Even the arrival of Kelly Wilson, the new leading man, was an affair of importance . . . particularly since that debonair and carefree young actor gave out an interview concerning jinxes. He declared that he was not afraid to step into the shoes of the murdered man and that he was glad to use Wylie Thornton's dressing room . . . which immediately stamped him as a daredevil and a hero. They flocked to see his opening performance and discovered that he was an excellent trouper and so the grisly affair had a decidedly beneficial effect on the box office. Ken Johnston summed it up in a terse sentence—

"They're piling in every night," he said, "in hopes that there will be another murder."

So far as results were concerned, the police seemed to have been stationary since the night of the killing. People were quizzed and counter quizzed; theories were advanced and discarded; the usual fanatics wrote long letters signed Pro Bono Publico and on the second Sunday after the killing—eight days after Wylie Thornton's body had been found on the floor of his dressing room—Terry Mooney was permitted to sign his name to a most excellent summary of the case.

He reviewed the case from the beginning, and treated of the suspects one at a time.

It was a creditable feature and he received many congratulations, although when Jim Hanvey complimented him that night when he, Mooney and Anice Garet were eating chow mein at their favorite Chinese place, the youngster shook his blonde head and declared that it wasn't so much.

"It's this way, Jim," he explained. "I had to go awfully light—and for three reasons. In the first place, we've got word to keep Doris Manning's name out of it unless the case comes to trial and she is mentioned in court. Of course the whole town knows all that we do, but we can't put it in print."

"But you did, just the same," flashed Anice. "That's what made your yarn so clever. You didn't mention her name, but everybody knew who you were talking about."

"I guess so. And then John Norris, he's one of the biggest men in town . . . but he's never actually been charged with the murder and so we have to handle him with kid gloves. As a matter of fact, Jim—I don't believe any of them did it, do you?"

Jim reflected heavily.

"I'm always up in the air on this sort of thing, son. They all look so guilty you've got to believe they're innocent. To start with, there's Mary Thornton who had the most human and natural of all motives for killing. There was Carey Weldon, whose motives were just about as adequate. There was Maj. Manning, who frankly was willing to go to any lengths to keep Doris from making a bum play. And John Norris, who, if half the stories are to be believed, had plenty of reason and the best chance in the world."

Anice leaned forward, her eyes shining.

"Gallagher thinks it was either Mrs. Thornton or Carey Welden."

"Might have been, too. But I have a hunch that Weldon—or Manning either, for that matter—would have told the truth if they had done it."

"And so would Mary Thornton."

HANVEY'S eyes narrowed. "Have you tried putting yourself in her place, sister? Do you realize she was half nuts—that she was a stranger in a town she never had liked, and that she didn't have a friend in the place? Don't you suppose she might have figured that she wouldn't stand a chance of a square deal if it was a question of her against somebody like Manning, or Weldon, or Norris?"

Anice nodded slowly.

"I never thought of it just that way," she admitted, "but just the same I believe I would have told the truth if I had killed him."

"You wouldn't!" broke in Terry positively.

She looked at him in surprise.

"What makes you think that?"

"Because of what Jim just said. It's all very well to say what you would have done when all you've got to do is think about it. But if it really had happened to you . . . then you'd remember all those things Jim just mentioned and you'd be scared to death."

"Maybe so, Terry . . ."

"There isn't any maybe about it. I'm sure. But, anyway, I believe Mary Thornton did tell the truth. I don't think she killed her husband, and I know she didn't take that four hundred dollars—and it's a cinch she couldn't have inflicted that bruise on his jaw."

"Those are the things that have puzzled me," murmured Hanvey. "They don't seem to fit in anywhere. Now, Marty Gallagher has found out that Peter McIntosh was broke and needed money and also that he hated Thornton——"

"Mac never did it," said Anice positively.

"What makes you think so?"

"He isn't that kind."

"Well, for that matter—who is?" Jim lighted one of his atrocious cigars. "It's a mixup all 'round, and the only definite opinion I've got is that as strong as the cases are against several folks, they've got to be stronger against one in order to convict honestly."

Anice was thoughtful.

"I saw Doris Manning the other day," she remarked. "Horrible as this whole thing was, I believe it has taught her something."

"What, for instance?"

"Well, she was just a kid——"

"Your age," broke in Terry.

"My age, your foot. Same number of years, perhaps, but I've been trouping since I was fourteen and compared to her I'm a hundred."

"That's why you think of me as a kid, eh?"

"Precisely. You're an infant. I'd feel like I was stealing from a kindergarten if I married you. Anyway, Doris was self-indulgent. No mother, a father who was crazy about her, all the money in the world, a certain amount of ability—and a first real love affair. I think that maybe the danger in which she sees her father and Carey Weldon has brought her to her senses. She seems frightened—and a little bit ashamed—although she walks around town holding her head mighty high."

"Do you think," asked Jim, "that she'll ever fall in love with Carey Weldon again?"

"Not again—no. Because she never was in love with him, really, any more than she was with Mr. Thornton. But she might fall in love with him for the first time."

"Gee!" sighed Jim, "I hope so. I love to see young folks in love."

"Then," commented Terry, "you must get an awful kick out of just looking at me."

They left the restaurant and walked to Hanvey's hotel. The young folks chatted a good bit, but Jim was thinking. It seemed that the case was getting nowhere at all.

"We're at a standstill," he told Terry. "If it was a game instead of a murder we could call it a draw and go home. I almost wish something new would happen."

And, as though in answer to Jim Hanvey's wish, something did happen; something which perked the Thornton case out of its feature position in the daily press and back to the news columns—something so startling that the story—as a newspaper story—took a fresh lease on life and became more vitally interesting than it had been since the night Wylie Thornton was killed.

Terry Mooney and Anice Garet escorted Jim to the lobby of his hotel, intending to bid him goodnight. They were greeted by the hotel manager, who was obviously excited.

"Mr. Hanvey," said that dignitary, "Inspector Gallagher has been calling you for the last half hour. He says it's of tremendous importance and for you to call him immediately at headquarters."

"Good . . ." Jim started for the elevator, and the others followed.

"Let me go up with you," pleaded Terry. "In case it's something connected with the case."

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

"Mary Thornton has been strangled."

Jim grunted affirmatively, and three minutes later they were in his room.

The manager had evidently given orders to the house operator, because almost instantly Jim's telephone rang and Gallagher's voice barked at the big man through the receiver.

"Hanvey?"

"Yes."

"This is Gallagher."

"All right. What's up?"

"There's hell to pay."

"Thornton case?"

"You tell 'em. Grab a taxi and beat it quick to the Raleigh hotel. Alone. I'll meet you in the lobby and give you the layout."

"Can't you give me a hint now?"

"Yes." Gallagher's voice fairly crackled with excitement. "Mary Thornton has been assaulted. Strangled. In her room at the Raleigh. She may be dying. We've called a doctor, but I left orders that nothing was to be touched until you got here. Now—step on it!"

TERRY begged permission to accompany Hanvey to the Raleigh hotel. It was granted on condition that he and Anice remain in the taxi.

"And, son," counseled Jim, "not a word of this until Marty gives the word. This is his case—not mine."

"Good!" Terry was trembling with excitement. "I'll take Anice to her hotel after we leave you. Then I'll wait at headquarters."

Not until they were in the taxi was any comment made on the startling occurrence. Anice Garet looked at Jim's heavy impassive face.

"None of my business, Mr. Hanvey," she said, "but I wonder whether I got it straight."

"You did," said Jim.

"Mary Thornton has been attacked and probably murdered?"

"Looks that way."

"Did Gallagher give any hint as to who did it?"

"Nope."

"I wonder if he knows?"

"Certainly not," broke in Terry. "That's why he wants Jim—to help him find out. Gee! what a whale of a yarn . . . and I can't understand . . . Have you any hunches, Jim?"

"Not about this particular thing, son. But as a general rule when something like this happens at this stage of a case, it means that the assault has been committed by some one to keep some one else from telling something."

"Then you think Mary Thornton knew more than she told you?"

"Gosh, no! Whatever gave you such an idea? I said as a general rule. I don't know a thing about this."

"But," broke in Anice, "I believe this attack might be traced to whoever hit Wylie Thornton on the jaw."

"What makes you think that, sister?"

"Because that blow on the jaw and this attack on Mary Thornton are the only two things connected with the case that look like violence, and it seems reasonable to presume that the same person did both."

A smile spread over Jim's broad face and he extended his hand.

"Anice," he said, "if the theatrical profession ever fails to recognize your talent, gimme a ring. I can use you in my business."

"You think I'm right?"

"I couldn't say that . . . but at least you're logical."

The car came to a halt outside the Raleigh. Jim dropped heavily to the curb, waved a fleshy paw at his young friends and walked inside. As he passed through the revolving door, a powerful pair of hands grabbed his arm and Marty Gallagher yanked him behind a screen of potted palms in the lobby.

Marty was even more excited than he had been the night of the murder.

"Can you beat it?" he gasped.

"I don't know," answered Jim. "Can you?"

"Hell, no! I can't even tie it. Just when the biggest case in local police history seems dying of dry rot, some dam fool makes a play right into our hands. We're sittin' pretty, Jim—awful pretty."

"How so?"

Marty frowned. "Jim Hanvey," he asked sharply, "are you as dumb as you seem, or do you just talk that way?"

"I guess I'm dumb, Marty. Why?"

"Because, you blasted elephant, as soon as we get our hands on the man who strangled Mary Thornton, the case is finished. It's a cinch that he's the guy who killed her husband."

Jim's face was grave.

"Is she dead?"

"No."

"Will she die?"

"I don't know that, either. The doc just got here and I sent him upstairs. I've got a man on duty outside the door. The doc is to wait there until we come and he ain't to say a word to anybody. I've been half crazy trying to locate you——"

"I was eating chop suey with that Mooney kid and his sweetie."

"I might have guessed it. How you can waste your time on them two youngsters——"

"They're nice, defended Hanvey. "I like 'em."

"Forget 'em for a while, will you? I've been on the job while I was waiting to get you. Sent out two of my best men to work under cover and find out just where Carey Weldon, Maj. Manning and John Norris were while this thing was happening to Mary Thornton."

"Didn't you forget Pete McIntosh?" Gallagher was puzzled.

"I didn't think you suspected him."

"Maybe I don't. But if you're checking up alibis you might as well make a complete job of it."

"Kayo!" Marty stepped into a telephoone booth and called tensely. Then he returned to Jim.

"They're after Pete now . . . to see where he was. Let's you and me get up to room six-twelve."

"Got any dope on this thing, Marty?"

"No, except that when the maid went in to clean up she found Mary Thornton lying on the bed, apparently dead. Of course she knew all about Wylie Thornton's murder and it drove her cockeyed. She went down the corridor shrieking like the devil was after her. The house dick went up, took one look, and called me. I phoned the Doc and came right up."

"Anybody known to have visited her this evening?"

"House manager says not."

"It could have been done without anybody noticing, though—couldn't it?"

"Sure. The elevators are off in that L yonder. People go up all the time without the desk seeing 'em."

The elevator stopped at the sixth floor and Jim followed the inspector to the room. The plainclothesman on duty saluted as Gallagher approached.

"Anything new?" asked Gallagher.

"Nothing, sir."

"Nobody tried to get in?"

"Nobody except the assistant manager. He seemed scared to death that the hotel would get a bad name. But I wouldn't let him in."

"Good." Marty opened the door and stepped inside, Hanvey at his heels.

THE room was in disorder, but the eyes of both men flashed to the bed where lay the unconscious figure of Mary Thornton.

She wore a simple black dress. The doctor, working over her, had torn the waist open at the throat and was busily engaged in trying to restore normal respiration.

Hanvey and Gallaghed stepped close. They could see ugly black and blue marks on the delicate white throat of the unfortunate woman. Her face was pallid; the eyes were closed—and occasionally the slender figure quivered spasmodically. Gallagher questioned the doctor.

"Is she going to die, Doc?"

The medical man answered without looking up.

"No," he said.

"You're sure?"

"As certain as a man can be about such things."

"She was strangled?"

"Yes."

"Any other bruises . . . that is, was she beaten up, or just choked?"

"I can't find any marks except those on her throat."

"Was it a man?"

"Can't say positively, but it probably was."

Jim Hanvey seemed strangely uninterested in the conversation. He waddled heavily about the room, inspecting the dressing table, the chiffonier, the clothes closet. And finally his eyes fell upon two pieces of paper which lay on the floor.

WITH an audible grunt, the mammoth detective stooped and picked up these bits of paper. He fitted them together and inspected them closely. And then—expressionless as he was by nature and training—he very clearly gave evidence of surprise.

He stuffed the two pieces of paper in his vest pocket and approached the bed. Marty was talking to the doctor.

"Yeh, Doc," he was saying, "I know she's gotta go to the hospital right away . . . but can't you do something that'll bring her to for just a minute. I must ask her one question."

"I don't like to, Inspector——"

"O! for the love of Mike! This is a murder case, Doc—maybe two murders. And the man that got to her is ten-to-one the same bimbo that bumped off her husband. Work on her, Doc . . gosh! wouldn't it be awful if she went and died on us without ever saying who did this?"

The doctor bent to his task. Marty watched him with almost pitiful eagerness, and Jim Hanvey himself seemed keenly concerned.

And then, just when it seemed that the doctor's efforts would meet with no success, the eyelids fluttered and a sob escaped from Mary Thornton's purple lips.

She was conscious! The doctor straightened and nodded to Marty Gallagher.

Gallagher bent over and talked in a soothing, gentle voice. Hanvey looked at him in amazement. Marty begged her to fight for recollection . . . to give him the name of the person who had assaulted her.

It was plain that she understood. Her dry lips moved as she struggled to articulate.

And finally with an almost superhuman effort, she uttered the name of the man who had attacked her. She spoke it firmly and clearly—before relapsing into unconsciousness.

And the name she spoke was one that Jim Hanvey had never heard.

"Who did it, Mrs. Thornton?" begged Gallagher.

And she uttered the name—

"Lovely Holmes!"

The effect upon Marty Gallagher was galvanic. He jerked his head toward the doctor as he leaped for the telephone.

"Take her out, Doc. And stick with her. I wish you'd report to me after you've got her settled."

HE called a number, fidgeted impatiently as he waited, and finally barked into the transmitter:

"That you, Newt?—All right, this is Gallagher—Get this: and get it straight. We want Lovely Holmes. Yeh, that's right . . . the hustler. Send out every motorcycle scout on the force. Shoot 'em on every road leading out of the city and tell 'em to keep going till they get that bird—sure, he's most likely making a getaway—no, not if it can be helped; we want him alive. Telephone all the towns around to be on a watch for him. And send out every loose man you've got to hunt him in the city—Important? Great suffering tomcats! Man! he's the guy who killed Wylie Thornton!"

The ambulance stretcher bearers arrived and carried off the unconscious form of Mary Thornton. And then the police inspector threw himself in an easy chair. He was smiling and his eyes were shining triumphantly.

Jim Hanvey was standing by the window, placidly puffing at a rank cheroot. Gallagher's voice crackled.

"Don't you ever get excited, ox?"

"Sure," murmured Jim. "Sometimes."

"Are you excited now?"

"Terribly." Jim removed the cigar and eyed Marty speculatively. "Funny name: Lovely Holmes."

"Yeh—ain't it?"

"You seem to have heard it before."

"Sure I have."

"Who is he?"

"He's the man we've been needing in this case right from the beginning. He's the missing link, Jim—the man who makes everything clear as crystal. In fact, Jim, I'll tell you positively that if we get Lovely—and we will—we've got the guy who croaked Thornton."

"Interesting . . . but it still don't tell me who he is."

"He's the best known hustler in this city. Crooked dice, crooked cards—in fact he operates a store here; you know, one of them layouts where a sucker can be taken for anything he's got in whatever way suits him best. Lovely is slick—and how! What he can do with a pair of dice is a caution; I've seen him run the scale—start out shooting double ace and work it up point by point to a pair of box cars. Besides that, he's big and bad."

"And you think . . . ?"

"I don't think; I know! Only that I'm so dumb I'd have thought of him, or somebody like him, long ago."

"Why?"

"Because, idiot, there's been two things that have worried us pink—the stealing of four hundred dollars and the wallop on Thornton's jaw. Lovely Holmes done both of those."

"When, Marty? Nobody saw him backstage."

"That don't prove he wasn't there, does it? And do you remember me telling you that the garage man across the street saw somebody hanging around in the alley just about seven o'clock? Well, that was Lovely."

"I thought you said it was probably Carey Weldon."

"Sure I did. Then. But checking back over the time, it's a cinch that Weldon and Maj. Manning didn't get there until after that. O, it was Lovely Holmes all right. Though what the damn fool wanted to kill Mary Thornton for . . . unless she had found out something and he was afraid that she'd spill the dope to us . . ."

"Have you got any idea, Marty, how Thornton might have been mixed up with this hustler?"

"Sure. Didn't you hear right from the first that Thornton was nuts about gambling? Well, Lovely ran a crooked dice game in the McKeever hotel—that old dump on the corner near the theater. Thornton used to play in that game regular and I always knew that they were trimming him heavy. Chances are that he found out he was being gyped and had a run in with Lovely Holmes—and there's a baby, Jim, who wouldn't stop at murder."

Hanvey nodded. "It does look pretty strong."

"Strong? Holy smoke! it's perfect. The only thing we need is to nab that gimmick trying to get out of town. If he's dusting the concrete, we ain't got a thing to do but sweat the story out of him and send him for a ride."

"And if he's sitting at home? You see, Marty, if this Holmes is as clever as you say—that's most likely what he would do."

Gallagher shook his head. "I'd rather he was trying to get away. But we've got him on the Mary Thornton thing, anyway."

THE telephone rang sharply and Gallagher leaped for it. He spoke in brief staccato sentences and when he clicked the receiver on the hook his face was beaming.

"That," he announced, "settles the Wylie Thornton mystery."

"Yeh?" asked Hanvey. "What does?"

"That call. Barker and Jones just telephoned in from Springdale. They nabbed Lovely Holmes beating it away from town at fifty. They say he's scared pink and won't talk. They're taking him to headquarters. Me and you are going to be there, Jim, and we'll break him of his habit of keeping his mouth shut. I told the boys not to tell him nothing."

They walked to headquarters together. At the door of Marty Gallagher's office they were greeted by Ken Johnston, Terry Mooney and Max Ross. All three of the reporters were clamoring loudly for news. Marty escorted them into his private room and made a statement.

"Boys!" he announced. "I've got a story for you as is a story. The Wylie Thornton mystery is solved!"

"What?"

"Absolutely. Tonight, in her room at the Raleigh hotel, Mary Thornton was assaulted, strangled, and perhaps killed by Lovely Holmes . . . maybe you've heard of him . . ."

"Sure we have."

"She recovered consciousness long enough to mention his name in the presence of Jim Hanvey, Doc Kennedy and myself. They've got her over at the General hospital now. But the big point is that Motorcycle Scouts Baker and Jones just grabbed Holmes near Springdale. He was hell bent for somewhere else, which proves that he was in on this, as the dame says. Also remember that the blow on Thornton's jaw and the stealing of four hundred smackers out of his wallet both check up with Lovely Holmes, where it was a weak spot all the way through with any of our other suspects." Gallagher was beaming. "Hop to it, boys. You can shoot the works."

THERE was a howl of joy as the reporters leaped for the door, but the quiet, unemotional voice of Jim Hanvey stopped them.

"Just a minute," he suggested, "before you telephone your dope."

They whirled and Ken Johnston spoke.

"What's wrong, Jim?"

"Nothing. Maybe."

"You mean there is?"

"Well—yes and no. I'd like to talk to Marty alone before you turn loose on that story."

Gallagher's face had fallen and he was staring at Jim Hanvey disgustedly.

"Say listen," he said querulously, "always when I've got everything fixed up, you butt in and ruin it."

"I ain't ruining anything, Marty. But I'd hate to see you hurt your rep by popping off too soon."

"What do you mean: Too soon? Are you trying to tell me that Lovely Holmes didn't do it?"

Jim fumbled with his golden toothpick. "Lemme talk to you alone, Marty. And you reporters hold off for a couple of minutes, will you?"

Somewhat disgruntled, they promised and filed from the room. Gallagher whirled on his friend.

"What the devil is wrong now?" he demanded. "What have you got up your sleeve?"

"Plenty," answered Jim calmly. "Now listen: When you and the Inspector were trying to bring Mary Thornton around, I did some snooping around her room. I found two pieces of paper on the floor, Marty—and they like to have knocked me cold. They'll give you a shock, too, Marty—and may indicate that perhaps it wasn't Lovely Holmes who killed Wylie Thornton."

"How about Mary Thornton?"

"O! I guess Holmes attacked her all right. But this thing I found. . . well, it's the dog-gondest clue we've run across yet."

Mary was irritable—and bitterly disappointed.

"All right, Jim—let's see your clue."

Very carefully Hanvey extracted two pieces of paper from his pocket. He placed these on the desk and fitted them together.

"There you are, Marty. Look it over, and tell me what you see."

Marty Gallagher looked. Slowly his jaw drooped and his eyes widened. As from a great distance he heard Jim Hanvey's voice—

"And remember, I found that on the floor of Mary Thornton's room."

Gallagher gasped. Then he bent forward and looked again, as though refusing to credit the evidence of his senses.

The two pieces of paper, fitting perfectly, showed themselves to be a certified check in the amount of one hundred thousand dollars. The check was drawn on the Fourth National bank and Marty noticed that it was dated September thirteenth—just five days before the killing of Wylie Thornton.

But there were two other features of the check which struck Marty Gallagher with sledge-hammer force.

The first was that the check was made payable to the order of Wylie Thornton.

And the second fact—unbelievable and amazing—was the signature.

The check was signed in bold, clear handwriting with the name "Carey Weldon"!

Healthiest!

"My little daughter is just about the healthiest girl I know," says Mrs. J. Abberger, 7516 Ingleside Ave., Chicago. "And I want to give credit where it is due.

"Marie was constipated several years ago and I gave her California Fig Syrup. It helped her so wonderfully that I have used it ever since for her upsets or colds. It has kept her strong, energetic, rugged."

Children suffer when bowels are irregular. Breath becomes fetid; tongue coated; eyes dull. When these symptoms are neglected, biliousness, feverishness, lack of appetite invariably follow.

The first dose of California Fig Syrup relieves these symptoms at once, activates sluggish bowels. Successive doses help tone and strengthen weak bowels; improve appetite; encourage digestion and assimilation. Try it on a bilious, headachy, constipated child and see how it helps!

The pure vegetable product, endorsed by doctors for 50 years, always has the name California. So look for it when buying.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Tempting Menus for the Week — by Jane Eddington

As Appetizers, as the Main Dish of a Meal, or as Dessert, the Pancake Is Always Popular.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

ANCIENT folk observances and the smartest of modern practices, mostly expensive practices, unite in supplying a vast pancakiana. The names alone of different sorts of pancakes would make a great catalogue for a pancake monograph. Many of these, like flapjack, are more ancient than some of us would guess, while some gay home cooks have called them butterflies, meaning really that they are butterfliers. And then they have been given such prosaic names as wheat cakes. To pursue this subject of their varieties and names would take us far, indeed.

Three hundred years ago, at least, the solemn bell which called the devout to church on Shrove Tuesday that they might be shriven of their sins was, by the rascal route, called the pancake bell, and so the day was called Pancake day. This fact has been expressed in the eternally quoted:

"Big A, little a,
This is pancake day."

And many another rhyme has been made concerning this day and the foods served during the day, because it is also Mardi Gras or fat day. Some of the verses have been begging verses, asking for some fat bacon and for other dishes containing fat, as well as exceptionally dainty things. This begging was called irreverently "a-shrovin'."

The name of Shrove Tuesday was retained in England after the reformation, although the practice of shriving, in which it had its origin, was abandoned, yet the precept of shriving was fulfilled in the idea that the faithful, on the eve of entering upon Lent, were permitted to lend themselves to amusements and to festive celebrations, as they do still on the continent of Europe. As to the name of the "ball," or dance of the day, it was spoken of vulgarly as pancake ball, and the day pancake Tuesday. Of the many practices one was, in the old days, that pancakes would be served to any person who might come inside a door of a home. Because people had delighted in pancakes, the old time customs have survived.

It is pleasant to dwell upon Shrove Tuesday because it has been one of the friskiest days in the calendar, or Mardi Gras day, crowded full of every type of amusement, because forty days without amusement and with what we know as lenten fare, were at hand. In fact, and most expressively, perhaps, it was high carnival day. The great observers of carnival in Europe today are often the students, and the school boys of old celebrated the day in many ways, one of which concerned pancake tossing.

Modern Smart Customs.

Our latest custom with the pancake is what can be truly called smart, although the old ways and the old habits go right on. This smart custom of the pancake appetizer may have started with the imitation of the Russian custom of serving caviar and sour cream on tiny hot pancakes called "blinis." But even more modern, and perhaps smarter, while a good deal less expensive, is the imitation of a French custom which has been a long time in existence, of filling a thin pancake with something sweet and serving it at the end of a meal.

The modern electric grill has favored this entertaining way of ending a meal, which is now increasingly popular. To some people this seems like lifting right out of the lumber camps and boarding houses of our United States a bit of common fare, universally served in these places, and exalting it.

In the lumber camps the common name for this type of bread was the flapjack, which term is old and English and related to the idea of tossing the pancake, which diversion has been lately adopted by some of the great movie actresses, who have acquired skill in the business for the sake of the pictures, but the stills which we have seen of them justify the criticism that they have not yet learned to catch a pancake after it was tossed.

Carnival Pancake.

Two years ago we tried out and exploited a recipe from an English source, with the title "Carnival Pancake," which was published with a list of recipes called "Shrove Tuesday Cookery." This pancake is truly a festival bit, and so eminently suitable for a dessert that we have listed it among the truly de luxe recipes of a rather vast collection of pancake recipes.

The pancake itself is like the best French pancakes (crêpes), thin, and then it has the filling which we had to adapt because originally it was one with the rum flavor, which flavor we consider unnecessary, since without it the filling is so attractive. In adapting the recipe we changed it somewhat, and it read then: One cup scalded milk, one cup flour after it is sifted, or, if weighed, use one quarter of a pound, one tablespoon of sugar, a pinch of salt, half a yeast cake mixed with a little tepid milk, two eggs. Mix this to a batter and let rise in a place where it is gently warmed for two hours, then add to it two whites of eggs beaten to a stiff froth and two tablespoons of cream.

Perhaps the best way to cook this is on the gently heated griddle, but the English directions said, "Pour a spoonful of this batter in a small frying pan lightly buttered, and place over a brisk fire. As soon as the pancake begins to get firm and is slightly browned, turn it over to cook on the other side. Serve pancakes as soon as cooked."

Then it is advised that the filling, which is called a salpicon, be passed along with it with a little sirup, but it is more entertaining and prettier, we think, to roll the filling into the pancake and serve at once.

The filling: Three ounces candied cherries, an ounce of angelica, the rind of half an orange and its juice, a little sirup to blend these, and lastly two tablespoons of apricot jam. Cut the candied fruits fine and mix with the sirup. Any standard sirup will do, but it should be thick enough to make the filling rather stiff, so it will not run out of the pancake after it is rolled.

French Pancakes.

The French pancakes, or crêpes, have come increasingly to our more sophisticated cooking and with a little practice there is no type of sophistication which the home cook can so easily practice. They are cooked thin, but not as thin as the German pancake, which contains little or no flour, and the batter must be very thin. In trying out a recipe for French pancakes, if it is not thin enough, the best way is always to scant the flour rather than to add more liquid.

We have advised learning to make the sweet ones first, because the sugar helps to make them brown, and then when we get a satisfactory recipe we can leave the sugar out and use the pancake even with meat gravies. Small French pancakes are used as a part of a service of fried chicken and gravy. Probably the best batters are those which are mixed and allowed to stand, and the first superior batter we ever got—we lost the recipe—was one flavored with orange water.

A test of a true French pancake, which may be made with precisely the same batter, though usually thinner, with which we make other pancakes, with the same number of eggs, is that it can be rolled after it is baked without breaking and made into a close little packet.

Sweet French Pancake.

One-half cup flour, one-fourth cup powdered sugar, three eggs, two cups or just a little more of milk, flavoring, and a bit of salt. Sift the flour before measuring it and for perfection sift it several times, because a single teaspoon of flour may be too much except in a small recipe like this, and make the difference between success and failure. Finally, measure the sifted flour and sift with it the already sifted sugar and salt.

Make a little well in the middle of the bowl, beat the eggs and add them to the milk, pour the mixture into the little well of flour, and stir until the combined ingredients are like a thin cream. This may be cooked at once and the best way to discover if it is a pancake that will roll is to bake a small cake and try it. It is highly important that the griddle be right, that is, slowly heated and the batter poured out in as thin a sheet as possible. It is best to have a batter that when it rises will not have bubbles, as ordinary pancakes do. If there are a few, these may be pricked out. Turn the cake after two minutes and cook on the other side.

With an exceedingly thin batter it is difficult to pour out a perfect round, but if they are to be rolled it does not make so much difference if they are somewhat oblong.

Crêpe Suzette.

My own first experience with a crêpe Suzette was in the famous French restaurant, Foyot's, and I was not pleased. It was a little French pancake heated up in a chafing dish in some spirituous mixture supposed to be whisky. It made it seem soggy, and since I despise whisky, the flavor did not please me.

This characteristic item which we see even on many menus today is simply a pancake, first baked and then heated up in the wetness. However, this wetness may be prepared.

The first rolled French pancake it was my privilege to taste was in a famous epicurean restaurant in the city of Strassbourg, in 1913. It was a pancake covered with a thick chocolate sirup and rolled, and was served at the end of my meal. I am mentioning this with the date just to show how long it takes, sometimes, for us to adapt a good thing. We have been using the pancake as a dessert for a very small number of years.

Pancake Variety.

It is not absolutely necessary that we make a thin pancake in order to serve it for a dessert. In blueberry time we often put blueberries into a pancake batter and then the pancakes are served with a little sweet sirup, or even buttered and sugared only. Dates may be cut fine and used in the same way, but the pancake may be plain and quite thick and then covered with some acceptable filling to make a sort of shortcake of it.

A cornmeal pancake may have a creamed vegetable over it to make it an excellent luncheon dish. Pancakes of this sort are sometimes called savory pancakes. A green pepper and ham mixture is used over an excellent little pancake made with the dust of cayenne pepper and a little grated cheese, all of which, I hope, proves that there is no end of ways of adapting this little piece of bread or cake to meal service.

Points to Remember.

Cooks are much more likely to fail in the baking of the pancake than at any other point, and therefore we have enumerated the items of procedure as follows:

First, the more mirror smooth the iron on which a pancake is baked, the less oiling or buttering it will need. A piece of fat salt pork on a fork or tied up in a cloth, though old fashioned, will do just the right thing to prepare an iron for the cake. People who put on a griddle a tablespoon of butter or other fat and let it melt and spread have an idea that pancakes are to be fried, and they often do it in a smoking glass. If the griddle is prepared in that fashion after the fat is put on, it should be practically all wiped off again before the batter is added.

The iron, or whatever griddle is used, should be heated and have a sort of solid heat. The cold batter cools it slightly, but there should not be more than enough heat under the iron to toast a thin, wet batter a fine brown, or a thicker and ordinary batter a fine brown in about five minutes to a side, two to three for the thin.

When a pancake is perfectly baked, that is, when it is turned at just the right point as well as cooked long enough, the sides are as much alike as two peas, when it is done. This will not happen if the batter is full of bubbles, which the too hot iron will force up to the top and also make break before the cake is turned. In other words, if the iron is too hot this will happen before it is time to turn the cake.

THE THRILL OF PARKING

STRONG'S INHIBITION - By Elizabeth Jordan

you're red hot. But when you've cooled off——"

"Shut up and look at me."

Hastings raised his eyes and looked into David's. He was not a coward, but his heart dropped a beat at what he saw there.

"Do you think now that I'm bluffing?" David asked in a low tone. Hastings made no answer and he went on.

"What I want to do is to kill you and swing for it. I'd enjoy swinging for it, if I knew you were safely in your grave," David ended with a sudden fury that made the other blink. "But I've got to give you one chance. Keep away from my wife and me and you can live. Come near us just once, directly or indirectly, and I'll shoot you dead. The only safe thing for you to do is to leave this town. Leave it tomorrow. Understand?"

"Some fool has filled you with a lot of rotten gossip. There isn't a word of truth in it," Hastings cried furiously. "Your wife——"

David raised the revolver.

"My wife has been foolish enough to let you hang around her lately," he said, "but she hasn't reached the point where she needs your defense. Get me?" He lowered the revolver.

"Sit down," he ordered again, and this time Hastings obeyed with a muttered remark about "humoring a lunatic."

"I'm going now," said David. "You're going to sit here half an hour and then you're going downstairs and straight home. And tomorrow you're leaving town for good. You've had a fine offer in Chicago."

HASTINGS was a rattlesnake. He struck now, suddenly and viciously.

"I love and respect Mrs. Strong," he flashed. "I'd marry her if she was free and would have me. I'm not sure she would. We've never discussed the subject. What I am sure of is that she won't stay with a damned iceberg like you much longer. I'll go to Chicago, all right, but when she has left you I'll come back."

It was the similarity of his prediction to Osborne's that cut David. Both Osborne and this viper were convinced that he had lost Penelope.

"Stay in Chicago if you love life," he advised, and left the room.

The interview had been a short one. On the dancing floor Penelope was still in the arms of Keefe—dancing an encore, it appeared. David took her quietly away.

"Cutting in," he explained to Keefe with a wan grin. He was a good dancer, but at the end of one circuit of the room Penelope stopped.

"Something has happened," she said. "I saw you going upstairs with Jack Hastings a few minutes ago. David! What is it?"

David looked at her, struggled with himself for a moment, and then cast aside forever the inhibition which had bound him like an icy cable all his life.

"It's love," he said. "I've just realized tonight all you mean to me, and it struck me as a damned silly performance for me to be sitting at home while you're here. As for Hastings, he tells me he's got a big job in Chicago and is leaving tomorrow."

Penelope stared at him, trying to understand.

"Come and sit down," he said and walked her over to two empty chairs in a corner.

"You look so odd," she faltered. "Aren't you well?"

David sat down beside her and passed his hand across his brow.

"Not very," he admitted. "My head feels as if it had a tight steel vise around it. I suppose I've been working too hard." He changed the look of apprehension in her eyes to incredulous delight with his next words.

"Penelope," he said abruptly, "I think we both need a change. Suppose I fix things here so I can leave them—it won't take more than a few weeks—and then you and I will sail for Spain and Morocco and Algeria and Italy? I want to be off somewhere alone with you. What I have in mind," he added determinedly, "is a second and longer honeymoon. I'm going to prove to you that I have the makings of a first rate husband—adoring, attentive, and—and demonstrative."

Penelope turned a long look on him. Their eyes held and he saw that she understood. That was that! Nothing need ever be said about Hastings.

"O, Davy, it will be too wonderful!" Penelope cried.

Another Savaran Story

This time it tells of a young American girl whose willfulness has placed her in the power of Africa's most brutal king.

Women the World Over

Distinguished as one of the most capable of her sex now in federal employ, Miss Annabel Matthews of Gainesville, Ga., was recently appointed a member of the board of tax appeals in Washington, D. C. She is the first woman ever to attain this position.

Miss Anna Weinstock of Roxbury, Mass., and Miss Emmilinne Pitts of Pittsburgh, Pa., are known in Washington, D. C., as "commissioners of conciliation." They are employed by the U. S. department of labor to help settle the strikes that constantly occur in the ranks of workers over the country.

Mary Ann Gem, 12 years old, who came from China six years ago, was recently elected president of the Omaha unit of girl reserves, a national organization fostering patriotism, of which Mrs. Herbert Hoover is honorary president and active member.

Beautiful Complexion Without Rouge

Do you want a beautiful complexion? Without the use of rouge? And color that is all your own? If you suffer from constipation give your system just a tiny calcium wafer! Don't take that customary pill on Saturday night—let a Stuart Calcium wafer help Nature do its magic work for you!

Stuart's Calcium wafers frequently clear away all impurities resulting from constipation and which keep the skin sallow or dull. They help to keep pores purged and the cuticle clean. Often you feel and see the difference from the very first day you take a tiny, sugar-coated Stuart Calcium wafer!

Don't take anything you have to double each time—take something you can cut in two each time.

Make This Test

A five-day test is sufficient to prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium wafers, and the decided benefit from the use of these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 10c. Or the family size, 60c.

"My Skin Near Drove Me Mad"

"I had blemishes and blackheads badly, and used to fuss with them so much that my face looked positively raw. On the advice of a nurse friend I got a jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and used it faithfully for ten days. In 3 days' time there was a big difference in my skin and today it is as smooth and clear as my ten year old sister's. The sulphur in Rowles Mentho-Sulphur clears the skin while the Mentho soothes sore, broken tissue. That's the combination you want for skin troubles. Try Rowles Mentho-Sulphur not only for pimples and blackheads but for dry, scaly skin, eczema, itching eczema. IT WORKS! All druggists sell it in jars ready for use. Be sure it's Rowles.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Charles Collins, Mae Tinee, Philip Kinsley, Burns Mantle, Robert Benchley, Edward Moore

MARCH 2, 1930.

Life in Old England, as Seen by One American

He Visits Fleet Street, the Home of the Law and the Press.

By Philip Kinsley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON. — (Special Correspondence.) — Fleet street, home of those two great English institutions, the law and the press, is an astonishing little thoroughfare of low, irregular buildings, curving around a jewel of an old church at the Strand and ending in Ludgate Circus and the hill that leads to St. Paul's. It is in the city of London proper, where even the king may not enter without permission.

A narrow, dark, little street, with the buses thundering by like a herd of elephants, the lights in grimy windows revealing the names of all the great newspapers in the world. For if they do not publish here they have correspondents stationed here. The Times is the only absentee. It is on the other side of Ludgate hill. The new building of the Telegraph gives a modern touch. Most of it is old and crowded, dark and damp, with the authentic flavor of the London of Dickens and Dr. Johnson.

A Different Viewpoint.

From the crowded sidewalks, where old ale houses, wine shops, book stalls and cheap jewelry and clothing stores are wedged in among the newspaper offices, the only escape is into narrow, tortuous alleys filled with trucks and the smell of printer's ink, or into the quiet courts of the law, the Temple, Lincoln's Inn or Serjeant's Inn. Here sit the solicitors and their "clarks," just as in the days of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce.

News is news, of course, the world over, and Fleet street has its record of great beats, or scoops, but the traditional British viewpoint of a newspaper is not that of America. The American newspaper treats news of general interest as the all important thing. The British newspapers are primarily organs of opinion, class organs, with emphasis on special articles and expert criticism. In editorial and critical matter the standard of culture is much higher than in the American general newspaper.

Ignored Death of Squire.

The treatment of news may be illustrated by this story. A few days ago a country gentleman, a master of the hounds, was found dead by the river bank near his house, a revolver lying by his side. This would have made a first rate mystery for any American paper. The Express printed a column on the first page. The Mail and the Chronicle put it on their first news pages, which are inside. The three old journals, the Times, the Telegraph and the Post, ignored the story entirely. At least I could not find it in the editions which I searched. They evidently did not consider it of any interest to their readers. They preferred an art review or a long article on gardening.

The method of handling this story is illustrative of another vast difference in American and English journalism. Although this was evidently a suicide, no hint of this solution was given beyond the bare fact that the revolver was lying by the dead man's hand. There was no attempt made to explain the death, no search of the man's past for motives, no initiative shown in solving the mystery. It was not until two or three days later, when the coroner gave his official opinion, that any attempt was made to solve this case. The reason for this is the British libel laws. It is not permitted to label a man a suicide until the case has been officially so decided. Many other things are forbidden. Divorce cases are not reported unless the judge indicates that publicity is desirable. Photographers are barred absolutely from the courtrooms. There is no speculation, no going ahead of the police in crime stories. Even the sensational Sunday newspapers that specialize in crime features merely present in detail what has taken place in court.

U. S. Reporter Sent Home.

A New York police reporter was imported a few years ago by a London paper which was Americanizing its news pages. There was a murder down in the country one Sunday. He went down and got all the facts, solved the case and wrote the story. By some strange chance it got by the sub editors and editor and went into the paper. The next morning, when he arrived at the office filled with pride and expecting a raise in salary, he was met by a Scotland Yard man and taken to jail. He had broken all the laws, it seemed. He was shipped back to New York by the next boat.

The libel laws are very strict and the papers report only what the police and the courts permit them to use.

Mrs. Rosaline Fox was found dead in room 46 of the Hotel Metropole in Margate last October, after a fire had broken out in her room. Scotland Yard was called into the case and it was a month later before the papers cautiously reported that the "Yard" had decided that the death was by violence, and two months later before an arrest was made and then the suspect named, although this probably had been known for weeks.

In the case of a woman in London who caused the arrest of an osteopath for attempted blackmail, the magistrate permitted her to keep her identity secret, and the papers therefore only referred to her all through the case as "Mrs. X.," although her name was known.

Personal Pronoun Used.

The usual method of writing a story is the narrative form, beginning at the beginning, without the American effort at selection and emphasis in a lead. The personal pronoun is often used, although the story is usually anonymous. "I am informed that," or "The Daily Telegraph understands," is a common way of opening a story. Whatever selection is made of interesting and significant facts is usually done by the sub editor, who has a function on an English paper including that of responsible editor and copyreader. The sub editing, the breaking of a story into sections, is one of the most attractive features of the English paper. Emphasis may be directed to certain facts in a story by a change in type only. The writing is often colorful and distinctive. One of the best newspaper stories that I recall anywhere was that of the Express correspondent on the royal wedding in Rome.

Although the English papers, even the most conservative, have adopted the American interview as a form of news, the report of the interview, as well as the reports of speeches in parliament or at banquets, is usually done in a different way. The person talking is seldom quoted directly. They use the same device that was used when the White House spokesman lived in Washington. The words of the speaker are used, but they are not put in quotation marks.

Few Quotation Marks Used.

The British diplomats and politicians are not often put to the burden of declaring they were misquoted. Only the editors know that in such a sentence as "The prime minister was of the opinion that adjournment would be taken over the week end," that this was an exact quotation of what the prime minister had said. The official reports come in this form, although in court news and ordinary items the London papers are breaking away from this protective tradition. In a provincial paper, however, in a page long report of banquet speeches not a quotation mark will be found.

Here is a typical report of the speech of an M. P. at a rural gathering:

"There were three parties in the house today with one object and aim—to try and cure unemployment. They were all working for one object and the question was the means with which to do it. He could safely say that spreading through all the parties was a strong feeling—if he might use the words—that they preferred English things. They were beginning to think of the English folk first and they had made the discovery that the rest of the world was not suffering from unemployment like we were. When they asked the reason for the difference they found that each country preferred to look after their own folk first. If we in this country preferred English men to work and make the thing needed, then there was an avenue of light in the search for a cure for the ghastly tragedy of unemployment."

Pay Attention to Politics.

All of the papers pay a great deal of attention to politics and the government. Parliament is reported much as it is in the Congressional Record, although each paper has a correspondent who sums up in a brief story what has happened during the day. With the exception of the Daily Herald, a new venture in journalism by the Labor party, the papers are all against the party in power, although the Mail or the Express may have a kindly editorial now and then about a Labor minister. How this party of Socialism could gain steadily in England against the daily hammering of the influential press is one of those political mysteries which is not confined to British journalism. Two proprietors of great newspapers, Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, are now trying to put new life into the Conservative party, in a new protective and empire policy which may form the battle lines of the next general election.

G. Binney Dibblee, M. A., late fellow of All Souls college, Oxford, in his book on "The Newspaper," traces important changes in British journalism which followed the bitter tariff controversy at the beginning of this century, a controversy which may easily be revived because of the growing strength of the protective movement among the Conservatives and Liberals, and the refusal of Labor to follow. Mr. Dibblee, after commenting on the independence and stubborn virtue of the British press, writes of this struggle:

"Now without suggesting the slightest imputation on the professional honor of these great journals [Lon-

THE ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS

To an American, used to the presentation of news on the basis of interesting and sensational values, the English papers are dull reading. With the exception of the Express, the Mail, and the Chronicle, which have adopted American methods in a half hearted way, the London papers seem to treat news in an incidental manner, placing it far back in the paper, subordinating it to music, books, drama, markets, or some pet crusade. The Express is the only morning paper that presents a front page of news. Two evening tabloids, the Standard and the News, are much the same as those in New York and Chicago in makeup.

"WE HAVE WITH US THIS WEEK—"

LYNNE OVERMAN

INTRODUCING, on the living screen in loop theaters this week: Gary Cooper and Beryl Mercer in "Seven Days' Leave," at the Chicago; Mae Murray and George Barraud in "Peacock Alley," at the Monroe, and George Marion, Greta Garbo, and Charles Bickford in "Anna Christie," at the Roosevelt.

Also introducing, in stage attractions opening tonight: Mitzi, in a revival of her first big hit, "Sari," at the Illinois, and Lynne Overman in H. H. Frazee Jr.'s "She's No Lady," at the Garrick.

Theaters Put in Ear Phones So Deaf May Hear

Talkies Break Down Wall of Silence.

By Tom Pettey.

NEW YORK, March 1.—[Special.]—The fellow who invented invisible earmuffs for motion picture fans who do not like the talkies may have his following, but the real hero this week is the man who is making it possible for the deaf to hear talking pictures.

There has been a lot of talk in the past about ear phones and other devices to assist the hard of hearing in movie theaters, but this is the first time that anything has been done about it. Warner Brothers, parents of Vitaphone, are equipping their theaters with a "theaterphone" system, designed by Charles H. Lehman.

The Warner theater is the first of the string to be made into a "sound house" for deaf persons. In front of certain seats in various sections of the theater is a small square box. A specially designed ear phone, which an usher will provide upon request, may be plugged into this box and a movable button on the ear piece makes it possible for the user to regulate the volume of sound very much as a radio loud speaker's output is controlled.

Theaters Get Big Hearted.

There are all kinds of people and all kinds of movie houses in this city. Here is what some of the houses are doing for their patrons this week:

The Loew theaters are giving away literature; Roxy's is providing free coffee; the Jefferson and Orpheum are giving away ribless umbrellas on rainy days, and it has rained only once this week; Paramount is seeking to make its patrons "Buddy" Rogers conscious by exhibiting "Buddy" Rogers in person.

It was not so long ago, according to one of my informers, that a big shot director from Hollywood met a successful east coast director at a none too successful dinner party right here on cinema alley. The east coast director some time before had completed a talking picture that caused a lot

Showmanship Asset to Artists, but Merit Sustains Success

By Edward Moore.

Mankind, said a philosophical observer, gets precisely as good a government as it deserves. By which he meant that if the government is bad, it is the fault of the governed for not making it better.

To this there is not quite an exact parallel in music. Mankind gets as much music as it deserves. The inexactitude lies in the fact that there are about three communities in the United States—Chicago is one of them—that get more music than they deserve, more, even, than they need or want.

There is no particular secret about it. Outside of some of the major organizations that belong here, like the Chicago Civic Opera and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, there is hardly an individual or group of individuals in music that does not seek appearance in Chicago, New York, or Boston. For once there is no thought of gain, though the attitude is not altruistic. Operating losses in these cities are charged as advertising expenses for the sake of the bubble reputation, which, carefully inflated, carries its iridescent hues to other communities. In these it is earnestly hoped that the losses may be made up and gains created to take their place. Sometimes the effort in successful. In any event, a tremendous effort is made.

Brief Success Vs. Permanent.

In recent years there has been a feeling among musicians that something more than music is necessary to make a successful career, successful, that is, from a monetary standpoint. In a recent issue of the magazine called Plain Talk there is a piece bearing the point written by Julian Seaman. He gives it the title, "The Musical Circus," and before he gets through the talk becomes rather plain.

The talks about showmanship in music, and apparently he regards it as an unmixed curse to art. He refers to the deluges of publicity, weeks long, that precede a debut, the crowds of "friends, relatives, and poor relations" that pad the audience, the flowers on the platform, and the carefully staged entrance. There is something in this. We who attend many musical events have all seen it many times.

But Mr. Seaman goes too far when he says that the critics, impressed by all this showmanship, have "made" many a mediocre artist. They have not, that is, not permanently. They may get swept off their feet by the popular wave, they may reflect some of it in print, but unless the artist has something back of him besides ballyhoo, that artist's public life is certain to be a brief one. One sees too many cases of carefully prepared debuts, of a hectic public existence for a few seasons followed by permanent retirement, to take much stock in the idea.

Artists "Make" Themselves.

Frequently they are not even able to "make" an artist who has artistic values. It is quite a long time since that great violinist, the dignified, quiet mannered Fritz Kreisler, began playing in America, but for a number of years the American public would have none of him in spite of all the critics could say. Finally he went to war, had a few romantic war stories attached to his name, and came back to find himself more popular than he would have believed possible, with a popularity that has endured to the year 1930 and will endure as long as he cares to play in public.

But not having been able to make him, the whole critical fraternity would have been equally unable to unmake him. Neither could they have stopped Galli-Curci or Heifetz or Horowitz or any one of a dozen others when they got under way. The making or unmaking of such artists rested strictly with themselves. Not that

Drama Lovers Intrigued by Chinese Star

Mr. Mei, Idol of the Orient, Displays His Wares.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — Last week our drama was made up of many national patterns, including the Chinese. Mei Lan-fang, the idol, so they tell us, of 500,000 orientals, paid America a first professional visit and performed before mystified, but frequently enchanted audiences. Enchanted, be it admitted, with the novelty of the exhibit, rather than the entertainment. Chinese drama is still a little difficult for even the most progressive of our drama students.

Mr. Mei is a good looking little man of 37 years. In China, where he has been an actor since he was 12 years old, he is supremely the leader, the head of the Ching-chung monastery, no less, and "foremost of the Pear Orchard," which means that all state authority recognizes him as the first actor of the land.

He also is a tan, and a tan, in case you have been neglectful of your Chinese, is an impersonator of female parts. He has, I understand, never played anything but female parts, which helps to account for his amazing grace of movement.

Master of His Art.

Set in the convention of ages, with every little movement of hand or hip, so to speak, having a meaning all its own, the test of perfection in a Chinese actor is his mastery of these conventions of his art. And Mr. Mei, his Chinese critics admit, has completely attained this mastery.

What is most likely to impress occidentals in his performance is the aforementioned grace, emphasized by the mincing gait that is the indication of his assumed sex, and the extreme mobility of his features.

His beaded black eyes, set in a perfect ivory mask, are wonderfully expressive in revealing all the major passions of joy, anger, sorrow, fear, hate, etc. His smile is coy, as becomes a maiden, and subtle. His enjoyment of humor is apparent and evidently genuine.

His stage is hidden by a gorgeously

FEBRUARY'S SIX BEST PHOTOPLAYS.

CITY GIRL	CHASING RAINBOWS
THE GRAND PARADE	LOVE PARADE
STREET OF CHANCE	SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

Well, what do you think about it? WERE the pictures named above the best that February had to offer? I'll admit I had a sort of a hard time making up my mind, this trip, for there were a lot of creditable films from which a choice had to be made. The six listed are those which, considered from all angles—direction, story, acting, entertainment value, etc.—seemed to ring the bell most loudly.

"THE CITY GIRL" was found to be "extraordinary because of its simplicity; because it presents a believable and interesting story honestly; because it shows real people amid real surroundings acting as they naturally would act were they the characters they are portraying. It is extraordinary because of the unusual nature of its surprises . . . a thoroughly worthwhile program offering. . . . 'The City Girl' brings you life—captured by a camera wizard."

"THE GRAND PARADE" charmed me. It is "an arresting picture that possesses the subtle something called charm. It tells an odd, fascinating 'backstage' story of an earlier day. . . . Helen Twelvetrees is Cinderella, as you have always imagined her—drab, beaten, but living in a world apart, spun from the golden threads of her romantic imaginings . . . It will be a long time before you will forget the magnificent work of Miss Twelvetrees . . . all other rôles are excellently handled. . . . The sympathetic direction that, in spots, lends itself to the novel and fantastic, has much to do with the hold 'The Grand Parade' gets on you at the start and doesn't relinquish till the last prayer has been said."

"THE STREET OF CHANCE" has excitement and plenty of it for you. To quote: "The film is an intelligently directed, adroitly constructed, brilliantly played melodrama, built around the murder of the late New York underworld celebrity, Rothstein, and purports to solve the mystery of his death [for fiction purposes], besides chronicling his activities before 'The Finger' was laid upon him. . . . William Powell has given many notable characterizations to the screen, but never has he done a finer piece of work than his portrayal of 'Natural.' . . . The film is peppery with gripping incidents and the climax is one of the most effective ever achieved in a production of the kind."

"CHASING RAINBOWS" appealed to this o. m. d. as being a "genuinely delightful offering," though admitting its "backstage" motif and likeness in spots to "Broadway Melody."

To refer to the original review: "But, these two admissions off the chest, we can let enthusiasm have its way and declare that 'Chasing Rainbows' is the baby that can show 'Broadway Melody' and a lot of other musical shows we could name, how it ought to be done. . . . Directness of treatment is the punch behind the charm . . . the work of Bessie Love leads the van. She is a dancer, a singer and a darling, and there's no doubt but the right somebody could make a Bernhardt out of her. . . . 'Chasing Rainbows' abounds in clever situations, snap, human interest, bright dialogue, catchy music and effective staging . . . ensemble, dance and solo singing number are excellently handled."

"THE LOVE PARADE."—"Has Maurice Chevalier with his song, his beguiling accent, his droll and alert sense of humor . . . it has Jeanette McDonald with HER smile and song and gay, glancing comedy . . . it has gorgeous costumes, striking sets, charming music and a somewhat 'different' story. It has been directed by the brilliant and resourceful Ernst Lubitsch. . . . 'The Love Parade' is

Theater Renews Its Youth with Revival Habit

Gillette and Conan Doyle as Collaborators.

By Charles Collins.

WHEN, as, and if the historians of the stage write the story of the 1929-'30 season, they will probably label it the Year of Revivals. The American theater, formerly insistent upon novelty, has discovered the value of the past and turned enthusiastically to exhumations of "period stuff."

It would be easy to assert that this tendency has been due to a famine of first rate new plays, but such a statement would not be a satisfactory explanation of the revival mania. Brilliant manuscripts of marketable shows are always scarce. The answer is to be found, rather, in American psychology; we have progressed so rapidly that we are looking backward with curiosity.

We pursue Duncan Phyffe tables through the attics of our ancestors; we collect early American whisky bottles, bird cages, and sauerkraut barrels; we are eager for all forms of "Americana." We have become so keen in the quest of these quaint souvenirs, in fact, that we can detect symptoms of a "period" in something that was a comparatively recent comma. Anything that dates before the Age of Jazz impresses us as delightfully ancient and amusing.

Old Shows and Soubrettes.

This current of popular taste, which has made the antiques shop a close rival to the chicken dinner house and the hot dog booth along our motor highways, has at last reached the theater, giving birth to the Year of Revivals. We have discovered a parallel to the sentimentality about "old books, old wine, old friends"—we have learned to love old songs, old soubrettes, old scenery.

Hence the cycle of Victor Herbert revivals, so pleasantly in progress at the Majestic. Hence the long, prosperous season of obsolete comic operas at the Jolson theater, New York, which has run through the Herbert repertory and passed on to the prewar composers of Vienna— Franz Lehar, Oscar Strauss, et al. Hence "Sari," which opens at the Illinois tonight with its original although much plumper Mitzi.

This list could be extended to an impressive length, if the point were not already proven. It need not include William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," for his farewell tour in this old melodrama is a "natural," unrelated to any vogue. But Mrs. Fiske must be counted among the occupants of the band wagon, for she has just decided to erase a failure in a modern comedy with a revival of "The Rivals," in which she, of course, will frolic with the zigzag dialogue of Mrs. Malaprop.

These archæological expeditions of the stage are all to the good, from the point of view of this column. It is refreshing to discover that musical shows do not need tap dancers and sealskin haired maniacs who blow blue notes out of brass horns. The Year of Revivals has contained a greater variety of theatrical diversion than any of the last five. The mourners at the bier of Old Man Drama are witnessing symptoms of a resurrection.

Running Down Clews.

Mr. Gillette's revival of "Sherlock Holmes" brings up a question that should interest some portion of the millions who have doted upon the deeds of Dr. Watson's favorite detective in print. How much of the play belongs to the dramatist (Mr. Gillette himself) and how much to Conan Doyle? You will have to read all of the fifty-nine stories in which Sherlock figures to give an adequate answer—and that wouldn't be a chore but a vacation.

However, you may assume that any Sherlock Holmes story published after 1899, the date of the play's production, does not figure in the problem. That cuts down the field of investigation considerably. Billy, the brass buttoned office boy, crops up in "The Adventure of the Mazarin Stone," which saw print long after the play was staged; but he is an invention of Mr. Gillette's who was borrowed by Conan Doyle—a curious illustration of how a dramatization may influence the original source.

A great deal of the play sprang from Mr. Gillette's own imagination as he worked over the possibilities of the fictional material. Sherlock himself, the indispensable Dr. Watson and Prof. Moriarity are the only characters in the play that come directly out of Doyle's writings. They form the inevitable trinity of melodrama—the hero, the henchman and the villain, principal agents of any plot dealing with adventure. There never was a heroine in the Holmes stories, and Mr. Gillette wisely refrained from inventing one. On this point he anticipated S. S. Van Dine of the Philo Vance yarns, who has proved by graphs and formulae that a great detective should be sexless.

Quick, Watson, the Papers!

In the first act of "Sherlock Holmes" the quest of "the papers" involving the reputation of a certain Personage comes out of an early story called "A Scandal in Bohemia," which recited the only episode in which Sherlock was ever outwitted. The trick of the false fire alarm is also a part of that tale. In other respects this act belongs to Mr. Gillette, so far as structure is concerned, Sherlock's dialogue, of course, follows the character of fiction closely.

The first scene of the second act brings in Prof. Moriarity, Doyle's best villain, who come into the Sherlock saga in the story called "The Final Problem"—the last tale in the "Memoirs." But the stage setting—the underground office of the master mind of crime—is straight Gillette. The story contains no suggestion of this fantastic hideaway. Incidentally the mechanism of wooden locks and bars

Showmanship Is Helpful Lift to All Musicians

But Solid Merit Sustains Their Reputations.

By Edward Moore.

any one would have cared to try to change it.

As a matter of fact, there is little at all objectionable to showmanship in music. Possibly the "purity" of the art may be best conserved in the studio, but showmanship in public is precisely the same sort of feeling that causes dealers in merchandise to put their goods into colored cartons instead of into a brown paper package tied with a string. The goods are not improved by the process, but they get a better break by looking more attractive. Only, first, last, and all the time, the goods must have merit.

An Able Showman.

One of the best showmen in music of the present generation is Chaliapin. Naturally he has something back of it. In addition to a great voice and a superb sense of the stage he has a personality that makes his mere presence exciting. Just to see him make his entrance in "Boris Godunoff," before he has even opened his mouth to sing, is an event that makes you sit up straighter in your chair, and, be it added, this is an event that has accompanied no other person that ever tried to sing Boris.

If there is any trouble with Chaliapin in opera it is that this same personality of his distorts the work. Wherever he is becomes the focal point of the stage, no matter whom he is with or what he is doing. It sometimes upsets the balance. But, at that, vivid personalities are as rare in music as they are anywhere else.

Being perfectly well aware of his own qualities, he used to play it up for all that it was worth. They say that on his first trip to this country, in 1908, he never used to appear on the street except in a group of five, four or fewer inches than himself. That would naturally cause passers-by to ask who that blonde giant might be and get the answer that it was the great Chaliapin. It was an amusing sort of ballyhoo. It was also harmless as far as permanent artistic results were concerned.

It is true that temporary excitement may sometimes grow up into a good bit of a storm. Stage lighting has great effects. A spotlight playing on the curly locks of a visiting conductor, on black stage from which a pianist projects his musical ideas have frequently created reactions that can hardly be called strictly musical.

Can't Blame Musicians.

Vaudeville artists have from ten to fourteen minutes to impress themselves and their abilities on their audiences. A wise preacher once said that no souls were saved after twenty minutes of preaching. It is hardly surprising, then, that musicians should have sensed something of the sort and resorted to what means they could think up to attract the attention of their patrons, whether these have paid money at the box office or come in by virtue of a penciled slip of paper.

Wherefore, in the long run, there can be no objection to the boy violinist, the operatic artist who is giving a single recital, or the debutante whose father operates a telegraph key backstage sending messages of triumphant success to the home town. Sooner or later the wave will subside. Sometimes the good showman turns out to be a good musician as well, and he is the one who succeeds in the field.

At the same time, success in music undeniably means something in addition to and outside of musical ability; otherwise, John McCormick would not be so far ahead of the second most popular tenor, Kreisler of the next best violinist, Horowitz of the following pianist. These are three superb musicians, also excellent showmen, but in all three cases their runners-up are so far behind that it is hard to trace the reason.

Music Notes.

By one of the coincidences that attends the business of music making, two well known tenors of the Metropolitan Opera company are to appear in recital at Orchestra hall within a day of each other. Beniamino Gigli is to appear this afternoon, sharing the program with Anna Fitziu, a former member of the Chicago Opera company, and Giovanni Martinelli will make his appearance tomorrow evening.

Of the two, Mr. Martinelli is considerably the better known to Chicago, since for several seasons he has been adding the summer season at Lavinia to his other duties. He is appearing under the auspices of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education. It is added that the child study group is sponsoring the concert in order to enlarge its extension program. Two days later the third biennial conference sponsored by the same group will begin at the Palmer house. At this time a number of leading psychologists and sociologists will hold a three day meeting on "the emotional life of the child."

The annual concert of the Swift & Co. male chorus at Orchestra hall Thursday night will be featured by the first performance of the club's prize song, also by the solo appearance of that fine artist, Claire Dux, who comes as guest. The prize song is a setting of Catherine Parmenter's "Outward Bound," composed by Franz Bornschein of Baltimore. At the same time, announcement is made of a new prize competition, the club's tenth, for a setting of Percy Bysshe Shelly's "Indian Serenade." Under the terms of the contest the composer must be a resident of the United States, his work must be for male voices with piano accompaniment, and must be in the hands of D. A. Clippinger, conductor of the club, 617-18 Kimball building, Chicago, not later than June 15. The award of $100 for the winner will be made July 1. The judges will be Dudley Buck, Herbert E. Hyde, and Mr. Clippinger.

Competitions are the life of composition, it would seem, for the Hollywood Bowl association, 7046 Hollywood boulevard, Hollywood, Cal.—there is apparently a reference to Hollywood here—is offering $1,000 for a symphonic poem for orchestra. The usual restrictions are made concerning no previous performance or publication, submission of anonymous manuscript with sealed envelope containing composer's name and address and return postage. March 15 is the limit for presenting manuscripts.

Mr. Stock is playing some new music on the orchestral programs of Friday and Saturday, two pieces from modern Italy. One is Pizzetti's "Concerto dell'Estate," the other, Tommasini's "Preludio, Fanfara e Fuga." Also included will be Leo Sowerby's "From the Northland Suite and the ballet suite from de Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat." The symphony will be Beethoven's first. No soloist is announced.

Beginning this week, there will be a series of five lecture-recitals on Wednesday evenings at the Jewish People's institute. Lectures will be given by several of the Chicago music critics, and musical illustrations furnished by various Chicago artists.

SOLOIST.

CLAIRE DUX.

[Muray Photo.]

A great singer, a superb artist, Mme. Dux will make one of her infrequent Chicago appearances when she comes on the stage of Orchestra hall next Thursday evening. At that time she will be the guest soloist with the Swift & Co. male chorus, of which D. A. Clippinger is the conductor.

Gillette and Conan Doyle as Collaborators.

By Charles Collins.

with which the fiendish professor opens and closes his portal represents a hobby of Mr. Gillette's. His "castle" in Connecticut is heavily equipped with such contraptions, of his own invention: there isn't a metal lock in the place.

The second scene of this act is about 90 per cent Conan Doyle. It is an almost direct dramatization of episodes in "The Final Problem," and it draws freely on the text. The stage setting is patterned after Doyle's description of Sherlock's flat in Baker street, in "A Study in Scarlet." The talk between Sherlock and Dr. Watson on the powers of observation ["Elementary, my dear Watson"] is a standard Doyle episode, repeated dozens of times in the cycle of stories. Billy, the brave, bouncing "Buttons," whom Mr. Gillette invented, was suggested by the corps of street arab allies that Sherlock called his "irregulars."

Enter, the Gas House Gang.

The third act, dealing with the plot to murder Sherlock in the Stepney gas chamber, represents original work by Mr. Gillette. The linking of the blackmail scheme of the first act with this sinister design of Moriarity's is typical play carpentering of the type in vogue when Mr. Gillette wrote the play.

The last act, placed in Dr. Watson's rooms, is heavily indebted to "The Final Problem," but it also derives, in part, from "A Study in Scarlet." The handcuffing of Moriarity, disguised as a cab driver, when he stoops to pick up Holmes' luggage, comes from that story of Mormonism; it is the same trick, applied to a different character.

This casual analysis will give you a fairly accurate idea of how Mr. Gillette went to work at the dramatization of the Sherlock Holmes stories. His reputation as a playwright does not rest upon this piece, but its craftsmanship clearly illustrates his methods and his ingenuity.

There is a wealth of lore in the history of the play, most of which has already been told. One of its associations centers in the character of Billy, the office boy. During the first London engagement that small part was played by an insignificant little fellow whose name is now a household word—Charlie Chaplin.

The life of "Sherlock Holmes" on the stage prior to the current tour of Mr. Gillette's farewell can be summarized as follows:

Its first performance was in Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 30, 1899; one week's engagement.

It opened at the Garrick theater, New York, Nov. 26, 1899, and ran for 230 performances.

It began a tour of the United States and Canada Oct. 1, 1900, and traveled for 270 performances.

It opened a London engagement at the Lyceum [Sir Henry Irving's theater] in October, 1901, and ran for 250 performances.

It was revived in London, at the Duke of York's theater, in October, 1905, and ran for 200 performances.

It was revived in New York and on tour in 1907 for 200 performances.

It was revived again in New York and on tour in 1912 and had 250 performances.

Before the present tour Mr. Gillette had played the rôle about 1,300 times, to a box office business estimated at $1,500,000.

MARGARET PERRY

THE green pyjama girl who cheerfully looks for trouble in "Strictly Dishonorable," at the Adelphi, is acted by Margaret Perry, an actress much talked-about this season because she has attained leading-woman rank at the age of sixteen. She is the daughter of Antoinette Perry, well-known as an actress and stage director.

Contenders for Pulitzer Prize; Theater Gossip

JUST when it looked as though there might be an interesting three cornered battle for the Pulitzer prize—"The Criminal Code," "The Last Mile," and "The Green Pastures" have been mentioned as contenders—it turns out that a strict interpretation of the conditions renders both "The Last Mile" and "The Green Pastures" ineligible. The award, it seems, must be bestowed upon an "original" play, a stipulation that has been construed to exclude dramatizations. "The Last Mile" grew out of a magazine article and "The Green Pastures" derives from a novel.

Richard Bennett, in a new play called "In Command," is booked for the Princess theater April 13, following a four weeks' engagement of "Elizabeth and Essex." "In Command" was formerly called "Siberia," and, of course, it's Russian in scene and story.

Headed for New York, the week after this, are about half a dozen entertainments. Alice Brady, a week from tomorrow, will appear at the Eltinge in "Love, Honor and Betray," by the Hattons. There will be a piece called "Penny Arcade," a Coney Island play, at the Fulton, and Mr. Tyler's stellar production of "The Rivals," with Mrs. Fiske in it, will be staged at Erlanger's. The Guild will revive "Volpone" at the Liberty, and for possibilities there are "This Man's Town" and "The Blue Ghost."

"The Matriarch" may be staged at the Booth, New York, March 17. The Theater Guild will offer "A Month in the Country" that same week at the Guild theater, since "Meteor" is nearing the end.

Lester Lonergan will portray the leading role, that of a prominent Broadway producer, in "Broadway Interlude," according to Irving Lande, who will sponsor the production. The play, a dramatization of the novel, is to go into rehearsal Monday. It is due to open on Broadway early in April.

Frederick Lonsdale was in New York for a few days recently, apparently on business having to do with "Canaries Sometimes Sing," which will be done there in the fall. He has also written a musical play, and is at work, they still say, on a sequel to "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Guthrie McClintic has a new play by Du Bose Heyward. It has to do with Negroes, but is not a dramatization of "Mamba's Daughters. . . .

Horace Liveright, when he does "Frankenstein," will call it "a brother play to 'Dracula.'" . . . Violet Heming is out on the coast these days, acting in "Let Us Be Gay." . . . There is another Negro revue in the offing, with Bill Robinson in it.

MARY VANCE

"DEAR OLD ENGLAND," now at the Princess under the auspices of the Dramatic League, is brightened by the presence of Mary Vance, who plays the "board school" girl, born a patrician but converted into a cockney flapper by the environment of her comic poverty. Miss Vance gives a clever performance of this whimsical role, and her catch-phrase, "Ow, give ovah!" when annoyed, promises to enrich the Chicago vocabulary.

New in Chicago

TWO openings, both announced for tonight, represent the new activities of the Chicago stage this week. Mitzi brings her revival of "Sari" to the Illinois, and a farce called "She's No Lady" comes to the Garrick with Lynne Overman in its leading rôle.

"Sari" is the entertainment that gave Mitzi (formerly Mizzi Hajos) her first American fame. It was staged sixteen years ago and its brilliant score, composed by Emmerich Kalman of Budapest, was the talk of the season. After two years on Broadway Mitzi took the show on a long tour, and then soared up to other stellar adventures in "Head Over Heels," "Pom Pom," "Lady Billy," "The Magic Ring," "The Madcap," and "Lovely Lady."

The present revival of "Sari" is said to contain the full Kalman score. Mitzi's company includes Boyd Marshall (her husband), Marybeth Conoly, Mario Alvarez, Jack Squires, Duane Nelson, and an Albertina Rasch ballet.

"She's No Lady," opening at the Garrick, is a brand new farce which comes here for its first big city verdict. It was staged by H. H. Frazee Jr., son of the late impresario who built the Cort theater and branched out as a baseball magnate. Lynne Overman, an excellent light comedian who is easily recalled from the long runs of "Just Married" and "Yes, Yes, Yvette," is the star of the cast, which also includes Walter N. Greaza, Robert Cummings, Mildred Macloud, Dolores De Mondoe, Patricia Chapman, Louise White, Josephine Deffry.

New in Manhattan

THE New York stage has a comparatively light schedule of premieres this week. The most important openings will be "Flying White," a lavishly staged musical show produced by George White, and "The Serenade," a revival of Victor Herbert's operetta of more than thirty years ago.

Here is a catalogue of the new shows:

"Flying High"—Tomorrow night at the Apollo theater. This would be George White's latest musical concoction, the work of those Hollywood truants, De Sylva, Brown, and Henderson, aided by John McGowan, Bert Lahr and Oscar Shaw will head a cast which will further include Grace Brinkley, Kate Smith, Dorothy Hall, and Russ Brown. Bobby Connolly has staged the dances, and there will be settings—brand new ones—by Joseph Urban.

"Marco Millions"—Tomorrow night at the Liberty theater. A week's revival by the Theater Guild of O'Neill's satirical play, which the Guild first staged two years ago. The company acting in it will be the one which has been appearing in "R. U. R." Next week: "Volpone."

The Japanese Players — Tuesday night at the Booth theater. A company of Nipponese actors and actresses, headed by Tokujiro Tsutsui, presenting lyrical dramas with music and dances. Three numbers, announced as "Romance in Cherry Lane," "Kage-No-Chikara," and "Matsuri," will be the opening bill.

"The Serenade"—Tuesday night at Jolson's theater. A revival of the operetta by Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith which New York first saw in 1897, when it was presented by the Bostonians. Olga Steck, Roy Cropper, and Greek Evans will be among those concerned in the projection of the piece.

"Tread the Green Grass"—Thursday night at the MacDougal Street playhouse. Paul Green's play in a production, several times delayed, by William Blake.

"Launcelot and Elaine"—Saturday night at the President theater. Another revival, this of Edwin Milton Royle's poetic drama, first made known at the Greenwich Village theater in 1921. The play, as the title indicates, derives from Tennyson. Those in it will include the author's daughters, Selena and Josephine Royle, as well as Frank M. Thomas, Mary Chambers, George Christie, Sara Perry, Ann Anderson, and Albert Phillips.

The miscellaneous stage activities of the new week in New York include:

"According to Hoyle"—Tomorrow night at the Cherry Lane theater. A play by Test Dalton.

"A Glass of Water"—Wednesday evening at the American Laboratory theater. This experimental group now turns to a play by Eugene Scribe. In it Maria Germanova will have her second rôle on the American stage.

Irish Plays.

When "Loggerheads," a new Irish comedy, is done by Whitford Kane at the Goodman theater on St. Patrick's night it will be preceded by W. B. Yeats' "Cathleen Ni Houlihan," by special request from the Irish societies. The part of Cathleen will be taken by Nora Cooney.

Group Singing and How It Is Accomplished

WITH all the good will which threatens to be abroad in the world during 1930 I am afraid that it looks like a big year for community singing. I don't know why I have this feeling. It is a presentiment such as I have on damp days when my wrists start aching and I know that I am in for a touch of my arthritis. We are going to have a year of community singing, and we are going to have it good.

You may think that I am just an old alarmist, predicting all this before a note has really been sung or even before notices have been sent out for people to get together and start humming. "Wait until they begin to sing," you may say. "Then will be plenty of time to get disagreeable." But I want to be disagreeable now, and I have every reason in the world to be. Certain documents have come to my hand which put things in an even blacker light than I have indicated. Without wishing to be a wet blanket, let me tell you what is already lined up in the way of community singing for 1930.

Dates and Data.

Some travel bureau, with a mistaken idea of being alluring, has issued a pamphlet telling on just what dates you can get in on a good community sing. According to this schedule, if you hurry you can just make the musical festival in Dublin of Feis Ceoil (All Ireland), at which I imagine a great deal of tenor will be sung. Or, on Aug. 8, you can catch the Welsh national eisteddfod, which is to be held at Llanelly. This means singing, if I know anything about the Welsh. I am not quite sure about how to get to Llanelly, but I suppose you take a car marked "Llanelly" and ask the conductor where the eisteddfod is being held. He and the motorman will probably sing the directions to you.

Not only are the British Isles threatened with countless get together sings, smaller than the Feis Ceoil and the eisteddfod, but our own dear land is already beginning to blow its pitch pipes in preparation for a year of song and little committees are springing up everywhere to send out postal cards and get all available larynxes lined up for service. Once these things start they sweep the country like wildfire. Remember how quickly that parrots' disease spread. (By the way, were those parrots ever deported or are they still going about the streets in droves endangering the lives of the nation?)

The loud singers are usually sopranos.

Community singing wouldn't be so bad if it really were community singing. But there are always several people (usually those who get the movement started) who do all the singing, or rather who do the loudest singing, and the rest of the community just stand around holding sheets of music and making low noises in their throats. The loud singers are usually sopranos and are big women who wear black jet beads. If they are not leading the thing completely, they dominate the chorus so that nobody else can make himself heard. No matter how domineering a basso may be, he can't really drown out the rest, owing to the nature of bass singing itself. If you try to sing bass too loud your nose starts bleeding or your chin gets caught down in your collar and you choke to death (to the great satisfaction of everybody). Altos suffer from the same handicap, while tenors are usually of a mild and retiring nature and not given to masterful hogging of sound waves. It is the sopranos that you have to look out for.

Of course, underneath all this bitterness on my part you will detect that I have a personal feeling against some soprano who has drowned me out at some time or other. I like to sing (in a group) and, if I am fairly sure of my part, I like to be heard. In fact, I have been known to go out of my way to make myself heard. But I can't buck a soprano. I have even gone so far as to give up singing in mixed groups for this very reason. In a crowd of men I can hold my own, and frequently do, but in competition with large ladies wearing black jet beads I am frankly outclassed. And I resent it.

A Great Help.

There are certain kinds of group singing which are a great help to community, or party, spirit. Those little extemporaneous outbursts around a piano, for which postcards do not have to be sent out and which develop naturally when some one comes across a pile of old music after dinner, are really the most satisfactory of all. That is, they are satisfactory for those who happen to be around the piano singing. The rest of the people in the room are not likely to be so enthusiastic about it. I guess there are no looks so ugly as those shot at a little band of amateur singers by the people in other parts of the room who want to be talking or who are not interested in recalling songs of yesteryear.

The rest of the people in the room are not likely to be so enthusiastic about it.

But even in the little groups themselves there is likely to spring up some hard feeling, owing to one or two of the group being quicker than the rest to get their particular songs on the rack in front of the pianist. Every one, when old songs are being dragged out, has his favorites, either for sentimental reasons or because he happens to know all the words. And, if some one else happens to beat you to it in suggesting the number to be tried next, you are likely to stand in silence waiting for them to finish so that you can rush your own choice into the arena. This makes for bad team work and sometimes it happens that the only one singing is the one who has just won the toss.

"Remember this?" some one will shout (the affair reaches the shouting stage very early in the game). And he will begin, in a loud voice, to sing "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon," both verses and two choruses. There will be perhaps two others who know a few of the words to "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon" and they will join in with something of a will, but those who are too young ever to have known it or who never liked it anyway assume a patently false politeness and wait, looking about the room, for the "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon" devotees to finish.

And So On.

Then there is a babel of:

"Remember 'Pony Boy, Pony Boy, won't you be my——'"

"No, no this, 'Oh, the moon shines bright tonight upon——'"

"No, no! Remember 'Lindy, Lindy, sweet as the sug——'"

"Here's one! 'Dinah, is there any one finer'" [This from one of the younger members of the group who is thoroughly disgusted with the old boys who are insisting on singing songs he never even knew existed].

"I'll tell you! 'Here's to the land that gave me birth, here's to the flag she flies, here's to the dumdy-dum-dum——'"

And so on. Every one has a song he wants sung, and it seldom is the song that any one else wants, although "Heidelberg" and "Kiss Me Again" usually win out against the field because more people remember the tune and the words don't matter so much. "Kiss Me Again," in fact, can be, and usually is, carried through to the end with no other words than "Kiss me again" being used. The only drawback to this number is that it calls for quite a vocal range toward the end, resulting in all but two or three lusty singers dropping out in terror before the final rousing notes have been given their full value. Not quite enough people usually drop out, however.

A Sort of Fever.

I have never known it to fail that if only one man remembers the words to a certain song, he remembers all the words to all the verses and perhaps one or two parodies which were considered very funny at the time. And there is some sort of fever which lays hold of any one who is in full possession of words to a song which renders him impervious to the glares and interruptions of the others and makes him plow doggedly ahead through the entire number, his eyes bulging with pride and the cords of his neck straining with the effort of demonstrating his ability. It is an irritating sight, unless it happens to be I who am remembering the words. Then it is inconceivable that the others should not be interested. Which they are not.

But this form of community singing is much less productive of hard feeling in general than that which involves a larger number of people and is made into a part of the community life. Here we must have self imposed leaders and organizers and an arbitrary selection of musical numbers for the concert. And when you get leaders and arbitrary selection of numbers, you get bloodshed. This is probably because anybody who would deliberately organize a community "sing" and place him or herself at the head, is ipso facto a candidate for bloodshed. Especially if she is a big soprano who wears black jet beads.

It is too bad that a lot of human beings who can sing, or act, or dance cannot get together and do it in concert without getting at each other's throats before the big evening is consummated. But the fact remains that the next civil war in this or any other country will come as a result of some movement which was originated for the purpose of binding the community together. Almost every district in the land is strewn with sun bleached bones left there after some horrible carnage following a pageant the main purpose of which had been to raise money for the civic center and ducking pond or to make the residents of the township more township minded. And if, as I fear, we really are in for a year of organized singing in large groups, I look for 1930 to go down in our national history as the year of the intramural murders.

A Solution.

If group singing must be done [and evidently it must] the thing to do is divide the town up into quartets, preferably all male with no sopranos, and put each quartet down in a good smoky back room where the air is bad, and let nature take its course. I know of nothing more soothing or productive of good feeling than to get three other guys, one of whom is not really a natural bass but who will fake it if some one else will carry the baritone, and then to go into a huddle for an evening of ripe, rich swipes. With such little groups tearing off "Mandy Lee, I Love You" and "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield" all over town, not much harm can come to the community, unless perhaps there should be a big blaze started in the town hall and some of the firemen should happen to be engaged in singing at the time. Then it would just be the town hall's hard luck, that's all.

In the meantime, don't forget: The Welsh national eisteddfod at Llanelly on Aug. 8. Let's make this just the best eisteddfod ever!

[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The thing to do is divide the town up into quartets.

An American's Impressions of Life in England

He Visits the Press in Fleet Street.

By Philip Kinsley.

one] nor impeaching their straightforward honesty, it is clear to me that the relative value of truth in all controversial matter has been dangerously disturbed. The mirror of the London press reflects only the drab colors of any presentation of one aspect of society, reserving all the hues of sunset for any little feature of the other.

Distortion of Truth.

"The resulting picture is produced unconsciously and in good faith, but it is none the less subject to dangerous distortion of the truth. This prevailing misfortune is growing worse daily and already we have lost the chastening memory of days when impartiality was more strictly maintained by our press as a whole by the adequate representation of both sides.

"Society with a big S has gone entirely on to one side and has imposed on its press that most hopeless form of provincialism, which already prevails in high circles in Berlin, of merely refusing to recognize as possible the existence of culture, good faith, and even of common honesty in those who do not adopt the opinions prevailing in its own ranks. From this blindness I see no ordinary means of deliverance."

The importance to America of what London selects as news is made doubly important by the time element. London prints first and thus sets the tone of the world news of the day.

The English newspapers, like most other institutions, have great age and stiff traditions. They are slow to change. The Morning Post, for instance, was published before the American revolution. It is now the aristocratic paper of London. Let us scan it this morning. The first page probably has not changed in a hundred years. It begins with births, marriages and deaths, then small ads of the want ad, personal type, covering charities, education, concerts, shipping, etc.

The Personal Column.

The personal column, here as in The Times, contain many side lights on life. Here are two items:

"Irma—Don't loose your nerve. No Bulldog is going to get me at any Mystery Ball. Carl."

"Author, 27, very highly praised indeed, tall, shrewd, loyal, expert typist and penman, BORed with working alone, wants witty journalistic, secretarial or advisory WORK in home or office by half day, day or quarter. Of excellent birth, a good tennis player, dancer, motorist; he wants also to meet attractive, artistic people. Address——."

Page two is given to trade and markets. Page three has a full two columns on gardening, written by an expert, with two columns of letters to the editor, with more small ads. Letters to the editor are a great feature of all the papers, which are, in fact, about half written by such amateurs, or contributors who are not newspaper men. The system is to retain these experts on a yearly basis, then call on them for special articles as the news of the day warrants. Professors, clergymen, army and navy men are on the pay rolls in this way. The great writers of England and the continent are pressed into service frequently.

Page 4 carries display resort ads and the army and navy gazette. The next page is on hunting and other winter sports, with a large, fine picture of some country scene, with artistic but no news value. Page six is devoted to theaters, women's features and illustrated styles. The next page carries the court circular, which is identical in all the papers. It begins as follows:

St. James Palace, ——. The Prince of Wales received this morning Mr. Justice Charles Bennett and on behalf of the king conferred upon him the honor of knighthood.

News on Page 9.

Other items tell where his royal highness lunched and of his visit to a hospital during the afternoon. The royal personage may drop into a Turkish restaurant in Soho late in the evening, accompanied by a gay party of ladies and gentlemen, but no mention of it would be made in the press.

Page 8 is the place for the long, well written leaders or editorials on political and world affairs and the special columnists and writers. The page opposite is the first news page. Here may be found a long article in which Mr. Baldwin explains his side of a controversy with the Labor minister of health. The leading news article, however, is one created by the paper, a war on the soviet republic for its attack on religion. The conservative element has not approved in the least of the government recognition of the Russian republic, and is keeping up the fight.

Page 10 carries local news and one news picture with a sprinkling of good short stories. Eleven is more local news with a three column display ad. The next two pages are devoted to sports and the last page returns to small ads again.

There are nine morning papers to wade through, so it is quite a job. The Britisher usually has his favorite paper and ignores the rest.

The Times, which goes back in its traditions to a scoop on the Battle of Waterloo, has the same first page of births, deaths, resort and personal ads. Page 2 has more small ads, shipping, air and motor articles. The third page is for sports, and the fourth carries sailing and hunting articles. The fifth is news, the chief article happening to be a mysterious garage killing. One interesting feature here is a story on the news to be found in the ads of the day. The Selfridge department store, instead of spreading over a page or two, carries a half column article written with literary distinction, merely calling attention to some policy of the store.

No Comics in Times.

Pages seven and eight are for imperial and foreign news, in which this paper has a wide, independent service. The Post and Telegraph also cover world news in special cables every day. The Indian, Egyptian and Palestine situations are constantly reported. Art comes next, then a long letter "from our military correspondent" and columns of letters to the editor. Page eleven is on gardening, religion, court and society. Money and markets come next, then small ads. There are no comics or cross word puzzles.

The Telegraph has much the same makeup and attitude as the Post and Times. Routine items of news are frequently the same in all the papers, as they are agency covered.

In the Chronicle, news begins to press toward the front. It is found on page 3. Page 1 is all display ads and bargains. Four and five also are newspages, with news pictures appearing. The editorial features are shorter, and the page opposite is given to some feature born in the office, such as a symposium on whether children bring happiness. Racing and sports are toward the end of the paper and the back page is all pictures of semi news value.

The Mail has a first page of balanced display ads, a second page of markets and brief news items, third, fourth and fifth pages of ads, the sixth page three quarters ads with a column of light chatter. The seventh page is news, an article on an art exhibit and an editorial attack on Winston Churchill. Court and society here are much abbreviated. Following this is a special feature, which happens to be the diary of a boy explorer, then comes news of the garage murder, markets, sports, with a back page of pictures.

Create Own News.

The Express looks much like an American paper, except that it makes its chief news item out of a crusade which the paper started, creating news again. There is one small display ad on this page. There are two crime stories and a story of an engagement in Hollywood. The only American news one fids is concerned with crime, drinking and money markets. The Express carries a small comic strip and news pictures.

The other morning papers are sporting or financial. The Sunday papers are small, 16 to 20 pages. The Observer and News of the World only come out on Sundays, the first a powerful organ of Liberal opinion, with splendid criticisms on books and arts, the second Lord Riddell's survey of the crime world for the lower classes' delectation.

The Manchester Guardian, the most powerful of the provincial papers, has the conservative makeup, but carries news items on page 2. Pages 3 and 4 are all sports, 5 is on books of the day, 6 is for home and women, 7, music and pictures, 8, for editorials and London correspondence, court and personal gossip, 9 is news, 10 is on the potato industry and wireless, with some news, 11 on all Manchester and London news, 12 foreign news, 13 political news, then comes money, stocks, cotton, and letters to the editor.

In a newspaper office in Hanly I noticed this caution posted in the hall: "Under no circumstances can reports of police and other cases be stopped. If such cases are of any public interest they must appear."

[Another of Mr. Kinsley's articles will appear next Sunday.]

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

THERE is nothing more stimulating than the response one gets when one makes a mistake. Months go by, letters trickle in asking questions about how to sell a play; about mother love; how much a copy of the Bible is worth that was found in the family attic when the family left Oscaloosa and moved to Keokuk; whether Thornton Wilder is married; how much of a salary a good live chorus girl can count on pulling down; what publisher would be interested in the reminiscences of a missionary to Bali (containing spicy pictures of the intimate home life of the natives); or whether it is true that Shaw gets all of his plots over the ouija board.

PHILIP BARRY.

Sometimes letters signed "a well wisher" invite you to jump in the lake or take a good stiff noggin of cyanide because you say that "Strictly Dishonorable" is to your mind, just the old, old bedtime story. Once a year, perhaps, somebody likes a sentence and spends two cents to say so. You begin to think that out of the million and a quarter readers of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE your proportion is maybe two to the million.

Then, one day you make a mistake, you say that Conan Doyle wrote a book called "Raymond," when Sir Oliver Lodge was the gentleman who did it, and Monday morning you have letters and letters calling your attention to the error in words either commiseratory, patronizing, shocked, or just plain informative. By Wednesday life has taken on the radiance of the dawn. Documentary evidence proves that you actually do have readers . . .

You face the future with a determination to provide, every so often, bigger and better mistakes. It gives the readers the pleasure of discovering how fallible you are and the joy of telling you so, and it gives you a chance to count your many readers, name them one by one. We're pretty ashamed of making the mistake, though. We knew that Sir Oliver Lodge wrote "Raymond," because we read it, and never forgot Raymond's finding his dog waiting for him. That's the kind of heaven we'd like to be sure of getting to, we thought when we read it, and we still do.

Meanwhile we beg everybody's pardon, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's, Sir Oliver Lodge's, Sir—pardon us—Mr. William Gillette's, the readers who wrote to us and the ones who didn't, and urge arm chair playgoers to drown their shock in an evening with the authors of "Sherlock Holmes," the play, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (NOT the author of "Raymond"), and Mr. William Gillette, the grand old gentleman who is also playing in his works.

UNCLE DUDLEY'S NIECE

ELEANOR HAYDEN

NEW ingenues appear before the footlights every season to make their pretty little hits and start on the way toward theatrical renown. Eleanor Hayden, who appears in "Your Uncle Dudley" at the Cort, is one of this year's crop. Her acting in the role of a nice home girl who doesn't want to become an opera singer is an attractive feature of this comedy.

of favorable talk in shop circles. In fact, the picture has become a sort of object lesson and from time to time the producers advise their staff executives to take a look at its technique and learn.

The big shot director from Hollywood was introduced to the successful east coast director. The Hollywood "holy" had found the bowl.

"Son," remarked the B. S. from Hollywood, "you have been overrated. I am the topnotch director. I am on the heights and I will be on the peak when you are forgotten. I am telling you this because you came to Hollywood and made this picture and never once called on me."

"I have never been to Hollywood," remarked the New Yorker, "and never expect to go. I made the picture right here where one rises to the heights in an elevator."

The B. S. from Hollywood rode the elevator down.

Animal Stories.

This comes under the head of animal stories and has been knocking around New York for a couple of weeks. It may be of some consolation to actors who have failed in sound tests. Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo, has been making a sound film of various animals and reptiles. Out of all the zoo the rattlesnake has the best screen poise. His rattle makes an ideal screen sound. The lion, Dr. Ditmars has found, has the poorest voice for recording purposes.

Paramount's Long Island sound studio has completed "Young Man of Manhattan" and will send "Dangerous Nan McGrew" to the cutting room about March 8. "Queen High," with Fred Newmeyer directing, will be started March 10 or soon thereafter and will be followed by "Too Much Luck," starring Maurice Chevalier, about March 17. "Heads Up," a music show, will be filmed in April.

Lineup of New Shows.

This is the lineup of new shows for the week in New York's feature houses:

Capitol—"Chasing Rainbows," with Charles King and Bessie Love. Cohan theater—"White Cargo," an English film made from the stage play of the same name. Hippodrome—"Officer O'Brien," with William Boyd. Paramount—"Road House Nights," with Helen Morgan, Charles Ruggles, and Fred Kohler. Strand—"Lilies of the Field," with Corinne Griffith. Warner —"Song of the West," a music show with John Boles and Vivienne Segal. The other feature houses are playing holdovers.

Our observer can report on only two of the shows, as the maid quit and he had to stay at home and help take care of the children almost every night this week. "White Cargo" has an all English cast recruited from the British stage, and there is a lot too much acting and not enough atmosphere in it.

You know, it is the story of a white man's slow decay under an African sun, and there is too much decay and not enough sun.

Now "Road House Nights" is worth seeing. It concerns the activities of the leaders of a rum ring who have made a lot of history in a "town on the outskirts of Chicago." Miss Morgan is a night club entertainer in the picture. It is a rôle she understands. Mr. Ruggles is a reporter who rounds up the gang. He does not understand his rôle quite so well, but it is entertaining, and, after all, that is what pictures are supposed to do.

Voice of the Fan

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE side of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE!

Movie Critic Errs.

Dear Miss Tinée: I must take exception to your statement in reviewing Dolores Costello's latest picture—that the only original thing in it was a party staged in a house that was being moved. I haven't seen the picture, but if that's the only original feature—there are no original features.

Warner Brothers must have thought that all movie fans would be like yourself, either forget an incident that was in a picture of a few years ago or never have seen said picture. I don't remember the name of it, but Colleen Moore could probably tell you as she was the star who helped to make a whopee party, held in a house that was being moved a huge success.

Alas, you have erred [a movie critic is never supposed to err], but you need not show this letter to your superiors and I'll never let on, because I would hate to be responsible for you losing your job. Very truly yours,

MOLLY TAYLOR.

Editor's note: I feel that my superiors should know the worst—and so I print your letter. If they will let me keep my job, I may, in time, do better.

Mr. Montgomery's Admirer.

Miss Mae Tinée: Don't you agree with me that Robert Montgomery is just about the last word in any argument? He has personality, the most melodious voice I've ever heard, possesses such "wim and wigor" and has the sassiest way of being cute and lovable. Above all, he really has unmistakable talent and breeding and what have you?

The gist of this letter, which is my first to you (I enjoy all your poetry?!?) is really to ask where this darling boy hangs his hat and how many times he's said "I do" and to whom?

When you think it over it is rather presumptuous, but if you think he'd rather keep all this to himself, well then just whisper it to me. But I must know his age, color, and prospects before I ask him for a 25c picture.

Please have a picture of this "boyish Bob" in Sunday's paper, also a reply from you.

Thank you kindly! ZITA P.

Editor's Note: Zita likes Mr. Montgomery! Zita likes Mr. Montgomery!

not a picture to miss, that I assure you."

"SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE."—Adapted from the Barrie play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," is one of the most exquisitely human things that has ever come to the screen. "It is a gem that radiates light from many facets. It should be shown on the screen of a long run theater and kept there until everybody in Chicago has had a chance to see it." THAT'S what I thought about "Seven Days' Leave."

Which brings us to the end of today's looking backward party.

Bits aBOUTem.

GEORGE BANCROFT, we hear, is asking $15,000 a week for personal appearances in vaudeville and picture houses. Variety reminisces, "About ten years ago George Bancroft and Octavia Broske were a two act in vaudeville, drawing $300." Ach, what a difference a few years make!

ELSIE FERGUSON, who starred in the stage version of the melodrama, "Scarlet Pages," has been offered $10,000 by Warner Brothers to make it for the screen.

embroidered curtain, in slightly modernistic oriental design. With the rising of the curtain, the stage is revealed as bare, save for a table and two chairs, draped with banners indicative of the desired interior. If more scenery is necessary it is carried in during the action of the play by the oft quoted supposed-to-be invisible property men.

Most of the dialogue of the Chinese plays, whether they date from the earlier dynasties or are fairly recent in writing, are set to musical accompaniment, which is played off stage. The actors thus speak or sing on cue. Their singing is the weird, reedlike chant we have frequently heard imitated, but probably have never heard before in authentic expression. A squealing mangle of harmonies to occidentals until they become a little accustomed to it. And after that just a squealing.

Some Plays Really End.

Chinese plays, it now appears, are not at all endless. They do not flow on like a river of history for days and days, to be picked up at any given point by any interested spectators. Those that Mr. Mei presents are short plays, comic and tragic. Those I saw him do, "The Suspected Slipper" and "Killing the Tiger General," were quite simple in story.

"The Suspected Slipper," for example, tells of a warrior who surprises his wife by returning home unexpectedly after an absence of seventeen or eighteen years. Finding a man's slipper under the table, he demands to know to whom it belongs. Which might be called the husband convention.

The wife [played by Mr. Mei] thinks to tease the old grouch by pretending the slipper belongs to her lover, who is simply grand. But when the husband is well angered she relieves his mind by admitting the slipper is that of his son, born to him shortly after he went away. Then occurs a typical oriental twist of tragedy. The warrior, from the wife's description, recognizes a boy he had killed accidentally on his way into the city.

Fine Sample of Ancient Art.

"Killing the Tiger General" goes back to the Ming dynasty of the seventeenth century and is probably as fine a sample of an ancient art as there is to be found. The story is of the loyal Fei Chen-O, a court lady, who saw the royal family exterminated by the rebels and thereafter impersonated the princess to mete vengeance upon the rebel leader responsible.

In the play, the rebel leader, foxy fellow, sends his foster brother, the Tiger general. Fei flirts with him, gets him quite squiffy, removes his armor and his sword and takes him to her room. [This journey is uncertainly made by circling the stage twice and bowing the head as one raises a foot to cross an imaginary threshold. During the walk the property men bring in the bed, represented by bed posts and a draped curtain.]

Now the tired general is in bed [sitting up in a chair] and snoring, awaiting the princess. Fei Chen-O stabs him with her dagger and then with his own sword. And when he is dead she, knowing her own fate, takes her own life.

Other Nations Represented.

In addition to the Chinese Mr. Mei Lan-fang we had the English represented by Norman Macowan's "The Infinite Shoeblack," the Czecho-Slovakians by the Kapek's "R U R," which the Theater Guild brought in from the road; the Hungarians by the Shubert revival of Lehar's "The Count of Luxembourg," and Americans by George Abbott's and S. K. Lauren's domestic drama, "Those We Love," Ed Wynn's and Guy Bolton's musical something or other, "Simple Simon," Arthur Goodrich's dramatization of Booth Tarkington's novel, "The Plutocrat," and a family farce by Dorrance Davis called "Apron Strings."

Of these I think the Abbott-Lauren opus is the most important, for all its story foundation is ancient. "Those We Love" concerns that old domestic situation of the tempted husband, the outraged wife, the mutually adored child that must be protected by the sacrifice of one parent or the other, and the usual compromise by way of an ending.

I suppose fifty years from now, or a hundred or a hundred and fifty, there will still be some such problem facing American families and, as a natural consequence, American theater audiences.

Here we have the case of the Willistons, Frederick, a writer; May, a composer. Together they have come successfully through the hard years. Now, with a grown son in boarding school, they separate temporarily for the good of their work.

Usual Blonde Appears.

Enter, of course, the attractive blonde. Blonde, of course, because Mrs. W is brunette. Mr. Williston doesn't want to fall for the blonde, hasn't any idea of falling, and probably would have escaped falling if Mrs. Williston had not come home unexpectedly, discovered what she believed to be the situation and retired without her husband seeing her. When, later, she asked him about it, he lied. He did not mean to lie. He had as soon have told the truth. There was really nothing wrong. But he thought, as husbands will, that lying would save a lot of conversation, so he lied. And Mrs. Williston walked out on him.

Thereafter, feeling that he has been mistreated and getting terribly lonesome, Mr. Williston did fall. Result: The blonde's husband became nasty; scandal threatened; the Williston boy came home from school and was terribly, pathetically hurt, and everything was a mess.

In the end there is a compromise and as happy an ending as the circumstances permit. The boy saves the situation, and the mother makes so much of a sacrifice as tentative forgiveness demands.

The honesty of "Those We Love," both in the writing and the staging, and a happy choice in casting, is likely to do more to save the play than anything else. It is, as you may see, a familiar situation and a story that doesn't miss being trite by more than a shade or two. But it is beautifully staged by George Abbott and impressively played. Mr. Abbott is the husband, Armina Marshall the wife, Helen Flint the temptress, and Edwin Philips the boy.

This One Fares Badly.

"The Infinite Shoeblack" did not come off so well as expected in New York. There was praise for Lee Shubert's urge to improve the standard of the drama by bringing the Theater Guild type of play into competition under Shubert auspices (as he has done with "Death Takes a Holiday" and "The Matriarch"), but the impression was strong that "The Infinite Shoeblack" is a bit dated in form and not particularly interesting in content.

Leslie Banks and Helen Menken play the leads, he eloquently and she competently, but not too impressively, because she is not just the physical type demanded.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

This famous dramatic tenor is appearing in his only Chicago recital of the season at Orchestra hall tomorrow night. His program is being sponsored by the Chicago Association of Child Study and Parent Education as the preliminary to a biennial conference which will take place later in the week. When summer comes Mr. Martinelli will be heard again at Ravinia.

Three Headline Acts Feature Women's Banquet in Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 1.—[Special Correspondence.]—Three headline acts, Ukulele Ike, director of W. S. Van Dyke of "Trader Horn" fame, and the Duncan sisters made the annual banquet of the Wasps, Women's Association of Screen Publicists, a notable occasion. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge had been expected as guest of honor, but, as Ukulele Ike remarked, the program would have had to be modified slightly if she had attended. Whereat he sang several songs of interest from his new picture.

The funniest act was that of the two Duncan sisters, whose burlesque of "Strange Interlude" was a riot. The asides, imitating the spoken thoughts of the famous play, were something like this: A husband kisses his wife on returning from an out of town trip and says, "You look wonderful, darling." [aside] "Has she a new boy friend, or has she learned to smoke a pipe in my absence?"

A sketchy costuming, with Rosetta wearing false mustaches and rubber boots, and Vivian wearing a low cut green evening dress over a bright red sports outfit, helped make the thing more ridiculous.

Anecdotes from Africa.

Van Dyke, the director who took thirty-five people in his company into the heart of Africa to film "Trader Horn," and came back with thirty-seven, the two extras being Negro savages now turned servants and movie actors, told some amusing things about the sense of humor of the crowd in battling difficulties.

On one occasion Van Dyke and several of his people were hidden in tall grass when a herd of buffalo they were photographing stampeded toward them. As they were invisible to the beasts, they stood every chance of being trampled to death.

Van Dyke turned to see where the other members of the party were standing, when his cameraman remarked casually: "Want to buy a good camera cheap, Van?"

On another occasion one of the crew came directly in the path of a charging rhino. With no regard for the imminence of death, the company burst into a roar of laughter at the funny position in which the luckless one hit the ground.

Ready to Take a Chance.

On still another occasion when the actors desired to go into forbidden territory where sleeping sickness rendered intrusion dangerous they were warned by the governor of the province that they must leave immediately after coming out of the infested territory. They had to enter at their own peril and were permitted to take no natives with them except the members of their party who had come with them from another province.

While the company was having a conclave to decide on whether to risk it and go, one cameraman announced that it would be a tough tsetse fly that could bite him, what with all the Hollywood gin he had in his system! The rest broke out laughing and decided to take the chance. Though they all were badly bitten by the fly, no one got the sleeping sickness.

Van Dyke is an old standby of the Essanay film plant in Chicago.

Concialdi Wins New York with Second Recital

Barth Plays "Instrument of Tomorrow."

By Joan King.

NEW YORK, March 1.—[Special.]—Chicago lent another member of her operatic personnel to this musical metropolis Monday evening when Eusebio Concialdi gave his second New York recital of the year at Steinway hall. In a program which included the monologue from Giordano's "Andrea Chenier," the "Credo" from Verdi's "Otello," and also a variety of songs in Italian, French, German, and English, the baritone strengthened the favorable impression he had produced by his former appearance.

The audience, quick to appreciate the warm, dramatic fiber of the Concialdi voice and the true native emotion of the artist himself, was correspondingly cordial. It was regrettable, however, that a less intimate hall had not been chosen for the concert, for Mr. Concialdi's voice, one of resonance and volume, is seemingly much better suited to operatic spaces than to the small confines of such an auditorium as Steinway. Outside of the operatic arias, Respighi's "Invito alla Danza" and Handel's "Ch'io mai Vi Possa" were the most effective of the evening's offerings.

Charles King, the accompanist of the occasion, provided an admirable support as well as adding a solo group of his own, including an effective performance of MacDowell's polonaise, encoring with Dett's "Juba Dance."

Quarter-Tone Pianist.

The blazing of a trail in musical interpretation was celebrated here on Sunday afternoon by Hans Barth, harpsichordist, pianist, and now quarter-tone pianist. Before a large audience, comprised largely of musicians and pedagogues, Mr. Barth proceeded to draw an outline of the history of "Three Generations of the Piano." Apparently few in the audience had heard the "instrument of tomorrow," although it has been privately demonstrated on several occasions.

Harpsichord, piano and quarter-tone were lined up on the Carnegie platform from left to right and Mr. Barth proceeded to play upon each in turn. Scarlatti, Mozart and the old favorite, Beethoven's Minuet in G, illustrated the music of the past, showing how differently these compositions sounded when first conceived than they do on our modern instrument.

On our present day piano the artist then played his own "Sonata Joyeuse," No. 2 "Paraphrase on American Beauties," and two waltzes by Strauss and Chopin, disclosing a brilliant piano technic.

Then came the evening's event when Mr. Barth mounted the elevated stool arranged so that he could reach the upper keyboard, which appeared to be slightly above the other in organ fashion, and proceeded to play upon the "future" piano. First came the half tone scale now accepted, then the quarter tone scale, and lastly one of infinite combinations obtainable by using both keyboards, the three-quarter tone scale. Here, instead of the accepted 13 half tones represented by black and white keys of any octave, each of the half tones was split in half.

Three of the artist's own compositions were used as demonstrators. The selection apparently proved the superior qualities of the new instrument over the present piano in showing natural elements like wind, breeze through trees, etc. To the unaccustomed ear, however, the sound somewhat resembled that of two ordinary instruments played together with one considerably out of tune. But many of the effects were colorful and bizarre.

Yehudi Menuhin's Matinee.

Again came an overflowing audience to Carnegie to hear that violinistic discovery of two seasons ago, Yehudi Menuhin. This time Yehudi, perhaps with his contemporaries in mind, chose a matinée. And there were many who took advantage of this thought, the audience being dotted with youth, many of whom balanced violin cases against their seats.

As usual the imagination of the immense assembly—the concert was sold out weeks in advance—was caught by the youthful artist, although he no longer wears socks and knee trousers. As usual, he was accepted without qualifications.

Critical observation on the occasion, which was announced as the second and last appearance of the season for Yehudi, brought forth the fact that Master Menuhin has greatly progressed in musicianship since his last hearings here. Even Toscanini, heretofore entirely uninterested in prodigies, waxed enthusiastic. It seems that Busch, with whom the boy has been studying, prevailed upon the conductor to hear him. Backstage, after the recital, Yehudi told the batonist that above all things, he desired to play under him. Toscanini replied, "That will be a pleasure. We must arrange it."

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgrow" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

DEBUTANTE ENGAGED; MANY CHICAGOANS TRAVEL

MISS DOROTHY RANNEY

MISS VIRGINIA CHAPIN

MISS BETTY DIXON
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

THE engagement of Miss Virginia Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin of New York City and Lake Geneva, to Francis Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Drake, was announced recently. Mrs. Stuart H. Logan and Mr. Logan are away on a trip to various places in the east and south, after a busy season, seeing the debutante of the family, Mr. Logan's daughter, Phoebe, launched into society. Mrs. Calvin S. Smith of Lake Forest has returned from a stay of several weeks in Miami, Fla. Miss Dorothy Ranney is traveling about to several of the fashionable resorts in the south with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney. Miss Betty Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Dixon, and one of the winter's buds, is studying art, now that the more energetic part of her debut season is past.

Cupid's Reign in Fair Gotham Causes Rift in Harriman Menage

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—[Special.]—I trust I never need remind you of the old adage, "It isn't the cost; it's the upkeep." And, looking closely at divorce, one is simply compelled to remark: "It isn't the freedom; it's the consequences."

Not that one considers anything so costly as the "dear children." Far from it. But there are other things. Like, for instance, Kitty Lanier Lawrence, who, until some few periods ago, was Mrs. W. Averell Harriman.

Kitty, who is a most charming person, indeed, as Mrs. Harriman, held an enviable position in Long Island society. She and Averell lived at East Williston in quite the swankiest manner. They entertained in their year around home and loved it—just as all the Long Island inhabitants adore their homes.

Then, just about a year ago, Averell met the perfectly lovely Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, one time Marie Norton and wife of "Sonny" Whitney, who got more than fame through the fuss the dancer Evan Burrows Fontaine raised, fell in love.

Love Must Have Its Way.

Falling in love, I may tell you, is something that even New York society is not proof against. There were no end of people who knew that Averell and Marie Norton were totally mad about each other. Kitty Lawrence that was knew it. She didn't mind Averell having a divorce, and let the matter through.

Then, to make the affair quite complete, Marie sought her freedom from Mr. Harry Payne Whitneys' only son. And Sister Mother Whitney's disapproval did not mean a thing—nor did any one else's. Love, you take it, must have its way—and in New York's best circles one doesn't interfere with love. Not at all.

So Marie got her divorce, and just the week she and Averell Harriman were wed and departed to spend a honeymoon abroad idling along the canals of Venice, through the palazzos of Firenze, and perhaps bobbing up on the Riviera to keep in touch with resort folk.

That's divorce and remarriage. But the consequences! Kitty and Averell did love their East Williston home. They adored it. But, after the divorce, what could they do? A new ménage for each was considered absolutely necessary.

New Home at Sands Point.

Kitty refused to abandon her friends just because she had given up a husband. But she gave up her home and her new taken George J. Whelen's to bear her former home and adjacent to the estates of such lights as Albert Sabinskie Gray, Thomas Markoe Robertson, who married the one time Cornelia Biddle, later Mrs. Angier B. Duke, and Theodore Grosvenor.

Averell discovered, naturally, that he couldn't abide in East Williston, too. Even in these days one can't flout all the decencies—and it would be embarrassing for all concerned. So Averell and Marie have bought themselves a new home at Sands Point, on the farthest tip of Long island, which is close by the French chateau of Mr. Harriman's sister, Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, widow of the famous polo player. And the presence of Mrs. Rumsey will serve to bolster Marie whenever she feels that perhaps some one is looking askance at her for filling Kitty Lawrence's place.

Dear me—these divorces—and their consequences!

Prince George of Russia.

Town, may I say, has been perfectly foul. Who wants June in February?

A day of spring sandwiched in between winter is a joy forever. But day after day of increasing heat and humidity—it's a bore. Every one is feeling it. With Lent coming on we all want to feel that we are prepared for the doldrums of social activity—but this sort of weather makes it difficult.

Strangely enough, the period has given vent to the formation of a new series of dances, which are to be continued next season under the patronage of no less a personage than that genial young lad, Prince George of Russia, who goes beaming about town as if he hadn't a worry in the world.

George, of course, is persona grata not only in New York but in London, and it is his English friends who have formed the new dances, to be known as the Belgravia supper dances, with the Park Lane as a locale.

Junior League Convention.

But the joker is that the committee has undertaken to insist that every man attending wear full evening kit! No dinner jackets—perish the thought! Tails and white ties, and woe betide the bachelor who tries to come in a short jacket. I wonder if the idea will succeed? But since the sponsors include all the Englishmen in New York, it has a good chance. I shall tell you more of it after the first dance, on Saturday, the 8th.

—o—

New York is the original convention town—but it is rather strange to find the Junior league having one. The convention of the American Junior League association will take place late in April, and all members at the clubhouse here are warm and agitated.

Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich is chairman of the committee in charge of the convention, and there will be dinners, banquets, teas, and receptions running well into May. In fact, I believe it will be such a hectic time that the end of the convention will see every one falling straight from town into seclusion at their summer homes—with a needed three months to recuperate.

Wedding at St. Patrick's.

We had a wedding this week that blocked all the traffic in 5th avenue and brought our beloved mayor leaping back from Florida.

That was on Tuesday, when Veronica Curry, daughter of John Curry, leader of Tammany, married Edmund McCarthy of Springfield, Mass. Strictly speaking, it wasn't an affair of society, but it was a social affair—and in what manner! One simply couldn't walk for fear of treading on policemen. St. Patrick's cathedral was out of bounds for all but politicians. Every one of political note was present, and when former Gov. Smith arrived there was more noise and real cheering than there has been since the first visit of the prince of Wales.

Brilliant Party of E. F. Huttons Gay Climax of Palm Beach Week

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—March has been tossed upon this section of the Florida gold coast by the season's largest and most frivolous social wave. The numerous gayeties of the present week were climaxed Tuesday night in the brilliant entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton at their estate, Mar-a-Lago.

More than 200 distinguished guests were invited to enjoy the dancing and private theatricals arranged by the host and hostess, who are responsible annually for Palm Beach's most amusing party. "The Merry Wives" was presented by a theatrical troupe brought here from New York.

Thousands of vari-colored light bulbs were used to transform the Hutton estate and gardens into a veritable fairyland. It was the most elaborate electrical display this colony has ever seen. An orchestra and entertainers were also imported from New York.

100 Guests at Dinner Dance.

Another of the season's largest and most important parties was given last night when Mr. and Mrs. James P. Donahue entertained 100 guests at dinner and dancing at their villa, Cielito Lindo.

Each night of this last week has been distinguished by some large and lavish entertainment. On Wednesday night it was the dinner and musicale at which Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff entertained and at which John Charles Thomas, baritone, sang.

The afternoon of Feb. 26 is always sacred to the large tea and reception given by Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury at Elmirasol in honor of Mr. Stotesbury, whose birthday it is. Season in and season out, the colony makes no plans for the afternoon of the 26th, other than its pilgrimage to the Stotesbury home. Hundreds of birthday messages and a truckload of flowers were among the tributes received by Mr. Stotesbury, who, with Mrs. Stotesbury, continues to constitute this colony's first citizen.

Thursday night saw many Palm Beachers in attendance at the Sharkey-Scott bout in Miami, but a distinguished group remained at home to attend the dinner and musicale at which Mr. and Mrs. George Luke Mesker presented Andres Segovia, Spanish guitarist, in recital.

Costume Ball at Everglades.

This coming week is not to be devoid of frivolity, for the annual costume ball of the Everglades club is to be held on Thursday night at the clubhouse. This dance is always one of the high lights of the winter season. The end of February by no means spells the end of the colony's social activities.

If there must be a comparison, March is apt to be a gayer month for the cottage colony than February. Every one suddenly realizes that only a few more weeks of the season remain and a frenzied round of entertainment is the result, with every colonist trying to find a vacant space on the calendar for just one more little party. March parties may not be so large and impressive as February, but they are as numerous, informal, and more fun.

The annual flower show of which Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock of Chicago is chairman, opened in the Poinciana conservatories on Friday, and will continue through Sunday. Exhibits have been entered from many of the colony's handsomest gardens.

Town Planners Meet.

The first meeting of the town planning commission is scheduled for Casa Alejandro, the home of Mrs. McKinlock, on Monday afternoon. Mrs. McKinlock, who is responsible for this commission, is its chairman. As president of the Palm Beach Garden club, she has long been interested in an intelligent plan for the continued beautification of the town. At its meeting on Monday the commission will outline the work of improvement to be completed during the coming summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour and their son, David, are at Whitehall and expect to remain another ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Waller Jr. have been entertaining a jolly house party at their villa, the group including Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Hammond, and the Messrs. Otto and William Madlener.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinlock have as their house guests Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson.

The Current Events club is to be addressed by Mrs. Jackson Fleming, who speaks on "General Political Events" on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry R. Rea. On Monday night the Society of Arts is to hear Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, and the Russian trio in recital at the Everglades club. Mme. Nina Koshetz Gabriel Leonoff and Vladimir Dubinsky comprise the trio.

Western Train's New Schedule Misses Beauty

Ugly Territory Traversed by Daylight.

By Mme. X.

THE new train on the California route going out along an old and historic trail was designed to elude many of the attractive features one associates with the former trains on this line. For two days now we have traveled either along flat, desolate lands or, as at the moment of this writing, on even drearier wastes with low, angry looking mountains, mountains that show their teeth and gums in most unfriendly style, while the sage brush that covers them sparsely looks like an unshorn beard.

By this route we used to pass beautiful red rocks, towering, eager mountains, and a general splendor of natural coloring that now is a part of the long nights' darkness.

Albuquerque, with its double row of stolid and picturesque Indian women, which we formerly reached at midday, we now glide into and out of after dark, thereby, I fancy, much injuring their silently conducted business. That mute appeal of theirs to the passerby was much more effective than the loudest shout of the average street peddler. I know that I, myself, could never resist it, and always got something from them that I really did not want at all, and probably gave it to some one else who wanted it even less. But those stolid squaws at least had the satisfaction of making a few sales from the passerby in the crack train which is denied them now.

Not that trains are run for squaws' benefit, but this particular trail is, or was, one of our most picturesque and interesting routes of travel. On this new train it seems to have lost much of this quality. Also, the new schedule is a little harder on the owner of a shaky heart, as its toughest moments do not come, as of yore, when one is snoozing in one's berth.

We Demand the Best.

To be sure, one can still travel by the former train, which is merely not quite so chic and exclusive as its mate of today. We Americans are natural snobs when it comes to travel. We must have the best, or what is called the best, which with us is tantamount to being the most expensive. In this we are not nearly so cosmopolitan as are the English travelers, who to reach port are willing to take any mode or class of conveyance that will get them there. It hurts the self-love of Americans acutely to be caught traveling any way but first class. I know, because I am that kind of American.

This train that is taking us to the western rim of this continent is the latest word in luxury and comfort, and American car builders have set the pace for the rest of the world in this high art. Since the days of Pullman and Wagner [and most of us have forgotten there ever was a parlor car builder named Wagner] we Americans have been the pioneers in this mode of travel. Europeans may criticise our open sleepers, but when they were first designed they were the only alternative to sitting up all night in seats as did the dwellers in foreign lands.

Our compartment cars and staterooms are the real American version of the foreign sleepers, while our so-called sleeping cars are our way of handling that kind of travel which over there entails passing the night in seats together with a lot of other half asleep mortals.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Nature is an ill regulated jade in this western country. She's handsome as they make 'em, but has bad manners. She either floods the land with water—wide, shallow sweeps of it overspreading banks and roads—or she denies it moisture and adorns it with cactus and sage, sere and unbeautiful. And always 'round the far off skyline jagged mountains show their teeth above their pyorrhean gums. Occasionally, to add cheer to the landscape, the stark carcass of a dead cow or horse reminds the traveler of the vanity of all mortal hopes and fears.

Romance of an Ancient Trail.

On this long trail that the X. family is now covering with all the modern appliances for not merely comfortable but really luxurious travel, uncounted hordes of aborigines, of missionaries, Spanish and English, as well as adventurers, gold seekers of all nationalities, soldiers of fortune, homeseekers with their tired women folk carrying whining babies—a vast and heterogeneous throng once went on foot, on horseback, in covered vans and by every means of travel known to man to seek the golden land, the land of promise that lay beyond the setting sun. There never was a hegira just like this one which formerly traversed the ground that is today covered by scurrying trains. The history of the Santa Fe trail has been well described by many writers, among them Gregg, in his "Commerce of the West."

As I think of those myriad men and women and their quiet acceptance of many hardships I wonder whether we of today are worthy heirs to all that splendor of hope and effort. It isn't with the spirit of those ardent, long suffering pioneers that the X. family turns towards this great, wide ocean, those tranquil rocks, this radiant sunshine, but for the rest the renewal of vigor which they can give refugees from that splendid maelstrom which is my native city. Many Chicagoans of former decades have sought and found in southern California this surcease from clamor and mighty power. This they have found in and around Santa Barbara, a lovely community lying on a long coastline running east and west and facing a wide sweep of the Pacific.

One of the earliest of these was the late Frederick Peabody, who made a goodly fortune dealing in—I believe it was collars. He came to Santa Barbara where, in its most beautiful suburb, Montecito, he built him a picturesque palazzo on the top of a steep peak. His spouse, the mother of three or four children, dying some years ago, he took as a second wife Miss Kathleen Burke, who at that time was one of the most widely known figures in those thrilling days of the world war, when she went up and down various countries giving addresses on many war topics, a voice in a bloody world calling on mankind to come out and fight the enemy.

Hill Top Dwellers.

A long time friend and neighbor of the late Mr. Peabody, who is also an ex-Chicagoan, is George Knapp, once president of our local gas company. He has lived in Montecito valley as long as any of the old timers there. Like Mr. Peabody, he built him a fine house and set it in a lovely garden on the top of a verdant hill, a site that looks out over a wonderful view of sea and mountains.

Almost all the Chicagoans who live in this region have chosen similar hilltops. Perhaps this is a natural reaction from the deadly monotony of the flat region that prevails in most parts of Cook county. Mr. Knapp is now probably the most important member of the colony in that lovely district. He founded a fine hospital in Santa Barbara, as well as the golf club that lies along the cliff rising from the ocean front to where the handsome clubhouse looks out across the land and sea. Nothing has much show of starting and becoming necessary in that part of the land that hasn't Mr. Knapp's approval and support.

Others of our fellow citizens who are important personalities in the Montecito colony are the Robert G. McGanns, who have a charming place overlooking the thickly wooded valley and distant sea into which the heights of Montecito seem to tumble. Their house has twice been surrounded by the forest fires that sweep over those steep and wooded mountain sides, but each time the flames have spared them, though singeing the outer boundaries.

Two Charming Homes.

On a superb mountain tip the late David Jones built himself a lovely French chateau some years ago. His daughter, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, inherited it from him and she and her uncle, Thomas D. Jones, are now there enjoying the many amenities of a winter in Santa Barbara.

Halfway down the mountainside, adorned with this stately house and garden, is another lovely house and garden built by the late Edward L. Ryerson. This now is the property of his eldest son, Joseph T. Ryerson, who plans to occupy it summers with his wife and four children. For Santa Barbara and, in fact, the whole coast of southern California is considered by experts as being at its most attractive during what are the warm months in our part of the world. There, however, the nights are always cool, and the days seldom overwarm.

Its only drawback to a garden loving easterner is the fact that there is almost no rain thereabouts and the background of the country, the wooded mountainsides, becomes parched and brown, much as do the mountains in Italy. But this does not alter the fact that summers in this part of California are becoming even more popular than winters because of the even temperature and the fact that you can always plan a picnic or other outdoor festival weeks ahead, with no fear of weather interfering. It is one of the reasons why, with the inhabitant of this locality, the local climate is a favorite topic.

You remember the story of the native of this resort who, when the officiating clergyman was a little late, was asked to say a few words at a funeral about some one he hardly knew? He rose and said something to the effect that he could only hope that the deceased was going to a climate that was half as perfect as that of Santa Barbara, where it was never too cold, never too warm, where life was a long and delicious dream, and so on and on. It was said to have made a great hit with the mourners for its appropriateness and eloquence.

Many Ex-Chicagoans Here.

Other well known Chicagoans who delight in Santa Barbara and its suburbs are the Hobart Chatfield-Taylors, who have a pleasant abode in a pretty garden where they do a great deal of entertaining, thus keeping up the traditions of Mr. Chatfield-Taylor's many years in Chicago with his first wife, the lovely Rose Farwell Chatfield-Taylor.

Not far from the Chatfield-Taylor house are Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Chancellor, who once were popular personalities in Chicago's "pretty world." They, too, have a lovely house and garden on a hillside where they entertain their many friends from all over the globe. Dr. Chancellor's eldest son, Philip S. Jr., returned recently from a trip to the South sea, where he made a specialty of collecting rare and strange creatures, reptiles, fish, curiosities, etc., for the Field museum.

Still other former Chicagoans who are well established in Montecito's flowery loveliness are the Ellicott Evanses. Long years ago Mr. Evans lived in Chicago, coming from Buffalo, together with his brother, James Carey Evans. The latter married a sister of Albert De Witt Erskine. Later he took his family back to Buffalo, while Ellicott Evans went to the Pacific coast, settling down in the Santa Barbara community.

He married, a few years ago, the widow of a former well known citizen, the late J. Lewis Cochran, and he and his wife now occupy a fine old house originally built by the widow of Robert Louis Stevenson. This Mrs. Evans has completely remodeled this house while keeping its original atmosphere of quaint and overseas air.

Among the Latest Builders.

Among the latest to select Santa Barbara as a summer residence are the Arthur Meekers of Chicago, who, as I wrote last week, are building a house in Montecito for summer use. Unless I'm mistaken and mixed up in dates, they are now out in Santa Barbara visiting their son-in-law and daughter, who live there the year round.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman is planning to spend next summer in Montecito, where she has so many friends. Last summer she stayed with the Joseph G. Colemans Jr., who cared for her during the long and serious illness which occupied most of her summer.

The James Ward Thornes' beautiful new house on the peak of a steep mountain on the outskirts of the city itself is one of the conspicuous landmarks of the region. The Thornes are likewise planning to pass at least part of the summer at Santa Barbara.

One of the conspicuous personalities there, a woman who originally "hailed" from Chicago, is Mrs. Colin Campbell, a daughter of one of our pioneer merchants and real estate promoters, the late Levi Z. Leiter. Many years ago she and her husband created a ranch on the seashore north of Santa Barbara, a most picturesque and charming rendezvous for the gay world, and also an honest-to-goodness ranch where flocks and herds were raised and cattle browsed on the short herbage.

It was a charming mixture of English country life and American frontier hospitality. I remember going there for luncheon five or six years ago, where an indefinite number of guests was entertained. People kept coming in and sitting down at table in an unexpected and delightful fashion without in the least discommoding the hosts or domestics.

Later in the day other visitors came in for tea, which was served in English fashion with big platters of English muffins and large slices of plum cake. I remember that all the Britishers there took milk in their tea instead of either cream or lemon, an oddity of taste which is always surprising to Americans to whom cream or lemon is a "sine qua non" for tea or coffee.

Carries On the Ranch.

Since that date Col. Campbell has died. Mrs. Campbell still is to be found at this ranch, carrying it on as did her husband. She and her two sisters and her brother, Joseph Leiter, were brought up in their youth in the old Leiter mansion on the south side in Chicago, until as they came into their teens their mother took the family to Washington, from which it was but a step into the British nobility, where Mary, the eldest daughter, married the Earl Curzon of Keddleston, while the second daughter became Lady Suffolk.

She it was who, a few years ago, brought suit against her brother for an accounting of his custodianship of the property their father had left his family. In this suit Mrs. Campbell stood by her brother, maintaining that he had been a good and helpful agent in managing his father's estate.

If I am not mistaken, the judge was more of her opinion than that of her two sisters. The Leiter fortune is one of those great Chicago estates that is made in this western city and spent entirely elsewhere. Other such properties are those of the Whitehouses, the William Walkers, the Sheldons, the Spaldings, and many others, all of whom were once prominent factors in our city's business and social life, but who now adorn other spheres wherein they and their fortunes are Chicago's generally unacknowledged representatives.

London Is Gay with Festivities for Its Visitors

Peers Are Hosts to Naval Delegates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.— [Special.] —February is usually a "dead" month in London as far as formal entertaining goes, since so many hostesses are away either in Switzerland or on the Riviera, and in late years long sea trips to the West Indies and India have become the fashion. The presence of the delegates of five nations to the naval conference resulted in quite a phenomenal crop of parties, however, and March will see many more.

Lady Parmeer, the wife of the leader of the house of lords, gave a tea party for the wives of all the delegates at her house in Wilton crescent to meet peeresses whose husbands sit in the house of lords. The most picturesque figure was Mme. Takarabe, who wore her national costume. The next day the wives of the American delegates were guests of honor at the American Women's club, when 200 members were there to meet and congratulate them. In order to be easily distinguished they wore little white badges with their names printed on them.

Miss Ishbel MacDonald, the prime minister's daughter, recently acted as conductor on a trip through Buckinghamshire to the ladies' delegations. The event ended in a luncheon at Chequers Court, the official country house of the prime minister. This residence was given to the nation by Viscount and Viscountess Lee of Fareham, who now live at White Lodge, Richmond Park, which has been lent to them by the king. After lunch there was a tour over the house, which was in the possession of the Astley family for 500 years. They saw the oak box which formerly contained the rush lights used before the era of lamps.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the chancellor of the exchequer, was fortunate in having a pretty cousin, Miss Marion Snowden, to sing Bach chorales at her Sunday tea party to the delegates and their wives at 11 Downing street. The drawing room at No. 11 is a wonderfully proportioned apartment and Mrs. Snowden is one of the best hostesses in government circles.

Hosts at Large Ball.

Mrs. A. V. Alexander, wife of the first lord of the admiralty, was hostess one night recently when she and her husband received nearly 700 guests at Admiralty house. Evening dress with decorations was worn. Mrs. Alexander's gown of patterned orange and peach brocade with orange chiffon flounces at the hem was much admired. The passages and ground floor offices at the admiralty had been decorated with bunting and flags of the countries of the delegations, and all the flower decorations were of scarlet and gold.

This was arranged by the government hospitality fund, which also planned an informal little expedition for the wives of the delegates the next day to Windsor to see the castle. The latter is one of the country homes of King George and Queen Mary. There was a luncheon at an old hotel in Windsor and a drive past Eton college. St. George's chapel, Windsor castle, has recently been redecorated and the stalls of the Knights of the Garter repainted.

Driving through the High street of Eton, which adjoins Windsor, the women noticed how the Etonians are allowed only to walk on one side of the street, and that members of "Pop," an exclusive Etonian society, wear blobs of sealing wax on their top hats.

Informal Entertaining.

There has been a good deal of informal entertaining among members of the delegation. Mrs. Lammot Belin had Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Adams to dinner at her pretty house in Brook street, which has ducks egg blue walls inside, and took them on to see "Bitter-Sweet" at His Majesty's theater. Senator and Mrs. Reed lunched one day at the Ritz with Mr. and Mrs. Belin, and the former couple gave a luncheon earlier in the week to Viscount and Viscountess Astor, the Japanese ambassador and Ambassador Dwight and Mrs. Morrow and their daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sterling of the American embassy in Dublin were lunching at the same restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow and their daughter were also the guests of Colonel and Mrs. Stimson at the Warren house, Stanmore, over a recent weekend, when they played golf on the nine hold course that is laid out in the grounds. This house, only half an hour's drive from London, has been taken for the period of the conference by Col. Stimson from Sir John Fitzgerald. It has lovely gardens, as well as a hard tennis court and billiards. Incidentally, it is only a short distance from Elstree, the British Hollywood.

Prince Ali Khan, the good looking young son of the Aga Khan, who is an eligible young man-about-town now, has just taken a flat in Aldford street, off Park lane, and is busy furnishing it. He has most original ideas about decorations and is determined to have a medieval dining room.

Accordingly, his guests will sit on a long wooden bench without a back, against the wall, one side only of a refectory table which will be lighted with six tall candles. The headlight lamp of a car will give light for a service table in the corner.

Some perfect old English panelling has been found for his staircase walls with a hidden panel in the tiny hall. This opens to show a cocktail bar.

Poetry Society to Open Branch.

Lady Carlisle, who is expected back shortly from America, and Lady Wimborne, who went out to South Africa on the same boat as the prince of Wales, are both enthusiastic members of the Poetry society, which is to have a Mayfair branch. Viscountess Howe is lending Curzon house for the first meeting of this branch, when lecturers and lectures will be discussed and members willl arrange to read their own verses.

Viscountess Curzon of Kedleston was a radiant figure in all brown at Sandown for a race meeting, recently. Mrs. F. A. Pearson, wife of the first secretary to the American embassy in Vienna, has been hunting with the Quorn. She possesses a striped fur coat that is much admired by her friends.

Viscountess Astor's daughter, the Hon. Phyllis Astor, is unfortunately still ill because of the serious injury to her spine in an accident after her first hunt of the season. She was not able to help her mother receive at the reception that Lady Astor gave to the conference delegates on Feb. 11 at 4 St. James square.

Lady Ribblesdale and her daughter, Princess Obolensky, are on their way back to England from America, and they will find that there has been a great deal of building and reconstruction going on on either side of the Regent's canal, where Prince and Princess Obolensky have a house. Lady Ribblesdale has built herself a small house in their grounds.

Lady Cynthia Mosley, wearing bright blue satin with one of the new hats that fall down in a frill between the shoulder blades, was a guest at the luncheon party given after the wedding of Dudley Field Malone and Miss Edna Johnson. This was a cheery affair at Claridges after a morning registry office marriage at Prince's row, Westminster.

Maj. "Fruity" Metcalfe, husband of Lady Alexandra and Sir William and Lady Jowitt, were other guests.

Meetings, Teas, Luncheons Promise a Pleasant Week

By Mildred Jaklon.

THE dates for teas, lunches, and meetings are a little more generously sprinkled over this week's social calendar than they have been during the last month, and those who were beginning to suffer a touch of boredom because of the lassitude of the season may hope for a more interesting state of affairs in the near future.

The Arts club, always a good place to see people and hear a bit of news or gossip (there is a great deal of difference between the two), is having one of its teas tomorrow afternoon, opening an exhibit of paintings by Ernest Fiene, gouaches by Emil Ganso, and drawings by Muriel Hannah.

The Chicago Historical society is also having one of its series of teas tomorrow afternoon. The members of the Chicago Woman's club and the Woman's City club are to be special guests, and will enjoy a tour of the building and a talk about the prospective museum.

Junior Friends of Art.

Tuesday, there is an English-Speaking union luncheon with S. K. Ratcliffe, the London journalist and publicist, as the speaker and guest. His subject is to be "Great Navies and World Peace."

The Junior Friends of Art is to have a "Japanese afternoon" at the Chicago Historical society on Tuesday, with a program of music and talks.

Alumnae of the Starrett school, who include some of the prominent south side women, are giving a charity bridge for the benefit of the Lighthouse Volunteers Aid on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the Starrett school. Mrs. J. F. Jennings is president of the alumnae and Miss Mary Parsons the vice president.

Series of Polo Tournaments.

The National Indoor Polo association's series of polo tournaments at the Chicago Riding club on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings will help the treasuries for the Chicago Boys' club, the Boy Scouts of America, the American Legion, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and so a group of the young women who always seem to be available for such purposes are to sell programs and tickets. Stuyvesant Peabody is chairman of the arrangements committee and is being assisted by a group of prominent men.

Germans Seek Forest Rights

ADAPAZAR, Turkey.—(AP)—German interests have been negotiating with the Turkish government for timber rights in the vast unexploited forests of this Black sea region. The Germans say they are prepared to put $7,500,000 into the project and to build a railway from this city to Bolou.

Americans in Paris Honor Edges with Many Social Affairs

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS. — [Special.]—Ambassador Walter E. Edge and Mrs. Edge are rapidly developing an aptitude for a leading social life in the American colony as befits their position. Both have appeared recently at a number of private luncheons and dinners and each was a guest of honor at two important functions celebrating Washington's birthday, marking their first official appearance at strictly American affairs.

While the ambassador was the principal guest and speaker at the chamber of commerce banquet, Mrs. Edge graced the American Legion annual ball given by the American Women's club.

Among the private hosts Chicagoans are figuring prominently. Mrs. Norman Armour, wife of the counselor of the American embassy, invited several of her compatriots to her apartment on Avenue Henri Martin to meet Mrs. Edge at a luncheon.

First Embassy Ball.

The following day Mrs. Edge was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mrs. Livingston Fairbanks in her interesting old 18th century house in Rue de Lille. The Fairbanks also gave a big dinner party yesterday before going to the first embassy ball which Ambassador Edge and his wife gave for the younger set.

Today Mrs. Fairbanks will again be the hostess at a tea, giving her friends an opportunity to see her new portrait just finished by Alfred Orr. Friday night Ambassador and Mrs. Edge were the guests of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Henry Symes Lehr in her historic 17th century house known as the Hotel de Coye, one of the best preserved, most perfectly restored old mansions in Faubourg Saint Germain. Other guests at this dinner will be the Marquise of Huntly and the wife of the latter's son, Arthur Bradley Campbell.

Lively Debate at Illinois Women's Athletic

Dr. Bridges and Prof. Todd Talk About Divorce

And Open Forum Follows the Discussion.

By Roberta Nangle.

THE announcement of a talk on marriage and divorce is as sure to draw an audience in a woman's club as a Clara Bow movie in a cinematic cathedral. Hence the Illinois Women's Athletic club anticipates a full house on Friday evening, when Dr. Horace J. Bridges and Prof. Arthur James Todd of Northwestern university are to conduct a discussion and open forum on "Should Divorce Be Made as Easy as Marriage?"

The debate, which will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30 o'clock, is open to the public. Mrs. M. J. Seifert, chairman of the magazine committee of the club, is in charge of the program.

As far as we have been able to ascertain, Dr. Bridges is to expound the affirmative side of the subject, having been quoted as saying that "divorce is as necessary as a surgical operation." Dr. Todd, the author of several books on sociology, apparently considers divorce one of the serious social evils of the present day, and advocates "the application of modern knowledge and scientific methods to both marriage and divorce."

Reports of Year's Work.

The fiscal year of the Illinois Women's Athletic club will come to a close on March 31 and the reports are expected to show a successful twelve months. First in importance will be the financial statement, which will show that $200,000 has been raised in bonds on the 17 story building, the largest woman's club in the world.

Mrs. Richard S. Folsom, chairman of athletics, will tell in her report that the club has sent more champions to the Olympic meets and developed more national women champions in various sports than any other similar organization in the country. Jane Fauntz, international diving champion; Helen Filkey, international hurdler, and Betty Robinson, Olympic track star, are among the shining lights in the club's roster. Riding classes at the Chicago Riding club, indoor golf, billiards, bowling, skiing, hiking, and swimming are all included in the athletic program.

Other active groups in the club include the Round Table, the dramatic study class, and the business women's forum. The latter department has dinner meetings once a month and has a membership of 700 women representing 100 professions.

The club as a whole offers to its members a full program of athletics, civic enterprise, and social events. It was organized in 1918 and has occupied its handsome new home for three years. Miss Bessie Bragg Pierson is presiding officer.

CLUB ETHICS . . . . By Maude Swales

THE press chairmen from many clubs sat together at the district luncheon and chatted as they ate.

"We have some members in our club who want every little thing reported in the papers," said the Parko club chairman. "They just can't see that we should skip over the little or the usual things and save our stress for the big and unusual things."

"And some of them can't see that they should have their material in a week, or more, ahead, either," put in the Wednesday club chairman, "and that I shouldn't have to call them up several times for it."

"Good, go on talking," urged the East End chairman. "I'm new to my job and I'm anxious for information about running it."

"My idea of a good time—telling the other fellow how to run her job," commented the Valley chairman. "I would say that one of the first things to do is to study your papers and find out the kind of material they use, and, of course, sign your stuff when you send it in."

"I've been wondering whether it's better to take it personally, or to file it to the papers," questioned the East End chairman.

"You might go once—to establish your identity with the club editor, but after that it saves time for everyone if you write or telephone. And don't send your husband in with your material in hopes of getting special attention," counseled the Valley chairman.

"I don't believe I would even if I had one. I'm Miss Higby," the East End chairman told them.

"There's a well known university that offers a short correspondence course planned especially for club press chairmen," reported the Parko chairman.

"And last, but not least, keep the records of your work as will help your successor, and when you go out of office pass them along to her," advised the Valley chairman.

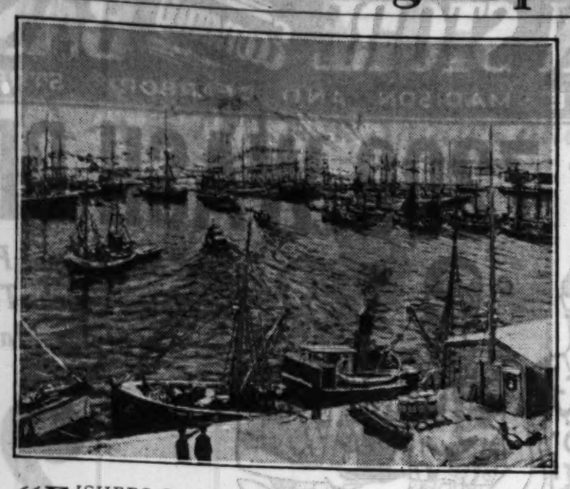
First Showing of Paintings Up for Comment - - - By Eleanor Jewett

Artist Claims Good Job Needs Several Views

Few People at Exhibitions, Says Hoffler.



"FISHERS Coming In to Harbor," by Karl Ouren, one of the magnificent paintings to be found in Mr. Ouren's one-man show of brilliant canvases current in the galleries of the Palette and Chisel club, 1012 North Dearborn street. The exhibition will continue to March 10.

AN intelligent stand has been taken by a painter, Othmar Hoffler, member of the Palette and Chisel club, on the question of whether paintings should be reserved for their first viewing at the annual Chicago Artists exhibit in the Art institute. The question came up in answer to a suggestion in this column a week or so ago that the current show has too many pictures previously seen this season and that it might be more satisfactory to allow no painting that has been shown in the current year in the exhibition of that year.

Mr. Hoffler writes: "I do not agree that the Art institute should not show paintings already exhibited in Chicago. This condition was inserted the year before last and was generally ignored. I understand that Mr. Harshe [director of the museum] was not in sympathy with the ruling. Only very close followers of art see all the exhibitions and a painting shown for the first time at the institute is seen for the first time by ninety-nine out of a hundred of the observers, even though it had been previously exhibited in some minor show in Chicago.

"By the time I have paid for the frame, material, model and costume hire, a painting will cost me from $50 to $125 to produce, according to size. So that if I were able to exhibit it only in one exhibition my chances of selling it would be too limited.

Chance to Win Two Prizes.

"Roy Collins won $1,000 with his painting, 'Mother and Child,' at the Chicago galleries; and later it took a $300 prize at the Art institute. If he had been forced to hold it for the institute he would have been out the thousand dollars, as, of course, the same conditions at exhibitions are never duplicated. As you know, one jury will give a painting a prize and another will reject it."

This is logical reasoning. The current exhibition is the first in which is much familiar work has to stand the test of renewed inspection; it will probably be the last for some seasons. Certainly if the artists want the ruling off, off it should be. After all, the exhibition field is primarily the artist's and his concept of right should be respected.

Critic Voices His Theories.

An ingenious critic has recently sought to obscure the stand this column took at the opening of the current Chicago Artists exhibition on the misplacing of Giesbert's "Girl in Red." He also laughs off any defense of academic painting and any defense of American painters.

Reducing his thesis to primary principles, there are no American painters, not since the redskin Indians. None of us are indigenous to the soil of North America. And he carries on in gallant style by insinuating that French painters are not French nor anything what it seems, but the whole of the modern movement is a froth of half-breed origin.

The question in point was the suitability of hanging the "Girl in Red" as the keynote painting to the current Chicago Artists exhibition. On a side wall it could have been passed over with a single comment, or ignored entirely. Hanging where it does, it dominates the gallery and threatens domination to the spirit of the entire exhibit. Not only that. Giesbert is twice a favorite. On the east wall of the second most important gallery his huge canvas, "Earth," hangs.

Are we playing favorites in this exhibiting game? Is there any good reason that a not unusually gifted man should be thus forced into prominence? Opinions differ, but a dozen names come readily to mind as greater colorists, greater craftsmen, greater artists than Mr. Giesbert.

Among Worthy Painters.

Offhand consider Charles P. Killgore, Paul Trebilcock, Pauline Palmer, Frederic M. Grant, Oskar Gross, John Spelman, Frederic Tellander, Roy Collins, Frank V. Dudley, Claude Buck, J. Allen St. John, Leopold Seyffert, there are twelve shot off without a pause for breath. This is not to deny Mr. Giesbert an ability; he has talent and a command of large canvases—his "Uphill" of last year is still something to remember with pleasure. But it is to deny the hanging committee the right of showing preference. It is to acclaim that all artists should be given an equal chance to become the toast of the public.

The idea of some one else's favorite being crammed down one's throat is repugnant. If Giesbert has one wall, then give Oskar Gross or Pauline Palmer or Charles Killgore or John Spelman or any of twenty artists the second important wall. And no one can deny that the east walls of the two large galleries are the most prominent walls in the entire east wing.

Exhibitions Well Attended.

While we are on the subject, one objection can be raised to Mr. Hoffler's statements. With the interest that women are taking in art [this could be enlarged to include men as well] there are few exhibitions, no matter how small, which are neglected. Every exhibit gets a crowded audience.

Mr. Hoffler submits a problematical one out of each hundred visitors to the Chicago Artists exhibit as having seen the previous seasonal shows. It seems to me that seventy-five per cent of those who go to the Art institute exhibition go, also, to the exhibitions in the various galleries. The Chicago galleries is extremely popular and so are a number of the commercial galleries.

The No-Jury exhibition is well attended; the Chicago Society of Artists draws a yearly crowd; the Allerton House attracts a large number; the Palette and Chisel club shows always reach a wide audience; the South Side Art association and the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts are both popular with the public. The public is becoming more awake every year to what artists are offering. Business men and club women are being interested as never before.

It is a safe bet that soon there will be no Chicago show so insignificant that a painting shown in it will stand a chance of neglect. Exhibited pictures will rank with the w. k. goldfish in chances for privacy.

Statement Corrected.

Meanwhile, a word from Dudley Crafts Watson is in season. At a recent talk he was overheard to give voice to this clever quip: "It is not necessary to be crazy to be a modernist, but it helps." How it does help! And also a letter from Mr. Watson [one which was expected, for I knew at the time there was a mis-statement] reads:

"I want to commend you on your very excellent article on the status of modern art in last Sunday's [February 16] TRIBUNE. It was very readable, highly informative and excellent psychology, as I see it. I agree with your premise in every respect, but may I bring to your attention the fact that I was misquoted.

"I did not see the New York Modern Museum's show of Nineteen American modernists. In fact, I don't even know who the nineteen selected were. I took great pains in a recent gallery tour to expound at great length upon the magnificence of the Modern Museum movement and the gigantic success of their contemporary French show."

I might interrupt Mr. Watson's letter a moment with this insertion of a statement by Royal Cortissoz, art critic for the New York Herald-Tribune and a man of international reputation in art matters, concerning this same French modernist exhibited in the New York museum "If there is anything which Picasso or Matisse, Rouault or Braque, Chagall or Chirico, Friesz or Dufy has to communicate it is offered here," he says. The "powerful" Gromaire or the sweetly pretty Marie Laurencin is to be seen at his, or her best. But the well-thought-out structure of the conclusive work is missing.

"The thought, if it is there, remains obscure because the workmanship lacks clarity and authority. And how depressing is much of the work displayed! Fitfully, in a landscape or a figure piece by Derain, in a portrait by Vuillard, in a lucky contour of Picasso's, in a flash of color by Matisse, we have 'glimpses that do make us less forlorn.' But in the main, the ancient sections of art are repudiated and 'beauty dead, black chaos comes again.'"

One more pungent remark of Mr. Cortissoz anent Picasso is irresistible; it repeats a thought I have written again and again: "But there is no reason why any man should carry on his education in public"—and concludes, "and there are a number of Picassos here which seems impertinent."

Imitation Too Frequent.

To return to Mr. Watson, who, by the way, is extension lecturer of the Chicago Art institute, a good artist and brilliant speaker. His letter continues: "This [the French moderns] is the show for which I had to stand in line to gain entrance. It was the most brilliant display of painting I have ever beheld in any land and removes the doubt as to whether painting is an important art and a great accomplishment today." As you see, he and Royal Cortissoz do not voice the same thought. The exhibition is seen from diametrically opposed planes.

Mr. Watson concludes: "At the same time I took occasion to say that a contemporary show of American modernists on display in New York at the same time was largely rubbish because it was in the imitation of the work of the French artists."

In this last statement lies the danger of foreign art to the American painter of immature years. The grotesqueries of foreign modernism are apparently easily copied and the imitation is generally worthless, except to those self-blinded by the ephemeral success which momentarily attends the names of Matisse, Picasso and the others. And even this does not deny Matisse and Picasso and those other pioneers in modernism their due; they have contributed something; their work is uneven, but they have brought fresh life to the stream of art. The point of contention is that while they as individuals are remarkable, they are also human, not the gods some would have us believe them. Good and bad mingle in their painting as in any constructive and original work. It is when one dares not recognize the bad but dresses any effort, no matter how feeble, in the robes of imperial purple, that clear vision cries with the voice of the boy in the fairy tale: "The emperor has nothing on!" Poor painting is poor painting whether done in a conservative or a radical manner; modernism covers altogether too many weaknesses and vulgarities.

Notes of Art and Artists.

Dick Richard, a young Chicago artist, is represented for the first time in the current Chicago artists' exhibition at the Art institute with an excellently realistic painting in the Dutch manner, "In the Pub," the portrait, really, of an old man with his friends, the brown bottle and the mug.

Gilbert Rocke, who, in the No Jury exhibit recently seen, showed the tall, thin cow, and the tall, thin chickens, and the tall, thin dairy maid, contributes to the current Chicago artists' exhibit "Early Worm," an agonized but methodical worm at the feet of more tall and thin and featherless poultry.

Charles W. Dahlgreen offers in the same exhibit two gloriously painted landscapes. His "A Gift of Nature," is one of the most colorful and beautiful paintings of a tree in autumn splendor that it has ever been my good fortune to see.

Karl Ouren at the Palette and Chisel club has a magnificent show. His paintings are of Norway and show blue water and white snow, high peaks and fertile valleys in the warmth of a glowing sun. His exhibit is one of the most important in town today.

The South Side Art association has an interesting exhibit of paintings by members in its galleries on the ninth floor of the Fine Arts building.

Emile Zoir, a Swedish artist who has met with international recognition and whose work has been crowned by many honors, opened an exhibit of paintings last Thursday at the Swedish Club of Chicago.

Maude Phelps Hutchins has an exhibit of portrait busts at the Chester Johnson galleries. Her work is delightful, unpretentious, full of charm, and honest.

Adame Emory Albright is showing a number of paintings of children in the Revell gallery. Mr. Albright is famous for his children. Here they are again set against entrancing backgrounds—hills, meadows, stream and beach. The exhibition is one which will delight many people.

Anti-Baksheesh Law Gives Turk Officials Old Fashion Fidgets

ANGORA.—(AP)—Turkish officials are making fidgety good resolutions now that the National assembly has passed a stern anti-baksheesh law.

Officials guilty of accepting baksheesh will be dismissed and those caught mishandling government funds will not only be dismissed but will find their own and their wives' property subject to confiscation.

The latter clause was inspired by the case of a former minister of commerce, Ali Djenani Bey, who was brought to trial on corruption charges two years ago, and heavily fined. The Djenani property was found, however, to be all in his wife's name, and the fine was not paid.

casino on Saturday is attracting a group of the nation's premier women aquatic stars. Miss Josephine McKim and Miss Georgia Coleman, Pacific coast stars who have made many records in western waters, are entered in Saturday's meet.

A quintet of five New York misses entered in the meet is composed of the fastest swimmers in the Women's Swimming association. Miss Eleanor Holm, 16, leads this group of five, and her teammates are the Misses Lisa Lindstrom, Agnes Geraghty, Adelaide Lambert, and Katherine Ames.

Miss Helen Meaney, Olympic diving champion, has been giving exhibitions at the Breakers pool and casino all season.

Golfers, who are legion here, are much interested in the international four ball competition to take place in Miami March 9 to 13.

Although most of the village attended the Scott-Sharkey bout in Miami on Thursday, this colony has not been without its own sport interests, particularly the fifteenth annual society baseball game between New York and Philadelphia and the two-round boxing bout between James H. R. Cromwell, son of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, and Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia heavyweight.

Spectators Wear Police Togs.

Doubtless out of deference to its catcher, Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, the Manhattan aggregation of social stars appeared for the game attired in regular blue police coats and caps, with white trousers substituted for the patrolman's blue.

The bold Philly lineup, refusing to kowtow to the law, wore the black and white striped suits that were once regulation convict garb. Only seven innings were played and by that time the New York nine had rolled up a score of eight to Philly's five.

The convicts' pitchers went to pieces in the third inning, when the Manhattan team knocked Pitchers Woolworth Dohanue, C. F. Kelleher, and Milton Holden all over the lot.

A second contretemps in the fourth inning completed the demoralization of the Philadelphia squad. At a crucial moment when Mr. Kelleher was racing between first and second base, the draw string in his prison pantaloons gave way, permitting the trousers to slip in such a manner as to trip up the Philly white hope and reveal a pair of peach pink shorts.

Fashionables Cheer Favorites.

The bleachers and grandstand were crowded with fashionable folk come to cheer their own heroes. In the audience were Mrs. James P. Donahus, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle, Mrs. Milton Holden, Jules Bache, John Shepard Jr., and most of the colony's belles, including the Misses Eleanor Hutton, Pauline Munn, Virginia Thaw, Alice Belmont, Katharine Tod, Nancy Heckscher, Louise Van Alen, Alice Moats and Frances Gillmore.

As for the much touted bout between Mr. Cromwell, the carrot topped beau ideal of Palm Beach, and Mr. Loughran, it was out and out farce with the referee awarding the decision to Mr. Cromwell in the second round, lest Mr. Loughran accidentally knock the society favorite out in the third.

The bleachers were filled with important colonists who appeared to have had their money's worth in fun, if not in fight.

Vienna's Clubs Earn It Title of "Joiner" City

VIENNA.—(AP)—Vienna is a city of "joiners." Clubs and societies to the number of 20,000 are registered with the police authorities. They range from clubs with less than 100 members to societies with more than 10,000.

Altogether there are 1,300,000 members listed in these clubs and societies, so that every man, woman and child of the city could be included but for the fact that many people are members of several organizations.

The objects of the clubs are extremely varied—from pure amusement to such serious matters as protection of trade interests, from lovers of pea soup with pigs' ears who meet weekly at a certain restaurant to vegetarian societies, from savings clubs to holiday associations, from teetotalers to drinkers, from bachelors to spinsters and many others.

It does not need much initiative to form a club here. One or two chance meetings between persons of similar interests nearly always lead to an organization of some sort.

TIME WRITES HIS RECORD BENEATH YOUR CHIN

THE woman who would keep her youthful appearance must guard the arc of her chinline. Time loves to blur that clean-cut curve, to make the under-chin droop, to add unwanted chins. And nothing ages a woman more swiftly or more surely than does a double chin. It makes her look middle-aged.

Keep your chinline young! You can, easily. Dorothy Gray has evolved simple, scientific treatments which have proved remarkably successful in preventing double chins, and in correcting them.

These treatments are given at the Dorothy Gray salon, conveniently located at 900 North Michigan Avenue. Here, and at leading Chicago shops, you may obtain for your home use the same Dorothy Gray preparations used in the salons. Won't you drop in tomorrow and let us give you "Your Dowry of Beauty," a valuable booklet on scientific home care of the skin?

Wednesday Sees Beginning of Lenten Season

Observance Goes Back to Early Christianity.

By the Rev. John Evans.

LENT, the fast season recognized by the greater portion of Christendom as a preparation for Easter, goes back to the very earliest days of Christianity for its institution. The word is derived, it is thought, from a Germanic root meaning "long" and referring to the lengthening days of spring. Lent begins Wednesday, March 5.

In the earliest days of the Christian era the period was very short but extremely severe. Tertullian relates the practice of observing the forty hours between the afternoon of Good Friday and Easter morning in complete abstinence. A little later, in Alexandria, it was customary to fast during the week preceding Easter, known as Holy week, while one of the schismatic groups—one of the first, the Montanists—boasted of a two weeks' fasting period before Easter.

The period gradually grew into a forty day observance, although until the seventh century only thirty-six fast days were on the calendar. The inconsistency of the thirty-six days with the forty days of Christ in the wilderness was pointed out, and four days were added by authority of the Roman pontiff. This put the opening day of Lent back to Wednesday, which came to be known as Ash Wednesday.

In England the fourth Sunday of Lent came to be known as "Mothering Sunday," and for centuries had the spirit of "Mother's day," which has recently been added to the religious calendar of many American churches. During the eighteenth century, due to English Lenten laws becoming obsolete, the observance of the season greatly relaxed. Many serious minded church leaders, such as William Law and John Wesley, effectively advocated a renewal of the practice, with the result that women followed the Elizabethan custom of wearing mourning in Lent until well into the nineteenth century.

A new revival of interest and observance of the Lenten or pre-Easter period is striking American churches. In the Roman Catholic church there has been no relaxation and the practice for communicants of the Catholic church is clearly defined.

Two preachers of distinction have been selected for the Lenten services at the Holy Name cathedral. The Rev. Edwin V. Hoover will preach at the solemn mass at 11 o'clock on the Sundays of Lent. Father Hoover is professor of Gregorian chant at the Quigley seminary and director of the Quigley seminary plain chant choir, which is heard at the cathedral on Sundays and special feasts. He has studied Gregorian chant not only in Rome but also at Solesmes and Ratisbon, the great centers of Gregorian music in France and Germany, and is a composer of recognized ability.

Father Hoover will give a series of instructive and interesting sermons on the various religions of the present day.

The Rev. James J. Mertz of Loyola university will preach for the evening Lenten devotions at the cathedral on Wednesdays and Sundays, beginning Ash Wednesday and continuing his series through Palm Sunday, with the exception of Lætare Sunday, March 30, when the combined cathedral choirs will hold their annual concert in the cathedral, under the direction of the Rev. Philip J. Mahoney.

The Protestant Women's Service club will meet Wednesday in the Wedgewood room at Marshall Field's at 12:30. John Mulholland will speak on "Magic of the World."

The Rev. David E. Gibson, pastor of the Cathedral Shelter, Washington and Peoria streets, announces that the Rev. William Turton Travis, rector of St. Simon's Episcopal church, will be the special preacher this morning.

A two weeks' mission will open today at St. Matthew's Catholic church with Redemptionist Fathers Walter L. Polk and Benedict Lenz the preachers. The first week will be for the women of the parish and the second week for the men. A drive for members of the Holy Name society will be conducted by a committee under the leadership of Samuel McCarthy.

The Rev. Dr. Albert Parker Fitch, pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, will be the preacher tonight at the Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall. Dr. Fitch speaks this morning at the Chicago university chapel. His subject tonight is "Where do you live?"

The Women's club of the Liberal church meets in the Community house, 6614 Blackstone avenue, on Tuesday at 11 a. m. At 11:30 a. m. there will be a lecture by Prof. Merrifield on the "Literature and the Creation of a National Spirit." His subject at this meeting is "Greek and Roman Contrasts."

Declaring that the genuine doubts that the adolescent feels about religion should be encouraged as the only way by which larger and truer convictions are reached, Dr. Edwin Ewart Aubrey of the University of Chicago Divinity school, in an article in the March issue of the Parents' Magazine, places the blame for the failure of doubting to produce better results among the youth of America today squarely on the shoulders of parents.

"Doubt is a valuable part of growth," Dr. Aubrey said. "It represents a readiness to advance. But doubt, if it is to serve its purpose, must eventuate in conviction."

Here, according to Dr. Aubrey, parents have failed. They should neither ignore nor ridicule their children's doubts, but should study them and see what caused them. Sometimes the particular doubt is merely conformity to the convictions of a skeptical group of companions. Again, it may be caused by the collapse of some values other than religious, usually emotional, as when the home life is unhappy. The most prolific source of adolescent doubt is probably the intellectual distance between the parents' thought world and the children's.

Bethany Union Plans to Celebrate Two Anniversaries

BETHANY UNION CHURCH, Beverly Hills, will hold a men's banquet Tuesday evening to plan a celebration of the 58th anniversary of the church and the 25th ordination anniversary of the pastor, the Rev. Clyde McGee. The Rev. Mr. McGee has served the church for more than twenty years.

The Bethany Union church was organized in 1872, and is said to be the oldest union or community church west of the Alleghany mountains. It began with members from six denominations. Today more than twenty-five denominations are represented. In this church was organized the first Christian Endeavor society of the middle west and at that time the twelfth such society in the United States. Of its charter members, Miss Alice Barnard of 1924 West 103d street, is still living and maintains her membership in the church.

The forward program of the church includes a men's campaign for at least fifty new members, as well as a special recognition service for the pastor, Dr. McGee, on Sunday, April 6. A special promotion committee of fifteen men has been organized, of which A. A. Longley is chairman, and James G. Christie is secretary.

The Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, will speak this evening at the River Forest Sunday Evening club in the church auditorium at Jackson and Quick avenues. Jacques Gordon, first violin and concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will be the soloist. The program will start at 7:15 with a piano recital by Grace Nelson. The Rev. Irving E. Putnam will offer the invocation and benediction.

Peter Will of Cleveland, aid to Newton D. Baker and Mayor Tom Johnson and recently a member of the Cleveland city council, will speak this afternoon at the Chicago Forum, Adelphi theater, under the auspices of the adult education council. His subject will be "Political Dumb Bells in a Machine Age."

Members of the Episcopal clergy round table of the diocese of Chicago will be the guests of Western Theological seminary, Evanston, at a luncheon tomorrow. The speakers will be students of the seminary and will include Joseph G. Moore, Lisle Thacton and Ralph Madson. They will discuss the metropolitan survey of social and religious conditions in Chicago and tell of their experiences in helping to make the survey. The talks will be illustrated by maps and charts.

QUESTION BOX

The Rev. John Evans, religious editor, will suggest answers to questions of general religious interest in this column. Anonymous questions will not be considered. Contributors are requested to confine their questions to fifty words.

Mrs. L. N. H. asks: "In Frederick W. Farrar's 'Life of Christ,' chapter 18, page 135, I find this statement: 'Of Judas, the man of Kerioth, perhaps the only Jew in the Apostolic band—.' If Judas was the only Jew, what were the other?"

Canon Farrar's "Life of Christ" is one of the most popular ever written. It has gone through many editions and has been translated into a number of languages. While, in the main, it is still of great value to readers, yet it is now believed that the author was in error in a number of points when considered in the light of present day Biblical scholarship. Present day Bible students are convinced that the entire apostolic company were Jews, as was their Leader. As Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York said in his recent Orchestra hall address, "Jesus did not have so much as an English cousin!" The same may be said of the entire group.

The only mention in the Gospels of other nationalities was the visit of the "Greeks," which undoubtedly referred to Greek speaking Jews—or "Hellenists" who had largely fallen away from orthodox Judaism. Probably all of the deacons mentioned in the Acts were Hellenists, but Jews none the less.

The influence on the development of Christianity of these Greek speaking Jews was very great. Paul was a Hellenist.

Greek thought was added by them to the Jewish founadtion of the Apostles and their Leader.

Sailing Craft Bring Beauty Spectacle to Key Biscayne

MIAMI, Fla., March 1.—[Special.]—Once again many notables, members of the Biscayne Bay Yacht club and their friends, assembled recently at Key Biscayne, belonging to Commodore W. J. Matcheson, for their annual chowder party in celebration of Washington's birthday. This marked the 43d time for such a remarkable occasion and it was attended b several hundred prominent personages.

Promptly at noon the guns marking the salute to dress ship were heard and the array of yachts and sailing crafts were at once a spectacle of beauty with their many colored flags. Then followed the formal ceremony of testing the chowder by W. J. Matheweson, Hugh M. Matheson, Col. Robert Thompson, R. M. Munro, and Manning S. Burbank.

Thatched pavilions with tables were filled with the various parties who had brought other luncheons to be combined with the chowder and, following the repast, dancing was enjoyed in the hacienda, where an orchestra furnished music.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha F. Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, June 5, 1868.

DEAR JULIA:

Will and I have been down to see some friends off for an extended trip in the west. Some of the stockholders and a number of invited guests of the Chicago and North Western railway left for Laramie City, the terminus of the Union Pacific road. We went down to give farewell greetings to Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Isham, who were among the people going. Others we saw were Judge and Mrs. Caton, Col. J. H. Dickey, Mrs. MacVeagh, Col. Huntington Jackson, Miss Hill, E. S. Isham and Mrs. Isham; Lieut. Gov. Bross, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Williams; George Pullman and his party; the Blackstone party, and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt. They will have a wonderful time, I am sure.

I want to ask if you are wearing the panier bustle? As I was walking along Lake street yesterday, I saw in the window of Field, Palmer and Leiter this new fangled contraption, called "Duplex Spiral Bustle, or Le Panier." I didn't buy it, for I want to wait and see what others are going to wear. I do hope it won't mean the terribly small waist, of which we hear rumors.

I saw an English magazine at my mantua maker's today, which rather appalled me, I confess. It contained an article advocating the wasp waist and really defending it on the ground of its being healthy! One woman writes, according to this article: "I could not bear to think of my husband's liking any one else's figure better than mine, consequently, although my waist measured 23 inches, I went and ordered a pair of stays made very strong and measuring only 14 inches around the waist. These, with the assistance of my maid, I put on, and managed, the first day, to lace my waist in, to 18 inches. At night, I slept in my stays, without loosing the laces in the least. The next day I got them to 17 inches, and so on, till now the stays meet [4 inches]. For the first few days, the pain was great, but when I had worn them for a few days, I began to care nothing about it, and even enjoyed the sensation of being tightly laced."

Don't you think that horrid. I saw a picture of Mrs. Gen. Grant, in her traveling costume, which shows her waist of generous proportions, and her good, sensible example may help in combating the foolish fashion.

Will brought home today a new recipe book he saw in S. C. Grigg's window. It is quite novel, in that it gives menus for every day, as well as rules for making the dishes suggested. I note that the breakfast the author offers for tomorrow is: "Cold birds, omelet, minced salt fish, cream toast, radishes, watercresses, rolls, tea and coffee, strawberries and cream." I have just shown it to Will, asking him if he would like that, but he vetoed it decidedly, requesting instead his usual simple breakfast of wheat cakes, ham and eggs, fried potatoes, hot biscuits and coffee, with a piece of apple pie, to top off with. We are not a fashionable household, I fear.

July 3, 1868.

I am surprised to see how long I have left this letter unfinished in my secretary desk. My news is rather stale now, but I will not rewrite my letter, but send it off as it is. We have spent a week in Lake Forest, visiting several friends, and today attended the commencement exercises of Lake Forest academy. Charlie Holt, son of the D. S. Holts, received first prize in the graduating class. He is said to be one of the most brilliant young fellows in these parts. A fellow student said of him, in my hearing, "Charlie Holt just has to look at a page, and it is his forever."

Lake Forest is really the most beautiful of Chicago's suburbs, being particularly well located. It is crossed by many ravines, which not only give great beauty to the place, but drain it well, and the many large trees of oak, maple and hickory add to its attractions. It is about ten years old, and the people who live there—some of them just in summer, others all the year around—are mainly Presbyterians. Among the friends at whose homes we were entertained were the Farwells, the Skinners, and the Simeon Williams family. Mr. Williams has planted some elm trees, which are already growing finely, on the street, by his place.

Social life out there is charming, so quiet and simple. Everything centers about the church and the school. Will tells of a rather rough acquaintance of his, who says he wouldn't want to live there, as it is "too d——n pious," but, for myself, if it were at all possible to do so, I should ask nothing better than to have a home there. But we still stay on Ontario street, having lovely neighbors here, and finding it convenient to town.

We were at the beautiful reception given recently by the Rogerses, Ontario street friends, for their daughter, Miss Susie Rogers, who is much admired. She and her brother Edward often run in to see us, and are great favorites with little Martha.

I really must close.

Much love, from

Your old friend,

MARTHA F. ESMOND.

BRIDE

MRS. FRANK R. MOORE.

[Lugibihl Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wendland of Elmhurst announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen Caroline, to Frank R. Moore of Detroit, Mich.

Footnotes

Dr. Ralph N. Isham was a distinguished physician of the early days in Chicago. He and his wife were much beloved members of society. They were parents of Mrs. George A. Carpenter [who lives in the old Isham home on North Dearborn street], Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, Ralph Isham of Santa Barbara, Cal., and the late Dr. George S. Isham. A grandson, Ralph N. Isham, has just married Miss McCall of Marquette, Mich.

Judge Caton was father of the late Arthur Caton and of the Mrs. Norman Williams mentioned in the letter. The present Norman Williams [who married beautiful Joan Chalmers] was a son of the Norman Williamses who went on the western trip in 1868. Mrs. MacVeagh was undoubtedly Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, mother of Eames MacVeagh. Huntington Jackson was a well known bachelor of those days, friend of John Crerar and of T. B. Blackstone. Marvin Hughitt became president of the Chicago and North Western railway. His descendants in Chicago and Lake Forest are numerous. Among them are: Mrs. Alfred Granger, Mrs. Charles Frost [daughters], and Marvin Hughitt, son; Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr., Mrs. Chester Shepherd, and Mrs. William Mitchell Blair [grandchildren], and Miss Winifred Smith, a great-granddaughter.

The Miss Hill mentioned in the letters was probably the late Miss Martha Hill, a noted beauty of the sixties, stepsister of the late Charles Fullerton and heir to most of his fortune.

The shopping center was still Lake street, in 1868, but this was soon to change to State street.

Simeon Williams was father of the Misses Cora and Annie Williams, well known for their activity in the work of the Colonial Dames and for their devotion to their church and its benevolent enterprises. The late Lawrence Williams was a son of Simeon Williams. Lawrence Scudder of Lake Forest and Mrs. George Ranney are grandchildren of this fine pioneer.

"Charlie Holt" fulfilled the promise of his early years and became one of the most brilliant lawyers of Chicago. His widow, Mrs. Charles S. Holt, lives in Lake Forest. His children are Mrs. Finney [Isabella Holt of Detroit], McPherson Holt, and Mrs. Evans Spalding of Lake Forest.

Miss Susan C. Rogers, the lovely young woman of that day, died recently unmarried in Pittsfield, Mass. Her brother, the late Edward Rogers, was father of Mrs. Robert Foote Hall, Miss Annie Rogers, Mrs. William Ernest Walker, and Mrs. Wallace Owen of Chicago.

The Farwells and Skinners have been mentioned frequently in previous letters.

Asheville Prepares for Spring Season

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—[Special.]—Several entertainments were given here during the week. Miss Mary Louise Becht gave a tea in honor of Mrs. N. H. Bradford, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Frank E. Peckham. Eloise P. Leguer and Thatcher T. P. Leguer of Bedford Hills, Mass., have arrived for the spring season.

Other arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. Warren D. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. C. Bullard, and Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hillis.

British Boost Aeroplanes.

LONDON.—(AP)—The British Gliding association has been formed to promote use of gliders in Great Britain. The association, which will hold its initial meeting in March, will seek to affiliate clubs all over the country, to assist these clubs in obtaining gliders, and in the choice of suitable sites.

Refuge House on Mt. Etna.

CATANIA, Italy.—(AP)—A refuge house for skiers and mountain climbers has been erected near the summit of Mount Etna, dreaded volcano. It is heated and has 30 beds.

Notables Inspect Newport Cottages

NEWPORT, R. I.—[Special.]—There were many visitors here during the week, the warm weather having brought cottagers to inspect their homes for the coming season.

Among the noted visitors was Mrs. R. T. Wilson, who paid her first visit since the passing of her husband, the famous racing stable owner. Mrs. Wilson will return for the summer early in June but will remain in seclusion.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave J. S. White were at Elmcourt for a short time, returning later in the week to New York. Also in Newport were Mr. and Mrs. William K. Dick, who gave a luncheon at Pine lodge for Mrs. Dick's son, John Jacob Astor, who is at St. George's school.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bowdoin will have a cottage, though they have not definitely chosen one yet. Others who have been here recently include Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Ewing, Mrs. Henry P. Rusling of Washington, Mrs. Robert C. Clay of Philadelphia, Mrs. Reginald Norman of Washington, and Mrs. James G. Ducey of Boston.

Tales of the Desert Tell us . .

That in every Sarouk rug, woven by a maiden for her wedding, there is a lock of her hair as a love message.

That sudden changes of design and color in your Sarouk rug means it has changed hands in the weaving.

That irregular designs and colors are not accidental, for the Mohammedan dared not be exact . . no one but Allah could even be perfect.

That green is the color of Immortality, and is sacred, hence was seldom used in Oriental rugs until recently.

That a rug of welcome is placed on the hearth of every tent, and that a stranger, seated on that rug, may not be molested, but is welcomed as a guest.

That every Mohammedan carries his prayer rug with him wherever he may be.

That the secret of the vegetable dyes, used in Oriental rugs, is never revealed outside the tribe or family.

That the natives of the Orient have such high regard for their rugs that they will not tread on them with shoe-covered feet.

GIRLS and WOMEN are DOUBLING Their INCOMES in Beauty Culture

And it's so easy to do it. Our records fairly bristle with hundreds of instances where women and girls—without previous experience—have—in a few short weeks—stepped from our world famous training school into big paying positions.

Burnham training is recognized the world over as the most complete—the most modern of all Beauty Culture Schooling. Burnham graduates are in constant demand, at highest salaries, in the finest Beauty Shops everywhere. No matter where you want to locate—if you're a Burnham trained operator—you'll find quick, steady employment with an excellent income.

You need no high school education to qualify. The tuition fee is moderate—you can easily afford to train for the big income which is assured the Burnham graduate.

If employed now—keep your present position while learning. We operate night classes for your convenience.

Come in and let us show you proof of doubled and even tripled incomes through Burnham training.

BURNHAM'S

is the oldest, largest and most successful school of Beauty Culture in the World. Burnham's has made more women successful—financially independent, than any other school. There are never enough Burnham-trained operators to supply the demand. That's why Burnham's can assure every girl and woman, who completes the course, a splendid paying position—right here in Chicago—or in any other section of the country she prefers.

BURNHAM'S

Chicago school is conveniently located at the corner of State and Randolph-sts.—right in the heart of the loop—easily reached from all parts of the City, and close by everything worth while in downtown Chicago. Surroundings are inviting and classrooms are bright, airy and cheerful. Warm in Winter—cool in Summer. It's a real pleasure to prepare yourself for greater things at Burnham's.

BURNHAM'S

takes a genuine interest in the future of their students. They help every qualified graduate to secure an excellent position—and even years after completing your course, you can rely on Burnham's having your welfare at heart. Burnham training qualifies you to pass the Illinois State Board examinations as well as those of every other state. When you learn to do things the Burnham way, you learn the right way—and people are willing to pay big money for your knowledge.

BURNHAM'S

training covers every phase of Beauty Culture, taught in the exclusive Burnham manner—the distinctive original Burnham methods of facial massage—special training in the art of hairdressing—including adjustment of the new hair pieces—and a course in wig and hair manufac
